LONDON, Aug. 26 [Saturday]—(AP).—Two Russian armies surging toward the heart of Romania reached the Galati gap defenses between the Danube river and the Carpathian mountains yesterday in a six day whirlwind offensive which Moscow announced had cost the enemy 100,000 killed and 105,000 captured. The Russians also drove a spearhead to the Danube delta.

Twelve German divisions have been surrounded southwest of fallen Chisinau, provincial capital of Bessarabia, a Moscow war bulletin said, and the 2d and 3d Ukraine armies have united for a smash toward Bucharest, 112 miles away.

In the trap of 12 divisions of upwards of 60,000 men, 13,000 Germans already have surrendered and the remainder are being annihilated, said Moscow.

A total of 550 towns and villages were swept up by the two Russian armies.

Near Ploesti Oil Fields.

Capture of Tecuci, 11: miles northeast of Bucharest and 92 miles from the Ploesti oil wells, put the Russians at the Galati gap, a 45 mile stretch of defenses near the Danube.

To the east and northeast other soviet forces reached the Prut river on a 70 mile front north of the Danube. Other units reached to within 32 miles of the Danube-Black sea port of Valcov.

Drive Near Baltic Sea.

With the seizure of Tartu, Estonia's second city of 60,000, Russia's 3d Baltic army was only 72 miles south of the Baltic sea, and 76 miles from the eastern shore of the Gulf of Riga, in its effort to seal off and annihilate two German Baltic armies.

In addition to Tartu, more than 60 other populated places, including the rail stations of Elva and Underna, were seized, the Russians said.

South of Lomza, on the northern Poland front where the 2d White Russian army is driving a wedge between Warsaw and East Prussia, the soviet bulletin announced the capture of 40 localities. Other soviet forces beat down German counterattacks east and northeast of Praga, suburb of embattled Warsaw.

Nazi Losses Near 1 Million.

On the disintegrating southern front, the Nazi escape roads leading to the Galati gap were littered with wrecked German equipment and dead.

The Moscow statement of axis losses in six days raised to nearly 1,000,000 the announced number of enemy killed and captured since the Russians began their gigantic summer operations June 23.

The Germans were so disorganized by the Russians' pace that whole divisions were being separated and cut up. In some places the Germans failed to blow up bridges after fleeing across them.

Nazis in Bucharest Quelled; Battle Saves Airport.

BULLETIN.

LONDON, Aug. 26 (Saturday)—(AP).—The Cairo radio said today that Adolf Hitler, shaken by Romania's capitulation, had called a conference of military and political leaders at Berchtesgaden.

(Map on page 3.)

LONDON, Aug. 25 (AP).—Romania declared war on Germany today after Nazi bombers raided Bucharest, the capital, and radio reports said German ground troops within Bucharest had been swiftly overwhelmed by King Michael's regiments.

The declaration of war against Germany by her former satellite was announced in a proclamation by King Michael's new government which was broadcast from Bucharest.

It said the Romanians had gained complete control of the capital from the Germans, whose whole Balkan edifice was fast collapsing.

[A Romanian high command broadcast bulletin recorded by the federal communications commission said: "We have taken more than 4,000 prisoners and captured large quantities of war material. The liquidation of a few islands of resistance around Bucharest continues."]

Romanians Save Airport.

The Bucharest radio said the Germans tried to capture the Baneasa airport near Bucharest but were thrown back by the royal Romanian guards regiments and that roads from the airport to the capital were littered with German guns and vehicles.

The new government, which is trying to swing the country effectively to the side of the allies, again called upon Romanians to rise and fight the Germans.

The war proclamation said Romania gave the Germans an opportunity to withdraw without interference but, "after assurances as solemn as they were perfidious," German units attacked Romanian forces and "even machine gunned the peaceful population of villages and the capital."

It said the German air force "in strength bombed the capital and other towns, aiming particularly at the royal palace."

Cost of Axis Aid '600,000 Men.'

Iuliu Maniu, leader of the Peasant party who joined the new government a few days ago, said in a broadcast statement that Romania had sacrificed more than 600,000 men to German interests.

Maniu said that despite German treachery "allied troops and our men from the former front line are nearing the capital and our armies who are now fighting at home will put an end to this passing difficulty."

Chaos in the Balkans was evident in these reported developments:

Berlin acknowledged a big retreat was under way by Nazi divisions trying to escape the Russian steam roller moving into Romania and the Nazis seemed likely to give up all of the country.

Bulgar Jump Expected.

Germany quickly reshuffled the puppet Hungarian government under Premier Doeme Sztojay to meet the new dangers from the southeast.

Romanian troops were surrendering in droves to the Russians, dispatches said.

[The Russian sponsored Free Germany national committee, quoting Turkish reports, said last night in a Moscow broadcast that fierce fighting had broken out "all over Greece" and in Crete between Greek irregulars and German occupation troops.]

RIP ARMY RULING ON F. D. R. SPEECH

First It's Political Talk, Then It's Not.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25 [Special].—The war department today stirred up a political storm by first ruling that President Roosevelt's address at Bremerton, Wash., Aug. 12, was a "political" speech and then abruptly reversing itself and withdrawing the radio time it had granted to the Socialist party to equalize the President's period on the air.

The reversal was assailed by Socialist leaders who had intended to broadcast to overseas troops. Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for President, said at Denver, Colo., the incident showed that troops abroad would get little chance to hear any thing except "their master's voice."

"I had rather feared something of this sort," said Thomas. "I think it proves the commander in chief, who also is a candidate for reelection, ruled that his own speech was not political."

Permission Canceled.

The war department first announced it had acceded to the Socialist request for the radio time after receiving a letter from the party in which it was asserted that the President's address was "definitely considered" to be political.

Withdrawal of permission was ordered by Acting Secretary of War John J. McCloy.

"I have reconsidered this decision," McCloy said, referring to the granting of radio time to the Socialist party. "The war department determines that the President's report was 'not political,' and, accordingly, no time will be granted to the Socialist party on such basis."

Cutler's Office Named.

Altho McCloy did not identify the army agency he overruled, officers in the war department bureau of public relations said the original decision to grant the Socialist party request was made in the office of Col. Robert Cutler, soldier vote coördinator for the war department and Secretary of War Stimson's representative on the United States war ballot commission.

"It is significant that time was granted for the Socialist broadcast by regular army officers and should now be reversed by a political appointee of President Roosevelt," observed Harry Fleischman, national secretary of the Socialist party in New York.

Police Dig for Old Bullets to Solve Slaying in Drake

1. New verification of a lifer's story of the weapon used in the slaying.

2. Search downstate by Chicago policemen for old bullets that might identify the gun used in the murder of Mrs. Adele Born Williams as the one the lifer in Stateville prison said he delivered to a policeman brother of two women questioned early in the murder inquiry.

The convict, Walter Brown, has sworn he obtained a revolver [identified by him as the murder weapon] in January, 1933, from Ollie Andrews, a Bloomington [Ill.] stickup man, who died March 14, 1943, in Hines hospital. Brown said he brought the gun he got from Andrews' to Chicago and left it with Adolph Valanis, a boyhood chum. Valanis is a Chicago policeman attached to the Warren avenue district. His sister Ellen was a key clerk in the Drake at the time of the Williams murder. His sister Anna had been arrested prowling rooms in the Knickerbocker hotel, across the street from the Drake.

ELLEN BENNETT'S STORY.

Identified by Former Owner.

Brown has said Andrews sold him the gun a few days after Carl Haffner, a Bloomington druggist, reported it stolen from his store. When shown the murder gun on Thursday, Haffner said he was "morally certain" it was the one he lost in the stickup Brown described.

Still lacking in the gun's history, however, was data on the owner who sold the gun to Haffner. He said he had bought it in 1926 or 1927 from a deputy sheriff in Charleston, Ill., and that was only available proof that Haffner could have purchased an Iver-Johnson revolver from the deputy until THE TRIBUNE last night found the son of the deputy, his sister, and a fellow deputy.

The deputy, who died eight years ago, was Smith Emery Gwin. His son is John C. Gwin, 7703 S. Aberdeen st., office manager for Armour & Co.'s pharmaceutical division.

"Dad had an Iver-Johnson gun when he was deputy," the son said, "but he didn't have it when he moved to Chicago soon after he resigned his job in Charleston. Dad had two guns, one of them a .32 Smith and Wesson. The other was an Iver-Johnson, a larger gun. I liked the .32 because it had a pearl handle, but dad always said the Iver-Johnson was the better of the two. When he died he left me the .32 because he knew that was the gun I liked best."

Holster Marking Is Clew.

Gwin, who was in high school when his father was deputy, said he did not know where his father got the Iver-Johnson. He recalled one thing, however, that may help identify it as the one that finally reached the hand of Mrs. Williams' murderer.

His father, he said, always carried his Iver-Johnson in a shoulder holster. The Iver-Johnson found in the Drake case has a worn spot on the right side of the muzzle and this, in the opinion of Charles Wilson, police ballistics expert, was caused by a shoulder holster.

Until young Gwin confirmed his

ALLIED TROOPS ENTER FRENCH CAPITAL; NAZI CHIEF ENDS FIGHT, SAYS RADIO

Advance 25 Miles; Allies Unite for Seine Mop-up.

Report Reims Drive

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Aug. 26 [Saturday].—American columns have driven to Reims, 85 miles northeast of Paris and 15 miles north of the Marne river, according to unofficial and unconfirmed reports reaching here early today. Reims is about 55 miles southwest of Sedan, where the Germans made their 1940 break-thru, and about the same distance from the Belgian frontier. An allied army at Reims would be in a position to outflank the German 15th army on the Calais coast.

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Aug. 26 [Saturday]—(AP).—American tanks in a 23 mile advance yesterday rolled into Troyes, 85 miles southeast of Paris, while far behind them allied armies were stamping out the last German resistance south of the Seine.

See Retreat to Somme.

There were signs that the Germans may fall back to the Somme river, another World War I. battlefront.

At least part of their forces were pulling out of the "rocket coast" fortifications, pilots reported, probably before the menace of the American bridgehead 30 miles northwest of Paris.

Allied war planes struck hammer blows at the Nazi forces along and beyond the Seine, destroying or damaging 105 tanks and 158 other vehicles. They shot down 41 enemy planes.

Allied ground forces, closing in on the Germans south of the Seine, cracked the final enemy line before the river and closed in from every direction.

Seize Elbeuf, Join Canadians.

Americans seized Elbeuf, 25 miles from the mouth of the Seine, whose capture was erroneously announced Thursday.

Then they branched out six miles to the west and linked up with Canadian forces.

Supreme headquarters lifted its recent mantle of secrecy to disclose that the Americans were on or across the Seine most of the 175 miles from Elbeuf to Troyes.

DeGaulle Calls for Invasion of Enemy's Land

LONDON, Aug. 25 (AP).—Speaking to cheering crowds in front of the prefecture in Paris, Gen. Charles de Gaulle proclaimed tonight the liberation of Paris and declared, "We will not rest until we march into enemy territory as conquerors."

His speech was broadcast by the Paris radio and the shouting and singing of the crowd could be heard repeatedly interrupting the French leader.

Demands Voice in World.

"France has rights abroad," De Gaulle continued. "France is a great nation and she has rights which she will know how to make heard.

"She has the right to security. She has the right to insist that she never again be invaded by the enemy who so often has invaded her. She has the right to be in the first line among the great nations who are going to organize the peace and life of the world.

"She has the right to make herself heard in all four corners of the world.

"France is a great world power—she knows it and she will act so that others may also know it, because this is of supreme interest, that is the interest of humanity.

Calls for Invasion of Foe.

"Men and women, we are here in a Paris which stood erect and rose in order to free herself—a Paris oppressed, downtrodden and martyred, but still Paris.

"Paris is free now—freed by the hands of Frenchmen—the capital of fighting France, of France the great eternal.

"It is not enough that with the aid of our dear and splendid allies we should drive the enemy from our soil. After what happened to France, we will not rest or be satisfied until we enter—as is only right—upon the enemy's own soil as conquerors.

"We are going to fight on to the last day—to a day of total and complete victory."

Patriots Rescued; City Goes Mad with Joy.

First Paris Pictures

Turn to the back page for the first pictures from Paris showing the entry of allied forces. There is also a map detailing the latest developments in France.

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Aug. 25 (AP).—Gen. Charles de Gaulle, president of the French committee of national liberation, entered Paris this evening, the Paris radio announced. It also said the French capital had been liberated and that the German commander had signed a document ordering his troops to cease fire.

The announcement of the liberation of the city followed entry of American and French troops into the capital during the day. There was no immediate confirmation here.

The latest word at headquarters was that American and French troops had joined fighting French patriots, who had been calling for help, on the Ile de la Cite in the heart of the capital after bitter fighting with Germans and French collaborationist militiamen.

A dispatch from Paris said Gen. De Gaulle, who broadcast from Paris tonight, was enthusiastically hailed by the populace. Cheering reached a crescendo this afternoon, it said, when he drove down a boulevard. Twenty year old patriots who were seeing him for the first time cried like babies.

De Gaulle, president of the French Committee of National Liberation, was making his first visit to Paris after four years of fighting in exile.

Report Nazi Signs Truce.

The Paris radio said the German commander had signed the following document, presented by Brig. Gen. Jacques Le Clerc, commander of the French 2d armored division and leader of the French force which entered the capital:

"The German commander gives orders to the forces under his command to cease fire immediately. Arms are stacked.

"Personnel assembles without arms at places to be indicated, and will wait for orders there. Arms have to be delivered intact."

It was the second time this week that the French Forces of the Interior had announced the liberation of the capital from four years of Nazi rule. On Wednesday they announced Paris had been freed from within, but later reported that the Germans had repudiated an armistice agreement and resumed fighting.

Maquis to Push Fight.

The commander of the Paris region for the French Forces of the Interior, Col. Rouel, issued this proclamation to his forces, the radio said:

"F. F. I. of the Ile de France [the Paris region], you have unleashed a rising which has liberated Paris.

"The F. F. I. belonging to the liberated parts of the Ile de France is marching forward and organizing itself to fight with its comrades from other regions, from which a new French army will emerge which will push the invader off French soil and into its own territory to smash the regime of oppression."

[A Berlin broadcast this morning said heavy fighting still was in progress in Paris, especially "at the Place de l'Etoile and around the Arc de Triomphe."]

Bitter Resistance Overcome.

The Paris announcement followed bitter fighting in the heart of the capital by French and American armored forces of the United States 3d army which rolled in this morning.

The first French column to enter Paris reached the Luxembourg, near

Cannes' Scars Few and Shallow

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CANNES, France, Aug. 25.—American G. I.'s lounged today around this peace time playground of Europe which bears fewer scars of war than its Riviera neighbors to the west. The white villas and great seashore hotels are intact, altho empty, 24 hours after the town's liberation by the doughboys.

Soldiers were viewing the casino where so many fortunes have passed across the gambling tables. They were told the building had been closed since the Nazis occupied the Riviera after the Italian armistice last summer and that the roof had been damaged slightly by the concussion from Nazi harbor demolitions.

Not Too Friendly.

Our welcome to Cannes was not as enthusiastic as in other parts of southern France. There are many "Doriot Will Win" signs of Jacques Doriot, the Fascist leader, and there had been Vichy sentiment here, for these Riviera residents hadn't really suffered under the Germans. Their story now, of course, is that they always had been loyal to the allies.

Residents of Cannes reported further that they hadn't had much meat, fats, coffee, or fish under the Germans, but they didn't look particularly hungry and the cafes and shops were open for business.

Hotels Were Nazi Headquarters.

The fashionable Martinez hotel on the shore had been used as military headquarters by the Germans and the Gestapo had installed its police in the Mont-Fleury hotel.

All the beaches and the tree shaded seafront promenade were mined by the withdrawing enemy and barbed wire and concrete tank traps were erected in those areas.

The port of Cannes was demolished five days ago by the Germans and several vessels were sunk. Most of the fishing craft, however, were ready today to put out again.

the center of the city, and engaged the enemy.

In the fog of early morning, American infantry battled to Notre Dame cathedral, whose bells had welcomed the first French patrols.

On all sides the liberating French and Americans were greeted by Parisians, mad with joy.

Soon fighting raged thruout the city, along the Place de la Concorde, before the chamber of deputies, and toward Les Invalides. The Germans were reported to have defended positions on both sides of the Seine along the Champs Elysees and around the Quai d'Orsay, the Tuileries, the gardens of the Louvre, the Madelaine, the senate, and the Hotel Crillon.

CITY MAD WITH JOY

BY DON WHITEHEAD.

PARIS, Aug. 25 (AP).—Street fighting raged thru the heart of Paris today as American and French columns drove into the city from the south amid a tumultous welcome from hundreds of thousands of Parisians.

The first French column to enter the city reached Luxembourg at 10:20 a. m. The Germans, the collaborationist militia and the French Gestapo organization opened fire and the battle was on.

An American infantry column drove to Notre Dame at 11 a. m. in a spectacular ground attack.

As I write the Germans are holding out in the area on both sides of the Seine halfway along the Champs Elysees, Place de la Concorde, Quai d' Orsay, Tuileries, the gardens of the Louvre, the Madelaine, the chamber of deputies, the senate and the Hotel Crillon.

French patriots have a grip on the Ile de la Cite, the palais de justice, the prefecture of police, the prefecture of the Seine, and the factory district.

Frenchmen Fight Frenchmen.

Frenchmen are fighting Frenchmen as well as Germans in liberating the city.

When the last enemy resistance crumbled at the gate to Paris this heart of France went mad—wildly, violently mad with happiness.

All the emotions suppressed by four years of German domination surged thru the people. The streets of the city as we entered were like a combined Mardi Gras, Fourth of July celebration, American Legion convention, and New Year's eve in Times Square all packed into one.

They Roll Into Capital.

Our column began to roll at 7 a. m. from Longjumeau, six miles south of Paris. It encountered a strong point but knocked it out and at 9:57 a. m. my jeep rolled into Paris.

Never again do I expect to see such scenes as I saw on the streets. There was only a narrow lane thru which the armor could roll. Men and women cried with joy. They grabbed the arms and hands of soldiers and cheered until their voices were hoarse.

When the column stopped I was pleasantly smothered with soft arms and lips giving not one kiss but the usual French double one. They hugged men and my jeep driver and pinned French tricolors on us, and left us exhausted, with our bosoms covered with emblems and ribbons.

An old man came up, saluted, and said, with tears in his eyes: "God bless America; you have saved France."

Everybody Storms the Jeep.

Men and women, old and young, and children stormed the jeep every time the column stopped and they were wild with emotion.

Crowds were banked from the center of the streets to the sidewalks in a cheering throng that stretched for miles.

Suddenly, Deserted Streets.

The crowds melted away. Then the streets were terribly lonely and barren except for armor with guns clattering.

F. F. I. leaders crouched and ran from door to door, pointing to the rooftops and windows.

Up there, shooting down on us were the Milice [Vichy collaborators], who were helping the Germans.

Red Cross aid men, dressed in white, ran out of a doorway with a stretcher. A nurse in starched white followed them. They picked up a wounded man and laid him on a stretcher while waving a Red Cross flag.

Midwesterners in Line.

Sgt. Bob Fraley of Des Moines, Ia., Pvt. Ray Rooney, of Glen Ellyn, Ill., and Pvt. Harry Grant of Hamburg, Ark., were in the column that drove into Paris.

While still outside the city, Sgt. Adrian Pinsince, 2204 Harrison st., Evanston, Ill., heard a garage man say he had just talked to Paris. We decided to call the United States embassy in Paris. The call went thru and we spoke to Mme. Blanchard, who has been the housekeeper for 16 years. "Mon Dieu, where are you?" she exclaimed. The embassy was put in charge of the Swiss when it was closed three years ago.

AMERICANS ROLL TO MARNE AREA IN 23 MILE DRIVE

bell. They have crossings between Corbeil and Melun, 10 miles farther south, and at Melun and Fontainebleau, 35 miles southeast of Paris.

Between Paris and the sea, the Americans are along the river all the way to Elbeuf, 25 miles from its mouth. They have a strong bridgehead near Mantes and the Germans said they now have another near Elbeuf, little more than 10 miles from Nazi river base of Rouen.

Both at Troyes and in the still secret fan-out north of Mantes, the Americans were barely 100 miles from the Belgian border.

Planes Found Germans.

Between these forces and the allied armies on the Seine, the Germans were under the sights of widely ranging war planes which gave their moving columns no rest.

Far to the west in Brittany, the battle to clear the huge port of Brest of the enemy was resumed by allied warships, artillery, and bombers which blasted positions that had defied the besiegers.

Nazis In 15x25 Mile Trap.

The push to Troyes was 23 miles east of positions reported 24 hours before and its speed suggested the Germans may not be able to stop the American juggernaut short of the Marne—if there.

Meanwhile, onrushing Canadians on the west were trying to foil a clever German defense which has held open a gap of 25 miles from the mouth of the Seine for its beaten 7th army.

Enemy positions in the loop were little more than 15 miles deep and 25 miles wide, but they had held the Americans back on the south around Elbeuf while most of their forces apparently escaped.

The Canadian push that joined the Americans west of Elbeuf smashed the Risle river line—the last the enemy has manned west of the Seine.

Belgians Nearing Le Havre.

Belgian forces driving up the channel coast captured Honfleur, five miles southeast of the great port of Le Havre across the Seine estuary. They also took Villerville and mopped up the last resistance in Trouville.

Allied advances below Honfleur kept pace, sweeping up several towns.

Every mile of advance now will cut down the coastal front from which some robot bombs have been launched against England.

ENEMY VERSION.

Of northern France the broadcast German war report yesterday said:

"In the area northwest of Paris the enemy, with strong forces from the west and south, is following our divisions which have detached themselves toward the lower course of the Seine.

"The enemy's pressure was particularly strong south of Elbeuf, where German troops in a counter-attack yesterday closed the gap in the front.

"West of Paris the enemy attacked, supported by numerous tanks, and reached the western outskirts of the town. Heavy street fighting is going on in the outer suburbs.

"The enemy's attempts to cross the Seine west of Melun were frustrated in a counter-attack. On one sector enemy forces are still on the eastern bank of the river."

Reported Killed

Field Marshal Gen. von Kluge.

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 26 [Saturday] — (AP). — Field Marshal Gen. Guenther von Kluge has been killed, the newspaper Dagens Nyheter said today on the basis of information received from Germany. The newspaper had no details on his death. [There was no immediate confirmation of this report in either axis or allied official quarters.]

Von Kluge, 61, had held command of the German armies on the western front since July 6, when he succeeded Field Marshal Gen. Karl Rudolph von Rundstedt.

[Von Kluge attained prominence in the 1939 Polish campaign, but after his failure to reach Moscow he was berated by Hitler. In 1940 he led a German army thru French fortifications and helped drive the British back across the channel.]

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Aug. 25 (AP).—Production of finished oil products for Germany was reduced an estimated 49 per cent by allied air bombardments during May, June, and July.

A joint statement of the United States and British air forces told of sharp curtailment of production capacity in Germany of both gasoline and lubricants. Attacks were made day and night from bases in Britain, Italy, and Russia on oil installations in Germany and satellite countries.

"The enemy is finding the resulting situation extremely troublesome as is indicated by the overriding priority he has given to the repair and rebuilding of synthetic and natural oil plants seriously damaged in May, June, and July," the statement said.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CANNES, France, Aug. 25.—A new type of German anti-personnel mine has been found in the Cannes area. It resembles a large egg, is grooved like a top, and contains a yellowish powder. The Germans hid the mines under a board covered with soil and a slight pressure exploded them. Several Americans were killed or wounded by the device.

NEW YANK DRIVE IN FRANCE NEARS ITALIAN BORDER

ROME, Aug. 25 (AP). — American troops, lunging suddenly east from their Riviera beachhead in southern France, have captured the famous resort towns of Cannes and Antibes and tonight were fighting forward less than 20 miles from the Italian frontier.

Antibes is 10 miles southwest of Nice and 24 miles from Italy. The Americans who took Cannes also seized the near-by inland town of Grasse.

Nice, within short artillery range of the advancing Yank forces, was expected to fall at any hour.

Near Two Rhone Towns.

Other swift allied columns drove toward the heart of France and a junction with Gen. Eisenhower's forces. Tonight's headquarters bulletin said forces probing into the delta of the great Rhone valley were close to Arles and Tarascon, river towns only a few miles apart.

[The Berlin radio said German troops began withdrawing from southwestern France several days ago, and the German war report indicated the retreat extended over most of southern France. French headquarters said Patriot troops had entered Lyon, 170 miles north of Marseille.]

Two Other Columns Gain.

American units driving west from Salon, northwest of Marseille, were reported within less than eight miles of Arles, on the Rhone. Another Yank column pounding along the Durance valley was approaching Avignon, on the Rhone north of Arles.

Still officially unconfirmed, but possibly true, was the report from Switzerland that advanced American units had reached the Swiss border near Geneva.

[An Associated Press dispatch from Geneva said an American patrol which on Thursday briefly visited St. Julien on the border had proceeded west to Bellegarde, some seven miles from the frontier.]

Grenoble "Firmly Occupied."

An official announcement said the Yank force which captured the industrial city of Grenoble, 75 miles from the Swiss border, was a flying column operating in advance of the main troops. It said the entire Grenoble area had been "firmly occupied" with the assistance of French patriots.

Fighting still raged in the naval base of Toulon, where French troops battled a stubborn Nazi garrison. A heavy allied attack was launched to wipe out the last four pockets of Germans in Marseille, where two German generals and 5,000 prisoners had been captured in the last 72 hours.

French troops assaulting Toulon occupied the land arsenal within the city, but the Germans still hold the naval arsenal and two peninsulas in the harbor.

Street fighting went in in both Toulon and Marseille.

9,000 Square Miles Set Free.

Except for these two spots of resistance, nearly 9,000 square miles of liberated French territory lay securely in the hands of Lt. Gen. Alexander M. Patch's 7th army. Heavy allied air attacks made it costly for the Nazis to attempt troop concentrations.

Allied warships ranged along the coast, pounding assigned targets to help the ground forces. Some 20,000 German prisoners had been taken in 10 days of unbroken allied advances.

Bordeaux Again Reported Taken.

IRUN, Spain, Aug. 25 (AP).—Information reaching this border town today from the French Forces of the Interior said Bordeaux, France's fourth largest city, had been liberated. [Capture of Bordeaux by French and American forces also was unofficially reported Thursday by the French radio at Algiers.]

Allied technicians were reported already repairing the port installations of St. Jean de Luz, Bayonne and Bordeaux, on the Atlantic, and Port Vendres, on the Mediterranean, which were wrecked by the Germans before departure.

REPORT LAVAL, PETAIN STILL IN FRANCE—AND NOT PRISONERS

BY THOMAS F. HAWKINS.

DELLE, OUTSIDE MORVILLARS, France, Aug. 24 [Delayed]—(AP).—Pierre Laval, with Marshal Petain still at his side, is working desperately at Morvillars to "build a case" for himself and it is expected some sort of a new French collaborationist government will be announced shortly.

Despite many conflicting reports about the whereabouts of the two Vichy leaders, including stories they had been removed to Germany, a reliable informant said both are at Morvillars. My informant himself saw Laval and his information concerning Petain was well founded.

Laval has complete freedom, but has been circulating the story thru friends that he is a prisoner, the informant said. When he left Paris Laval was accompanied by Otto Abetz, German ambassador; Joseph Darnand, chief of Vichy militia; Marcel Deat, minister of state; gestapo agents, and others.

MISSING DAUGHTER SOUGHT.

Mrs. Lulu Belle Richards, 648 Wrightwood av., yesterday asked the aid of police in finding her daughter, Charlotte, 17, who said she disappeared from home last Wednesday.

PLAN FOR RULE OF FREE FRANCE PUT IN EFFECT

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25 (AP).—Arrangements to administer liberated France until the French people choose a permanent form of government went into effect today, the state department announced. These arrangements were set in motion thru an exchange of letters between Gen. Eisenhower, as commanding general of United States forces, and Gen. Koenig, commander of the French Forces of the Interior.

They deal with administration of civil affairs and related matters, including a provision that there will be no censorship of political news in liberated France and that only the ordinary rules of military censorship will prevail.

British, French Sign.

LONDON, Aug. 25 (AP).—A British-French agreement covering the civil administration of liberated areas in France was signed today by Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and Rene Massigli, French minister of foreign affairs.

MAQUIS WOMEN DOFF FIGHTING TOGS TO DANCE

BY KENNETH L. DIXON.

WITH AMERICAN FORCES IN SOUTHERN FRANCE, Aug. 20 [Delayed]—(AP).—In years to come a score of American soldiers will spend many evenings recounting the tale of their dance with Maquis women who came out of the wooded hills to glamorize a party.

I got the story from Sgt. Stan Swinton of Ann Arbor, Mich., formerly on the staff of the Associated Press and now a Stars and Stripes [United States army newspaper] writer. He talked with the doughboys the next morning when they were still blinking their eyes and wondering if it wasn't just a beautiful dream and this is what he told me:

High atop a hill sits the village of Beaumont, surrounded by timber in which the Maquis—Free French of the Interior who have been fighting three or four years as woodsmen—lived like modern Robin Hoods.

Girls? But of Course.

The grateful Beaumont villagers wanted to do something for the doughboys. But what? They had seen movies showing how much Americans like to dance. Voila! That was it. They would give a party and dance.

The 20 officers and men of an artillery and engineers outfit were willing, but where would they get the girls?

That would be easy, the villagers replied. The women of the Maquis would attend.

So word was sent into the woods and the Maquis women came in. The bartender of the little tavern where the dance was held moved the chairs off the floor and laid his gun on the bar where it remained all eevning while drinks passed back and forth over it.

The orchestra was a single accordion—but it was plenty.

And the women! When they came in they laid pistols and bandoliers aside, disappeared a few moments and then reappeared in the little tavern door, transformed.

Prove They're Just Girls.

They also had laid aside their fighting clothes. They had put on slips made of pure silk, silk from parachutes the allies had dropped loaded with supplies, months ago, and had donned their best dresses.

"It was a wonderful party—especially Yvonne," said Lt. Bob Silva of Kansas City, Mo., and Lt. Robert Dean, of Philadelphia, Pa., nodded in agreement, adding:

"She put her guns and maps in a purse and just danced. She was beautiful. She had beautiful hands, too, except where she had cut her finger lifting a machine gun."

"You would never know she had been fighting Nazis for three years," said Lt. Neil McPhail, Cincinnati, O. "It was wonderful."

"They all danced. As soon as you would finish dancing with one another would come up," said Lt. Clark Depury of Tampa, Fla.

Until after midnight they danced

Like Cinderella's Ball.

Then it ended just like Cinderella's ball. The girls put away the slips and the print dresses. On went their fighting clothes. They picked up their pistols and hand grenades and went back to the woods to harass the retreating Germans.

Still dazed, the doughboys returned to their jobs of keeping the Germans retreating.

Then the bartender picked up his gun from the bar and disappeared into the night.

NAZI KNOCKOUT NEAR, SAYS HEAD OF WEST POINT.

Pine Camp, N. Y., Aug. 26 [Special].—The war in Europe will be over this year, "perhaps within 60 days," Maj. Gen. Francis B. Wilby, superintendent of the military academy at West Point, said today. Gen. Wilby, who has just completed a 35,000 mile tour of all American battlefronts excepting the Pacific theater, flew here today to observe field maneuvers.

The general said we are now following the precept laid down by Gen. Nathan Forrest to "git thar fustest with the mostest men." Wilby said the knockout punch is near.

The general spent several days with the first graduates of West Point's Stewart field, who are now with Doolittle's bomber command. These men, graduated from Stewart field as pilots in January, 1943, had all completed 30 missions.

BRITISH EXHIBIT POWERFUL NEW FLAME THROWER

Weapons Throw Stream of Fire 150 Yards.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 25.—For the first time Britain's new flame throwers, which are described as a "devastating offensive weapon," were today demonstrated to those outside the immediate circle of experts, including a number of newspaper men. The new weapons include the "Lifebuoy," a man carried weapon with a flame range of 50 yards; the "Wasp," a light armored vehicle, and the "Crocodile," fitted to a heavy tank, each with a flame range of more than 150 yards. They are reported to be the most powerful flame throwers in the world and are credited with having burnt a hole in Adolf Hitler's Atlantic wall on D-day, 35 minutes after the allied landing in Normandy.

In the course of the demonstration in a British field a number of "Wasps" suddenly appeared over the brow of a hill. In a moment the field was metamorphosed into a veritable mass of flames as the carriers bore down, belching out tons of burning oil. The grass was burned and the whole field was alive with fire and fumes and billowing smoke.

Used by Paratroopers.

The "Lifebuoy" consists of a ring shaped tube for carrying fuel and another spherical container to carry compressed gas. It is said to have been used with considerable success by paratroopers, Commandos, and Canadian infantry.

The "Wasp" is fitted to a universal carrier. Tanks containing liquid fuel and compressed gas are easily carried on the carrier and a "flame gun" projects thru the front armor.

The "Crocodile," which is fitted to a heavily armored tank, has its fuel carried in an armored trailer towed by tanks. The trailer is universally articulated so that it can move in any direction. By an ingenious device the trailer can be jettisoned in case of need. The tank can then revert to its normal role since the flame throwing apparatus does not interfere with its armament.

Controled from Inside.

The trailer is controled from inside the tank and its movements are indicated by pilot lights mounted on a panel in front of the commander. This makes it unnecessary for the commander to expose himself to enemy fire to see what is happening.

The "Crocodile" uses a new type of fuel. Its flames can ricochet off a nearby surface in the manner of a billiard shot, hitting pillboxes hundreds of feet away.

FIGHT GERMANS OFF LE HAVRE; BLAST 8 SHIPS

LONDON, Aug. 25 (AP).—American and British light naval forces intercepting Nazi ships trying to escape from Le Havre at the Seine's mouth early today blew up an escort vessel, an armed trawler and a torpedo boat, and damaged at least five other enemy warships in a series of running battles.

American craft first chased a group of German E-boats north of Le Havre, hitting some. British torpedo boats, meanwhile, shot up a convoy north of Cap d'Antifer. A torpedo hit blew up an armed trawler. United States craft engaged another group of E-boats, damaging one severaly, and British destroyers set fire to two, one of which sank, and damaged a third.

The German convoy was engaged again later by British torpedo boats, despite shore battery fire, and one enemy boat was set afire and another silenced. Other British craft later engaged a group of enemy escort vessels, hitting one which was believed to have sunk.

The American and British ships were not damaged, and personnel suffered only three slight casualties.

Canadian Tourist Trade Exceeds Last Year's

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 25 (AP).—D. Leo Dolan, chief of the Canadian travel bureau, said today that altho tourist traffic has not reached the proportions of 1941 and 1942, it is more brisk than in 1943 when war time restrictions placed a damper on traveling. The Dominion bureau of statistics has estimated that travelers visiting Canada last year spent $89,500,000. Dolan predicted this season's returns will exceed that figure.

ROMANIANS JOIN US BY HUNDREDS, RUSSIANS SAY

Emerge from Forests 'Dirty and Ragged.'

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

MOSCOW, Aug. 25.—The soviet press said today that hundreds of "ragged, dirty, lousy people," deserters from the Romanian army, are emerging from forests to join the Red army, often after savage battles with German SS [elite guard] and other enemy troops who are trying to prolong the war on Romanian soil. Izvestia's correspondent said:

Quotes Romanian Captain.

"'We were ordered to go into a counter-attack,' said Capt. Stefan Balesku sullenly. 'German machine guns were placed behind us. A German colonel said that those who looked back would be exterminated immediately. And they exterminated us.'

"Romanian prisoners showed us the place where SS troops killed three Romanian machine gunners who had decided to surrender to the Red army. The three dead Romanian soldiers lay side by side.

"About 30 feet away was the body of an SS man. He had been killed by a fourth Romanian who had time to hide from the Germans."

No Editorial Comment.

There is no newspaper comment on the fall of Romania and it would be inaccurate to report there is any general jubiliation among the soviet people at the latest turn of events.

Today's Moscow newspapers do not present the news of Romania's decision to get out of the war as fact. It is in the form of a "survey of foreign radio broadcasts" reporting that Marshal Ion Antonescu had fled and that King Michael had announced his decision to suspend hostilities with the allies.

'FEET TOGETHER' CHUTE LANDINGS REDUCE INJURIES

Revision in the method of making parachute landings is credited with having reduced a parachutist's chance of injury to only 1 per cent. Under this new method the jumper holds his feet together on contact with the ground, whereas the feet formerly were kept apart approximately the width of the hips.

Discussing results of a survey of more than 250,000 parachute jumps in the current issue of the Journal of the American Medical association, Lt. Col. James W. Coutts and Maj. C. Donald Lord also say increased severity of selection standards has helped to reduce the injury rate.

Under the current jumping practice, the army surgeons say, incidence of ankle fractures is greatly reduced because with both feet together, legs slightly bent at the knees, and the weight of the body slightly forward, there is greater distribution of shock.

U. S. AIR RAIDERS BLAST AT NAZIS' ROBOT CENTERS

Plane Plants, Fields, Oil Targets Hit.

LONDON, Aug. 25 (AP).—In a smashing blow at Hitler's flying bombs, rockets, and jet propelled planes, more than 1,600 American heavy bombers from Britain and Italy blasted at 14 targets in Germany and Czechoslovakia today.

Tonight nearly 1,000 RAF heavy bombers attacked Russelsheim, Germany, south of Frankfort; Mosquitos raided Berlin, and another RAF force bombed enemy batteries at Brest, France.

More than 1,100 Fortresses and Liberators ranged deep into Germany, battering 10 targets, including experimental and research centers for Hitler's new weapons of destruction. From Italy nearly 500 heavies winged over Czecholovakia, pounding two plane plants and two air fields.

Smash at Oil Plant.

One 8th United States air force group smashed at a synthetic oil plant at Politz. Other targets blasted by other British based bombers included the Peenemunde flying bomb and rocket experimental station, the German air force research center at Rechlin, maintenance and experimental stations at Anklam, Schwerin, and Neubrandenburg, all west of Stettin, and bomber plants at Wismar, Lubeck, and Rostock.

On the western front American and British bombers ripped German positions at the extreme ends of the French fighting zone and the retreating enemy at and beyond the Seine.

Hit Base of Tirpitz.

Royal air force raiders bombed a Nazi oil and gasoline dump at Clermont, 40 miles north of Paris.

A German broadcast said planes of an allied fleet air arm had raided Alten fjord, where the crippled Nazi 35,000 ton battleship Tirpitz lies. The Tirpitz, at last reports, was seaworthy, but unable to risk a heavy battle.

British and Canadian pilots seriously damaged two 1,800 ton German destroyers fleeing Bordeaux, France, last night.

Seven Planes Land in Sweden.

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 25 (AP).—Five American bombers and two fighters made forced landings in southern Sweden today. One bomber burst into flames after landing but all crews are safe.

POPE, CHURCHILL DISCUSS MORAL ISSUES OF PEACE

VATICAN CITY, Aug. 25 (AP).—Pope Pius XII. received Prime Minister Winston Churchill for a 48 minute private audience Wednesday in which they discussed "essential questions" referring to a "sincere desire of a just and lasting peace," it was announced today. Churchill left Rome the same day.

The Vatican announcement of the visit said "many essential questions were touched upon relating to important problems of the present hour." Affable cordiality marked the conversation, the announcement said.

Msgr. Pucci's Vatican news service said that the questions under discussion probably did not concern ways to solve territorial, economic, and material problems but rather referred to the spiritual criteria of justice and equity.

Spoke in Private.

Churchill was accompanied to the Holy See by Sir Francis D'Arcy Godolphin Osborne, British minister to the Vatican. His conversations with the pontiff were in private.

The visit was observed with all the splendor of the papal court.

After the audience Churchill was reported to have told the chamberlain of the cape and sword, "it was a pleasant conversation."

As the prime minister's car pulled away from the Vatican, a group of allied soldiers recognized Churchill and cheered him.

Rosy and windblown from his recent tour of the front lines, Churchill talked informally with correspondents for 45 minutes in Rome's British embassy Wednesday.

"The number of cigars I smoke," said the prime minister, "is sometimes governed by the supply." That was the only remark permitted to be quoted.

Tired but Relaxed.

Churchill appeared tired but relaxed—a vastly different figure from the man who addressed correspondents at the British embassy at Cairo more than a year ago when Marshal Erwin Rommel was poised at the gates of Alexandria.

He beamed when asked when he thought the war would end and whether the German armies would crack before the home front. Asked about post-war problems and the role the four major powers are destined to play, Churchill gave precise and affable but always off the record answers. He also had opinions on what should be done with war criminals.

Subdued in Court

Joachim Sindermann, 40, of 1302 S. Albany av., a German refugee and self-styled professor, created a stormy scene and had to be subdued yesterday in Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe's court after pleading not guilty to a charge of failure to register and be fingerprinted as an alien.

Sindermann, a husky six foooter, struggled with three deputy marshals as they forcibly removed him from the courtroom to an elevator that took him back to the men's lockup. His trial was set by Judge Igoe for Sept. 18.

"This is just like the dirty Nazis," screamed Sindermann after the judge had denied a motion to reduce his $3,500 bond. Judge Igoe told him his action was "a good indication you would not be a good citizen of the United States."

Assistant United States Atty. Harry Connaughton said that Sindermann, who said he is Andrew Burkhard Sandman, has a petition for a change in name pending. Sindermann asserted he makes his living by lecturing and "on charities" and that he worked for a Harvard Foundation for two years. He has four children.

CLEAR WEATHER GIVES RESPITE FROM ROBOTS

LONDON, Aug. 25 (AP).—Clear channel weather which gave coastal anti-aircraft batteries a chance to get flying bombs on the wing, today brought a temporary respite from the menace in southern England after the Germans had delivered their usual post-dawn attack.

The government disclosed the buzz blitz, which has made southern England the target for 100 of the winged explosives daily, has caused "heavy casualties" and "shocking damage to property." [Last official figures set the death toll at 5,000.] It was revealed that among famous buildings badly smashed by the bombs was historic Lincoln's inn in Chancery lane which bears the date 1518. One of the bombs, it was disclosed, struck the Royal London Opthalmic hospital recently, killing nine patients and injuring others as well as members of the medical staff. Many of the patients were blind and had to be led from the wreckage.

STEAL 20 CASES OF WHISKY.

Frank Guardino, 519 Hartland ct., complained to police yesterday that 20 cases of whisky, worth $450, were stolen from him home. Guardino said the whisky was part of the stock for his tavern at Ohio and Paulina sts.

TRAP IS SPRUNG ON JAP BASTION BY MACARTHUR

Shortages Force Him to Try Bold Gamble.

[The strategy of Gen. MacArthur's Bear Hug No. 1, by which he bypassed thousands of Japanese troops and gained control of the Solomons sea is described in this article, one of a series condensed from Frazier Hunt's forthcoming book, "MacArthur and the War Against Japan." Previous articles have told of the great delaying action fought in the Philippines and how MacArthur took the offensive in New Guinea.]

BY FRAZIER HUNT.

[Copyright: 1944: By Chas. Scribner's Sons.]

The pattern of the first general offensive in the Southwest Pacific area began to take shape early in 1943. Briefly, it was a great double envelopment with the two strong arms moving north, operating some 600 miles from one another.

MacArthur's strategy was to push one arm of the giant nut-cracker up thru the Solomons on the right, and the other up the New Guinea coast on the left; then to close in on the long, narrow Island of New Britain and pinch off the whole of the Solomon sea. This would be bear hug No. 1.

The original line of demarcation between Halsey in the southern Pacific and MacArthur's theater had been the 160th degree of longitude, but in order to include all of Guadalcanal in Halsey's territory, this line had been moved 1 degree to the west. When Guadalcanal fell, Halsey's remaining objectives in the Solomons and Bismarcks lay in MacArthur's theater. The joint chiefs of staff placed Halsey under MacArthur's strategic command and his forces thus became MacArthur's right wing.

Coöperation a Model.

Had either of the two been lesser men it might have been an unhappy situation, but they were kindred fighting spirits and their coöperation became a model for the services. Halsey remembered the magnificent help MacArthur had given him in neutralizing the enemy's air force in Rabaul at the expense of his own operations during the hour of danger at Guadalcanal, and he promptly announced that he was proud to serve under MacArthur.

From the standpoint of means at his disposal MacArthur's decision to take the offensive was bold, almost rash, thinking. He was short of everything—men, planes, guns, ships, small boats, and amphibious equipment. He was hampered and hamstrung in a score of ways.

Yet this very inadequacy had a strange result, for out of it came a new technique, a completely new application of the solid old principles of war. Air power would have to be fitted into amphibious action; surprise would have to offset great mass; every weapon and service must be used to its maximum; weakness of one would have to be covered by the strength of the other.

Rabaul Main Obstacle.

Before MacArthur could move north from Buna and Dobadura, on up to Lae and Salamaua and beyond, it was essential to secure safe passage thru the Vitiaz straits. To do this, a powerful Japanese air force based on the great Rabaul bastion had to be neutralized.

The enemy that MacArthur and Halsey faced was strongly entrenched in New Guinea, the Bismarcks, Admiralties, and Solomons south to Guadalcanal. At the very eastern tip of New Britain the Japanese had built in Rabaul a vast naval base and four great air fields, heavily defended by fighter and anti-aircraft guns.

The Japanese position was like a huge horseshoe. New Britain Island was the toe of the horseshoe; the Solomon archipelago was one shaft; the southwestern peninsula of New Guinea, 600 miles to the westward, was the other shaft. In the empty center lay the Solomon sea.

Aerial Pincers Move.

MacArthur's strategy was to move up these two shafts of the horseshoe, establish fighter bases within range of Rabaul, so that he could launch air strikes against this bastion with bombers protected by fighters. Once enemy air forces at Rabaul were neutralized, he could move simultaneously north along the New Guinea coast and the Solomons. He could capture the priceless Vitiaz straits.

MacArthur's left wing had first the difficult task of capturing the strong Japanese bases at Lae-Salamaua. Since his immediate ground objective was Lae, he planned first to neutralize Wewak, on the north. In a series of brilliant surprise blows in middle August, our flyers blasted this great base with its four fields into operative helplessness. Hundreds of Japanese planes were caught on the ground and destroyed, and the enemy was forced to pull back his air support more than 300 miles to Hollandia. The way was now cleared.

MacArthur moved swiftly. In a coördinated ground, air, and naval operation, the 9th Australian division—the beloved "Rats of Tobruk"—was successfully landed on the coast northeast of Lae, cutting the enemy's main line of communication and supply from the north. The movement was a complete surprise and the landing was made with little opposition.

MacArthur Closes Trap.

Then MacArthur closed the ring on Lae and Salamaua. In a comprehensive air movement he landed an American paratroop regiment, with Australian artillery, at Nadzab, and seized the inland approaches along the wide Markham valley. The operation completely surprised the enemy's ground troops engaged on the other fronts by our encircling forces.

Salamaua, south of Lae, fell one week to a day after the winged men had dropped on Nadzab. Encircling arms closed tight around doomed Lae; arms from the east and west and south.

In September MacArthur could announce his first great offensive victory—the capture of the Japanese base at Lae.

In order to keep the fighter escorted bombers constantly working on Rabaul, MacArthur must have a great air base somewhere here to the southeast in Bougainville, so that when Kenney [5th air force commander] was cut off by fog from the west, the skies to the southeast would be clear for bombers coming up from below. It was absolutely necessary to get a southern bomber and fighter base, and MacArthur ordered Halsey to capture or make one.

Bougainville By-Passed.

But that heavy Japanese fist at the lower tip of Bougainville was blocking the way. Halsey was directed to by-pass the mighty base at Buin-Faisi, swing to the westward of the great Island of Bougainville under the cover of darkness, and then strike into Empress Augusta Bay at dawn.

But before doing so MacArthur would clear the air at Rabaul for him. The mighty blow fell in mid-October. With complete secrecy the mass of our air force was concentrated and launched from fields built in the portions of New Guinea that we had occupied late in June.

With every available plane we struck Rabaul at midday. While our medium bombers raked the airdromes, our heavies pounded the shipping in the harbor. Both groups were covered by fighters. Our low flying medium bombers, striking at the three big airdromes, destroyed 100 enemy aircraft caught on the ground, and severely damaged 51 others.

It was a shellacking that the Japanese were never to forget. Along with the knocking out of the enemy at Wewak, it gave us definite mastery in the air over the Solomons sea and adjacent waters, and threatened the entire Japanese outer defensive perimeter in the Bismarck and Solomon seas.

The sea was now cleared, and Halsey's planners borrowed carriers and a formidable task force, and quietly gathered a mighty armada for the attack on Empress Augusta bay. Kenney, far to the west, once again plastered Rabaul, and there was little coming out of the skies to oppose the American landing made halfway up the west coast of the 200 mile long Island of Bougainville.

Empress Augusta bay changed the whole picture of the Solomon seas. Not only had Jap troop concentrations been by-passed, but the weather had been circumvented, as well. Those fogs hanging low over Kenney's dromes in Guinea no longer protected Rabaul. Bombers with fighter escorts could now fly up from the new fields in middle Bougainville as well as from the New Guinea bases.

And before long Rabaul, and other great Japanese bases on New Britain and New Ireland, would also be bypassed, and the chow lines and gas lines cut. And more than 150,000 enraged and helpless Nips left behind could carry on their losing war against the female mosquito. Hunger and fever, the pitiless jungle and the sea and sky, all were their enemies now.

Great bear hug No. 1 was ended.

JAPS HALT 'Y' PLAN FOR WAR PRISONER RELIEF IN PHILIPPINES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25.—The Japanese have stopped a Y. M. C. A. relief program for American war prisoners in the Philippines for the announced reason that a "special situation" prevails in the islands, the state department disclosed today. The Japs added that the relief activities of the Y. M. C. A. representative previously had been "tolerated by the local authorities."

The state department announced May 23 that Japanese authorities in the Philippines had given permission to the neutral delegate of the Y. M. C. A.'s war prisoners' aid to purchase locally relief supplies in an amount not exceeding $25,000 a month for shipment to prisoners of war and civilian internment camps. At the request of the United States, the Swiss government, representing American interests in the far east, authorized its minister in Tokyo to make available $25,000 a month to the Y. M. C. A. delegate from official American funds.

The state department said it had been informed that when the Swiss minister in Tokyo tried to arrange for the transfer of these funds, the Japanese authorities said the Y. M. C. A. program could not proceed.

At the same time, the state department continued, the Japanese government indicated it would be willing to consider requests made by the Swiss government to transfer funds to the Philippines for the aid of American war prisoners. It was recalled that the United States, acting thru the Swiss government, has attempted constantly since the spring of 1942 to arrange for the transfer of money to American prisoners of war in the islands.

NAZIS SUPERIOR TO JAPS IN AIR, SAYS YANK PILOT

Capt. A. R. Ritzler.

Capt. A. Robert Ritzler, 22, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Ritzler, 245 S. Ridgeland av., Oak Park, home on leave after flying 70 bombing missions over German and Japanese targets, said he has much more respect for the German opposition than the Japanese. He is an army pilot.

He said the Japs in the China-Burma-India theater, where he flew his last 12 missions, are not very well equipped and they "don't know how to use what equipment they have."

Capt. Ritzler saw 17 months of service without leave, he said. He was in North Africa, Sicily, Italy, and the Burma theater. His flying group supported attacks on Pantelleria and Sicily in the first invasion of Italy, and at Salerno, Anzio, Imphal, and other points.

On one trip his plane returned with 40 holes in it, but Capt. Ritzler never was injured. No member of his crew was killed, and only one was injured, he said. The flyer has a Presidential citation, the distinguished flying cross, and the air medal with six clusters.

MORALE BREAK ONLY A TEAPOT STORM: MERRILL

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25 (AP).—The chief of Merrill's Marauders acknowledged today that there had been a temporary break in the morale of his celebrated jungle fighters in Burma but described it as a "storm in a teapot," which blew over in about 10 days.

Brig. Gen. Merrill.

Brig. Gen. Frank D. Merrill, just back from nearly three years of war in the orient, told a news conference the trouble began with misinterpretation of an order for reënforcements at Myitkyina, which resulted in some convalescent Marauders being sent to the front.

"I don't know, but I do not believe any of those convalescent boys actually got into combat," he said.

"I know of one plane load that went down to Myitkyina and the men came right back on the same plane.

"Our own doctors looked them over, and if any of our men were in action who should have been in the hospital it was due to an error by our own doctors."

Order Causes Explosion.

Nevertheless, said Merrill, the mistaken order caused an explosion when it came thru. The Marauders had been in combat for 100 days, carrying out three campaigns involving 750 miles of marching, five major battles, and 32 minor engagements culminating at Myitkyina.

The local commander at Myitkyina, finding indications that the Japanese were bringing up reënforcements, asked Gen. Joseph Stilwell to send up as many men as he could. Stilwell issued an order for all men fit for full field duty, but by the time the order reached the area where the convalescent Marauders were in hospitals, it called for all men who were fit to walk.

"All the people there immediately questioned that order," said Merrill. "I was in the hospital myself at the time. I said that Stilwell never issued such an order. We checked it, and Stilwell said he had issued no such order—he ordered up only men fit for full field duty.

Men Get Indignant.

"Meantime, some of the convalescents were sent back. A lot of my men got very indignant. I was goddam indignant myself.

"But while these men of mine got pretty sore, I am positive that if we had asked for volunteers every one of them would have gone back. They have done a magnificient job, and they would be alarmed if they knew the uproar this thing has caused."

Merrill said that no promises on the length of service or return to the United States were made officially to any of the units sent to India for his organization. He added, however, that it would be no surprise to him if some of the officers, speculating on the probable type of service and the rewards that might be expected, had said things which were overheard by the men and in the course of time became fixed in G. I. gossip as promises from the government itself.

Informed of Danger.

The only authorized statement in advance to the men, Merrill said, was that they would be volunteering for a "highly dangerous and hazardous" mission—they were not even told where they were going.

But, he said, when the mistaken order came through during the battle for Myitkyina, "the men at the hospital got sore as hell—they started thinking of every goddam gripe they had ever had against everybody in particular, and it surged up all at one time and lasted about a week."

ILLINOIS MEDIC HERO WITH UNIT CUT OFF 4 DAYS

DRINIUMOR FRONT, AITAPE, New Guinea, Aug. 11 [Delayed]—(AP).—Private Ralph H. Smith, Danville, Ill., a battalion hospital aid man, found himself with his hands full the other day beyond the lines on the Driniumor river when an advance troop was cut off by the Japanese and isolated for four days. He had 18 wounded on his hands and no means of evacuating them. For three days the unit was without food or water.

Smith had these alternatives—Try to reach the American lines and bring adequate medical help back or stay with the men and do his best. He chose to stay.

Four days later when the Japs were driven back and the unit rescued, Smith still was galloping from one case to another, ministering to wounds, administering plasma and sedatives.

YANKS RETURN AFTER 1,500 MI. TREK IN JUNGLE

Strange Journey Thru Burma Wilds Told.

SOUTHWEST CHINA, Aug. 24 [Delayed]—(AP).—One of the strangest American military missions of this war has just been completed—a six month, 1,500 mile round trip thru unsurveyed parts of upper Burma with Chinese guerrillas.

A young major from Mount Victory, O. — Edward O. Elliott — led the party, consisting of four officers and five enlisted men, back to a motor road on this side of the Salween river Aug. 14.

The major had lost 25 pounds. The others all were down to fighting trim. All had gone thru the mission without serious illness altho most of their time, except when shoveling their way thru the snow filled Chimeli pass, was spent in malaria country.

Pass 13,451 Feet High.

Drifts in that 13,451 foot high pass were six to 15 feet deep when the Americans, possibly the only foreigners ever to make the rigorous crossing, dug their way thru.

They were attached to the headquarters of a Chinese guerrilla division and were commissioned to provide intelligence, and liaison for the outfit as well as medical care.

The party set out from the Mekong river Feb. 22 with 42 animals, including 12 riding horses, but after crossing the Salween they had to abandon the mounts. With a hand operated radio they kept daily contact with their base headquarters.

Stilwell Pays Back.

SOUTHEAST ASIA COMMAND HDQS., Kandy, Ceylon, Aug. 25 (AP).—Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell totaled his account with the Japanese today and marked the first instalment paid for the "hell of a beating" he admitted the allies took in Burma in 1942.

An official recapitulation of the general's 1944 North Burma campaign disclosed that more than 10,000 square miles of territory were recaptured and more than 10,000 Japanese were killed.

"Similarities to the first Burma campaign, but in the exact reverse are now appearing," said a Southeast Asia command headquarters statement.

Chinese Gain.

CHUNGKING, China, Aug. 25 (AP).—Throwing in one attack after another, Chinese troops have captured seven additional pillboxes and are approaching the main southwest-southeast street of Tengchung, last enemy city strongheld holding out in the Salween river-Burma road area of western Yunnan, the Chinese high command announced today.

Japanese attacks on the main Chinese positions on Sungshan mountain near the Salween river crossing of the Burma road were repulsed.

ILLINOIS DOCTOR OPERATES UNDER OWN UNITS' FIRE

AITAPE, British New Guinea, Aug. 1. [Delayed]—(AP).—The battalion had made an encircling move around the Jap positions. Now its extreme element had come in so far it was exposed to some of the battalion's own machine gun fire. The commander ordered all men to dig in and stay below ground while the guns worked over the trapped Japs.

But Capt. Arthur W. Hirschy, Monmouth, Ill., was administering blood plasma to a wounded man. Capt. Hirschy, head and shoulders exposed, finished the plasma injection.

The only doctor with the battalion during two days of constant action beyond the lines, Hirschy spent every minute of both days attending wounded and was never out of fire. Once he and a medical corpsman were bringing a wounded man back to a casualty station. The corpsman was hit. Hirschy carried the wounded man alone, then went back and got the corpsman. His battalion commander cited him for bravery and devotion to duty.

ALLIES OCCUPY 3 VILLAGES ON ITALIAN FRONT

ROME, Aug. 25 (AP).—Allied troops have made "considerable advances" in the upper Arno valley on the central sector of the Italian front and have occupied the villages of Castelnuovo, Fornich, and La Montania, allied headquarters announced today.

East of Florence, in the Pontassieve sector, 8th army forces have "made good progress toward the Gothic line and are firmly established on the western slopes of Monte Fecchieta." In the 5th army sector west of Florence continued patrol activity was reported. Polish patrols of the 8th army penetrated more than a mile beyond the Metauro river.

An allied command statement paid tribute to "the increasing assistance" rendered by Italian regular army troops fighting alongside the Poles.

WAGNER URGES BRITAIN TO EASE CURB ON JEWS

New York, Aug. 25 (AP).—Sen. Wagner [D., N. Y.] urged tonight that Great Britain ease the terms of what he called the "infamous Chamberlain white paper and permit Hitler harassed Jews" unrestricted immigration to Palestine.

"I have spoken of that infamous document before," Wagner said in a speech prepared for delivery over the radio, "and I cannot speak enough in condemnation of an edict which violates every tenet of law and which, in effect, consigns defenseless Jews to horrible death."

Wagner said "it is our duty" to convince the British colonial office that the white paper policy "must not be allowed to stand in the way of opening Palestine to the Jews."

WAR ON NAZIS CUT BURMA PLAN: MOUNTBATTEN

Far East Offensive Modified, He Says.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 25.—Adm. Louis Mountbatten, supreme commander of the southeast Asia command, declared recently on a flying visit here that the Burma war was going well, altho its cost was not light for the allies. He said that the original plans for the offensive in this theater were required to be recast on a less ambitious scale last year because of the requirements of carrying on the war against Germany.

There was only one interpretation of Mountbatten's statement, namely that the war against Germany had precedence over the war against Japan.

[This dispatch was released in London after it was announced that Mountbatten has returned to his southeast Asia post. At Colombo, Ceylon, it was stated that Adm. Austin Fraser had arrived by plane to assume his new post as commander of the British far eastern fleet.]

Jumps to Wrong Conclusion.

"In view of my original association with combined operations lots of people, myself included, jumped to the conclusion that large scale amphibious operations in southeast Asia would be the order of the day," Mountbatten said.

"But it need be no secret that landing ships and other assault craft originally allotted had to be withdrawn for more urgent operations in the western theater. In fact they carried troops that assaulted the Anzio beachhead and have subsequently taken part in the invasion of France."

Hard Fight In Burma.

Mountbatten emphasized that the Burma war is a hard struggle. He also asserted that "the war" is not over when Germany is defeated, reminding listeners that Japan still must be defeated. It appeared from his statement that additional troops, and supplies from this theater probably would be needed to accomplish that objective.

It has been the view of many experts here that while the overthrow of the Nipponese military regime is possible with the resources now in the hands of the allies following the fall of Germany, the time might be halved with additional aid from arms and man power from this side of the world.

Mountbatten gave this summation of the campaign's results:

The Japs have been run out of India; 50,000 of the enemy have been killed; their air force has been practically swept out of the sky, and their sea power has been steadily whittled down. For this the allies paid the price of 10,000 killed during 1944, 3,000 missing and 27,000 wounded. In addition the allies are fighting the mosquito, an enemy as deadly in many respects as the Japs, he continued. There have been 250,000 casualties from disease, mostly malaria and dysentery, he disclosed.

JAPS LAUNCH NEW SOUTH CHINA DRIVE OPPOSITE HAINAN ISLE

CHUNGKING, China, Aug. 25 (AP).—The Japanese have launched a new drive northward from the neck of the Liuchow peninsula in South China opposite Hainan Island. Heavy fighting is in progress with both sides suffering considerable losses, the Chinese command announced tonight. There was no indication whether the new drive was the beginning of a thrust on the Kwangsi province city of Liuchow, 200 miles to the northeast, a junction of the Hunan-Kwangsi and Kwangsi-Kweichow railways. Capture of Liuchow would threaten several important air bases and neutralize Kweilin, provincial capital of Kwangsi, as the key center in the defenses of South China.

In Central China fighting in the area between the Yangtze river port of Ichang and the Han river town of Chungsiang, 80 miles to the northeast, where the Chinese are engaged in diversionary operations against the Japanese, appeared to have increased in severity.

In Hunan province the Chinese continued their attacks south of Hengyang and forced the enemy in the Chekiang sector northwest of Hengyang to retreat toward the city.

RAISING OF RED FLAG STIRS NEAR RIOT IN ROME

ROME, Aug. 25 (AP).—A demonstration in celebration of the liberation of Paris before the French embassy on the Piazza Farnese today became a near riot when a demonstrator stripped an Italian monarchy flag from its staff of a nearby police station and ran up the Red flag with the hammer and sickle.

A policeman ripped down the Red flag and threw it at the crowd below. There was a rush for the building, but two allied policemen kept the people back and ordered an Italian flag without the Savoy cross and the Red flag to be flown side by side.

This calmed the crowd, which returned to singing La Marseillaise.

San Diego, Cal., Aug. 25 (AP).—Scores of persons rushed from a department store today after a siren, installed to sound the end of the European war, was short-circuited and let out a blast. Complying with an agreement of merchants to close stores on victory day, employes hurried customers from the building. Many women employes whose husbands are fighting in Europe wept with joy and departed believing their work was done for the day.

ALLIED BOMBERS SINK 5 JAP SHIPS IN CELEBES RAID

GENERAL HDQS., SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Aug. 26 [Saturday] — (AP).—Allied warplanes have set afire a Japanese cruiser and sunk five medium freighters near Celebes, Gen. MacArthur's headquarters announced today.

Skipbombing Mitchells hit the cruiser and left it sinking near Manado on Thursday. Two more merchantmen were damaged.

Forty luggers and barges also were riddled during the Celebes attack. A patrol Liberator also set fire to a 4,000 ton barge tender.

Liberators set fire to Jap installations on heavily raided Halmahera Island with 59 tons of bombs Thursday. Explosions were set off.

Attack Many Jap Islands.

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., PEARL HARBOR, T. H., Aug. 25 (AP).—American bombers, striking thruout the western Pacific, have pounded Japanese positions on more than half dozen islands in three days of aerial strikes.

Adm. Chester W. Nimitz today announced the attacks, which ranged from the Volcano islands, about 700 miles south of Tokyo, to the Marshalls, far to the southeast.

Only meager anti-aircraft fire was encountered by Liberators which attacked Iwo Island in the Volcanos Wednesday and Thursday. No enemy fighter planes were encountered.

Gun positions, storage dumps, and buildings were hit and several fires were left blazing by other bombers which attacked Pagan and Agigaan Islands in the northern Marianas on Wednesday.

Other planes raided Ponape, in the Carolines; Nauru, south of the Carolines; Wake, former American base, and Jap positions in the mid Pacific Marshalls.

Landing Reported Repulsed.

LONDON, Aug. 25 (AP). — Allied troops were repulsed in a landing attempt Thursday on the Mapia [St. David] Islands off northwestern New Guinea, the Tokyo radio said today.

CAVALRY UNIT RIDES WITH 5TH ARMY IN ITALY

ROME, Aug. 25 (AP).—Presence of the American 91st cavalry reconnaissance squadron with the 5th army in Italy was announced officially today.

The squadron, which has been fighting in Italy since Oct. 19, 1943, has been operating with an American armored organization, but on more than one occasion has fought dismounted as infantry.

One of its most notable achievements was in the Cassino sector, where it screened an armored attack up the Liri valley. The unit's total casualties thru two years of fighting in Tunisia, Sicily, and Italy were announced as 50 killed, 296 wounded, four captured, and six missing.

Much Material Abandoned by Army on Alcan Highway

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25 (AP).—The army reported today that large amounts of supplies and equipment are being abandoned along the highway to Alaska because they are not worth the cost of shipping back home.

The army report was issued after charges were made in the Canadian house of commons that army engineers were destroying serviceable materials as they closed up approximately 150 camps along the Alcan highway. Lt. Gen. Brehon Somerville sent Col. Curtis Pratt of the army service forces to investigate.

Pratt's report, the department said, disclosed that supply dumps he inspected contained "large amounts of material not worth shipping home, but none the less still serviceable."

No Method of Selling.

The salvage agreement with Canada, Pratt said, does not provide a practical method for selling such materials locally to private interests, so they have been left in Canada for final disposition.

A summary of Pratt's report made public by the war department covered these points:

1. No buildings containing supplies were burned, and there was no evidence of the burning of any property except equipment officially condemned as of no further economic use.

2. The military situation at the time of construction made the highway project a rough job, and substantial amounts of automotive and construction equipment so damaged or worn as to be unrepairable on the spot were left along the route.

[3] As construction was completed, maintenance equipment was set aside and action was started to collect all other equipment deemed valuable enough for salvage.

"It is unfortunately true that in some cases serviceable tires were not removed from abandoned construction equipment. On discovery of this fact, immediate orders were issued for removal of such tires and their shipment back to the United States."

[4] Return of surplus to the United States was limited to "critical materials and other property having value enough to justify cost of transportation." No critical materials were found in the dumps which did contain serviceable supplies.

[5] At Fort St. John and Dawson Creek, the accumulated property included "large quantities of nonrepairable clothing and stoves, ranges, and oil drums in varying states of disrepair." All parts constituting heavy scrap were returned to the United States, but light scrap was left. "Hence it is evident that reports of large dumps in the vicinity of Fort St. John and Dawson Creek had a factual basis, and the material there may appear to have considerable value in the eyes of the local inhabitants, who have a most frugal economy."

[6] "In the light of the magnitude of the work and difficult conditions of weather and terrain, the investigation indicates reasonable diligence was employed in care and utilization of equipment."

LABOR GROUP FINDS MATERIAL SHORTAGE ON FRENCH FRONTS

Acute shortages of war materials, needed by our soldiers fighting on the French battlefields, have been found to exist by six American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations representatives who are visiting these battlefields as guests of the war department. Their findings were contained in a report to the war department and forwarded to William Green, president of the AFL, who read it to the AFL council in the Drake hotel yesterday.

Listed shortages were: trucks and tractors for the movement of ammunition, weapons and other "desperately" needed supplies from the landing beaches to the front lines; heavy duty tires, heavy artillery and ammunition to use in it; 60 and 81 mm. mortar ammunition; heavy construction equipment to build roads, air fields and to rebuild ruined harbors; and medium tanks, ships and cotton duck for tents.

"Every ounce of energy and zeal must be used to speed the production of these items," stated the AFL and CIO leaders in their report. "Nothing must be allowed to interfere with this objective. We cannot let the men whose lives depend on this equipment pay the price for our quarrels at home."

16 ILLINOISANS PLAY VERSATILE ROLES IN FRANCE

HDQ., 82D AIR BORNE DIVISION, France, Aug. 25 (AP).—Versatile, as well as tough, distinctly was the word for an air borne anti-aircraft unit of the 82d air borne division during the opening phases of the Normandy campaign. In the unit were 16 Illinois men. As anti-tank gunners they accounted for 15 German tanks and they also manned machine guns as infantrymen.

Going in by glider 2½ hours before H-hour, some landed in a hail of fire. Before dawn they had a sizable battery in operation, working under heavy fire and aiding the paratroops. Illinois men in the unit included:

Staff Sgt. Norman N. Hilgemyer, Collinsville; Sgt. James. R. Carley, Galesburg; Pvt. 1st Class Raymond W. Zimdars, R. R. 2, Mason; Corp. William G. Lee, Murphysboro; Corp. Lawrence J. SHORTAGES SLOW DEFEAT OF JAPS, ADMIRAL WARNS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25.—The navy's fight against Japan in the Pacific is being handicapped by shortages of ships, ammunition, and other arms, Rear Adm. James Irish, inventory control officer for the navy, disclosed today.

Adm. Irish.

Adm. Irish, testifying before the special house committee on post-war military policy, headed by Rep. Woodrum [D., Va.], also said the navy's purchasing and programming is based on the theory the European war will extend into 1945.

Woodrum interjected that the war department had informed him about a year ago that its tentative estimate for the final defeat of Germany was Oct. 1 of this year. Adm. Irish had no comment on this statement.

Troop Carriers Needed.

The admiral told the committee, which is studying the problem of military surpluses, that altho the navy has excessive amounts of certain types of materials, the opposite is true in other lines.

"The successful prosecution of the navy's war in the Pacific," he said, "is being handicapped by failure to obtain necessary ships, such as troop carriers, refrigerating ships, and other important parts of the shipbuilding program.

"We need rockets, high capacity ammunition [projectiles made with thin walls so the capacity may be increased to make the weight of the explosives larger], and 40 millimeter guns, all of which are essential to the successful prosecution of the war. These deficiencies are not affected by the fact that in certain items of supplies we may have, at the present time, an excess.

Tells Causes of Ship Delay.

"The causes for delays in the shipbuilding program are due to inability to obtain items such as electric motors, anti-friction bearings, pumps, forgings, and castings which cut across the entire industry."

Irish told the committee the navy is making an inventory survey to determine amounts of various materials and supplies on hand at bases and supply points thruout the world.

Rep. Short [R., Mo.] remarked it is rather late to start taking an inventory.

The admiral explained that records have been kept of important items, but that a complete inventory has not been taken since the war. He said the navy would have a complete accounting of all supplies by Dec. 31.

SLAYING, SUICIDE INQUEST IS TODAY.

A double inquest will be held in the County morgue today into the fatal shooting of Mrs. Vera Janitis, 31, of 734 W. 31st st., by Charles Hoffman, 55, of 1924 S. Avers av., father of 10 children, who then killed himself.

ROME'S EX-POLICE CHIEF ACCUSED OF BETRAYING HOSTAGES

ROME, Aug. 25 (AP).—Pietro Caruso, Rome police chief under the Fascists, will be tried on a charge of violating extra-territorial rights in entering the Church of Saint Paul Fuori le Mura [outside the Vatican wall] last spring to arrest Italian officers and others who sought refuge there.

This was disclosed today in a list of charges against Caruso submitted to the high court of justice by the high commissioner for punishment of Fascist crimes.

He also is accused of delivering to the Germans 50 hostages who were among 350 executed last March in the catacombs of St. Callixtus.

DIG FOR BULLETS TO SOLVE DRAKE DEATH MYSTERY

father's ownership of the Iver-Johnson the history of the gun as related to THE TRIBUNE by Brown, was unconfirmed before 1933—the year Haffner said it was stolen.

Two Others Recall Gun.

In addition to the verification by Deputy Gwin's son, a reporter for THE TRIBUNE last night found two persons in Charleston who knew of the gun.

John R. Scott, a special agent for the Nickel Plate railroad, said Deputy Gwin owned an Iver-Johnson revolver of "exactly the same type" as the Drake murder gun. Scott examined pictures of the gun printed in THE TRIBUNE. He said, "I would say this looks like Gwin's revolver, but I would want to see the gun itself before being positive."

Scott was a deputy sheriff and county jailer of Coles county from 1924 to 1928. He frequently saw Gwin's revolver and he recalled that Gwin carried it in a holster.

Former Deputy Gwin's sister, Mrs. Joseph Bailes, also said that Gwin had owned an Iver-Johnson. "He always referred to the gun as 'my Iver-Johnson,'" said Mrs. Bailes.

Seek Bullets Near Normal.

In 1933 Brown said he ran a speakeasy on state highway No. 2 five miles north of Normal. More than once, he said, he traded guns, sometimes taking them in payment for liquor. He said Andrews, the stickup man, was eager to get rid of an Iver-Johnson because its cylinder mechanism was faulty. As a test Brown took it outside the barroom to a barn a hundred feet away and fired a dozen shots into the ground.

It was these bullets Chicago policemen sought with pick and shovel last night until darkness stopped them. They were dismayed by the size of the area to be worked, a strip 18 inches wide, 60 feet long, and 6 inches deep into hard clay and gravel.

They had received these directions from Brown as they stopped at the prison on the way down. After an hour and a half of digging they decided the job might run two or three days and it would be helpful to have Brown present.

Asks Convict Be Sent Today.

Wilson, the ballistics expert who, with Sgt. John Mangin, headed the expedition, telephoned to ask permission to have the convict sent down today to help locate the bullet area.

Valanis' denial of Brown's story was put to the test of the lie detector yesterday. He was questioned for an hour and a half, but the results were kept secret. His sisters, who were investigated immediately after the murder, were not included in the inquiry yesterday.

Valanis has been a gun trader, picking weapons up one at a time wherever he could find them and selling them as he found buyers. Five years ago he lent a small automatic pictol to his sister, Ellen, who carried it to Park Ridge and tried to hold up a dress shop.

How Convict Identifies Gun.

In brief, the newly acquired importance of the revolver is this:

It has been scientifically identified by the police as the weapon used to kill Mrs. Williams, discarded, presumably, by the slayer in flight down the hotel service stairway.

Brown has sworn to the police and state's attorney's office that he recognized it by one defective chamber and several nicks on the barrel as a gun of that make and caliber he had in 1933.

Brown was questioned at the prison early yesterday by T. P. Sullivan, director of the state department of public safety; Wilbert F. Crowley, first assistant state's attorney; Walter Storms, chief of detectives; Phil Breitzke, chief of the homicide squad, and Warden Ragen.

A Gunman Talks of Guns.

In telling his story of getting the gun from Ollie Andrews and passing it on to Valanis, Brown was a gunman talking about guns and his knowledge of and fondness for them, in the opinion of officers who heard him, added value to his account. Some of the questions put to him and his answers follow:

Q.—How do you identify this Iver-Johnson gun which you have recently seen as the same Iver-Johnson gun which you had 11 years ago?

A.—The gun was brought to me originally by Ollie Andrews, who asked me to trade him another gun for that gun and the difference in cash. I asked him what was the matter with the gun and he told me it misfired. So I asked him to let me see the gun. He gave me the gun to look at. I took the gun, broke it down, and noticed immediately that the ratchet on the back of the cylinder was chewed up and that the revolving dog was snipped off on the. I said, "Well, we will try it out." I put some shells in the gun, took it out in the yard back of the barn, firing it on the ground.

Tells Place of Test Firing.

Q.—At what address? A.—Route 2, north of Bloomington.

Q.—Any more specific address? A.—Well, right north of Hudson Township line, at the Harden inn.

Q.—Is that where your place of business was? A.—That is where it was.

The convict then told of seeing the gun next time in Chicago on a trip he made with Andrews. The examination continued:

Q.—Did he tell you it was the same gun? A.—No, there was no occasion for him to.

Q.—How did you recognize it? A.—On the side of the frame where it is now badly chewed up, the pins had been previously knocked out and replaced. There were punch marks around those pins there in a semi-circle. Now it is in worse shape than it was. It had been worked on then.

Cites Identifying Marks.

Q.—You do now recognize it as the same gun? A.—I am convinced it is the gun. Under the trigger guard it is battered up. Under there those marks are still on the gun.

Q.—Did Andrews tell you where he got the gun? A.—Never told me where he got it.

Q.—Did you ever learn? A.—I only supposed.

Q.—What did you suppose? A.—I supposed he got it in a robbery.

Q.—What made you suppose that? A.—I picked up the paper, read where a certain drug store was robbed I knew quite well. I noticed in the paper guns had been missed in this robbery. It was the next day he brought the gun to me, asking me to trade it.

Q.—Where was this? A.—At Bloomington.

Tells Other Sales to Valanis.

Q.—Did you know of your own knowledge that Andrews was in the stickup? A.—I was convinced he was, yes.

Q.—Had you and he ever engaged in any stickups? A.—I cannot say on that.

Brown told the prosecutor about selling two other guns and giving one, an automatic, to Valanis. He remarked that he thought one of the guns might come in handy for his own use, so he hadn't sold it before he went to Valanis' home. He was asked which one he thought might come in handy.

A.—I think it was the Iver-Johnson because it is a heavier gun, but if I remember right it was the gun I kept.

Q.—You mean you kept the Iver-Johnson? A.—I think I did.

Tells of Hasty Departure.

Q.—To the best of your recollection you did not sell the Iver-Johnson? A.—Yes, I would say I don't believe I sold that gun.

Q.—Your next best recollection about the Iver-Johnson was when you put it in the drawer at Valanis'? A.—Don't say Iver-Johnsons — say guns.

Q.—Do you have any recollection of taking three guns out of the house with you after you left them in the drawer? A.—No, I don't, because I went out in a hurry.

Q.—Did Adolph [Valanis] know something about guns? A.—Well, he was a gun collector and knew them pretty well."

Crowley and Chief of Detectives Walter Storms were unable to break down the convict's story.

Thus the problem on which scientific experts went to work yesterday was to determine whether the revolver used to kill Mrs. Williams was the one Brown had in his roadhouse and previously stolen from the druggist. Ballistics tests of bullets fired from the murder gun and by the .32 caliber Iver-Johnson owned by the druggist were relied on to prove the scientific link between the gun Brown said he left at the Valanis home, and the gun used by the killer of Mrs. Williams.

Another possibility of finding a bullet fired from that revolver was suggested by the Bloomington druggist, Carl Haffner, who ran a drug store in Charleston, Ill., at the time he acquired the gun, about 1926. It was discharged accidentally on two occasions, he said, and he believes the bullets are still in the store wall.

PATRICIA GOODBODY TELLS GRATIFICATION OVER TRACING OF GUN

Mrs. Patricia Goodbody, daughter of the murdered Mrs. Frank Starr Williams, yesterday expressed gratification that the gun used to kill her mother had been traced.

"It is a most interesting development," she said. "I hope it leads to the solution of the murder.

"And while I'm talking, I want to thank THE TRIBUNE for all it has done to keep the case open and solve it."

Mrs. Goodbody was asked whether, in the light of the new development, she could recall any more specifically any details of the woman assailant who fired first on her and then on her mother the evening of Jan. 19. Heretofore she had recalled only that the woman, who burst out from behind a bathroom door, wore a black Persian lamb coat and "something red in her hair or at her neck."

"No," she said thoughtfully. "I've said all along I couldn't identify her. I couldn't point a finger and say: 'That's the woman!' All I had was that one fleeting glimpse before she fired at me. I was terrified. Then I ducked."

BENZ IS WINNER OVER VAUDREUIL BY 241 BALLOTS

Madison, Wis., Aug. 25—[Special].—Alexander O. Benz, Appleton fraternal insurance official, won the Progressive nomination for governor in the Aug. 15 primary, the Associated Press reported today after it had completed an unofficial tabulation of canvass board figures from all of the state's 71 counties. The tabulation showed Benz received 9,448 votes and Leo Vaudreuil of Kenosha, his nearest competitor, got 9,207, 241 fewer than Benz.

Benz is assured of being listed as a Progressive candidate on the November ballots because he and the other three gubernatorial aspirants collected well above the 23,602 total vote required by state law to qualify him for such designation.

When informed that the Associated Press tally also showed he would get on the ballot as the Progressive candidate for United States senator, Rep. Harry Sauthoff accepted the figures as "probably correct" and said he would wage a "vigorous campaign." The tally showed Sauthoff received 23,559 votes, or 43 less than the minimum required, but that there were more than enough "write-in" votes to overcome the deficit.

HEMP FIRE SET BY U. S. DESTROYS SUPPLY FOR WAR

Polo, Ill., Aug. 25 [Special].—Four acres of government owned hemp were destroyed today when fire in spoiled hemp being burned by the government spread to near-by stacks of good stock at the Hemp Industries, Inc., plant a mile south of here.

Fire Chief Basil Rinard estimated the loss at $3,000 but plant officials refused to confirm the figure. Plant employes who helped combat the fire said approximately 15 per cent of last year's total crop was destroyed. Fire fighters were hampered by lack of water.

It was learned the fire broke away from workers shortly before plant officials were ordered by the head office in Chicago to stop destroying the hemp, which was said to have spoiled because of improper stacking. Disclosure was made in yesterday's edition of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE that the spoiled hemp was being burned. Plant employes estimated 3,100 tons of hemp, for which the government paid between $30 and $50 a ton, had been lost by spoilage.

WHISTLE BLAST STIRS UP FALSE PEACE RUMORS

Englewood police were beseiged by telephone calls last night after a factory or train whistle sounded for 15 minutes.

Sgt. James Lockington, who was on duty, said he received more than 50 calls, including such questions as:

"Is the war over?"

"Has gas rationing ended?"

"Has something happened to Eleanor?"

Sgt. Lockington said the whistle sounded "more like a train than a factory."

Lawyers Sue for $5,000 on Settling Landis Rift

Irving Eisenman and Harold Epstein, attorneys, filed suit in Municipal court yesterday against Mr. and Mrs. John Landis, 5454 South Shore dr., for $5,000, which they claimed Landis promised to pay them for helping him become reconciled with his wife, Rosamond, 40. Mrs. Landis started a separate maintenance action in May, charging Landis, 42, with cruelty. Her suit was dropped. Landis is former president of the Coffee Corporation of America, 251 E. Grand av.

Holdup Men Get Coupons for 40,000 Gallons of Gas

Two robbers, one carrying a gun, yesterday escaped with $75 and ration coupons good for 40,000 gallons of gasoline after threatening C. W. Denny, 1049 E. 78th st., and R. M. Patterson, 9854 S. Seeley av., employes in a branch office of the Sinclair Refining company at 1047 W. 95th st.

VALANIS DENIES GUN OWNERSHIP AFTER LIE TEST

BY JAMES GAVIN.

Policeman Adolph A. Valanis sat with a Tribune reporter at a coffee counter a few minutes after taking a lie detector test in the Central police building at 1121 S. State st. yesterday, and steadily denied that Walter Brown, a lifer in Stateville penitentiary, gave him the .38 caliber Iver-Johnson revolver that was used in the Drake hotel murder.

Sister Key Clerk at Drake.

"A man that sits in the pen with his chin in his hand for 11 years is liable to say anything," Valanis said. Valanis, 35, and Brown were boys together in an orphanage in Normal, Ill. Brown, who was convicted of murder in 1933, said he put the weapon in his friend Valanis's home early that year.

Valanis is a brother of Mrs. Ellen Bennett, who was a key clerk at the Drake at the time Mrs. Adele Born Williams was murdered. Ellen attempted a dress shop holdup in 1939 in Park Ridge and in it carried a gun lent to her by her brother, who in turn had got the gun from his friend Brown.

"Do you think your sisters had anything to do with the murder?"

"I don't know," Valanis said. "They seem to be the principals in it now, from what I gather. I love my sisters."

Never Saw Gun, He Says.

Valanis is a tall man and weighs 160 pounds. He has a thin red mustache and bushy dark hair, and he never smiled during the interview. Chief Walter Storms was there for a time, but left. Valanis appeared eager to follow him out. "The chief might want me," he said. Valanis joined the force last December, and only recently completed his probation period.

Valanis said Brown had not left the gun at his house; that he never had seen it. He admitted Brown had given him another gun. This was the weapon used by Ellen Bennett in the holdup she tried.

"But Brown can't put that Drake gun in my hand!" Valanis said.

"If it is proved that Brown had the Drake gun, and he says he left it at your house, how would you say it got to the hotel?"

"I never had it."

"If you gave it to your sister, would you tell?"

"Yes."

"She was acquitted."

"One has a bad reputation on the coast," the reporter said.

"That's only hearsay," said Valanis. "I live in my own world. I don't care what people think about me."

"Your wife has warned you to stay away from your sisters, hasn't she?"

"What sisters-in-law do get along together?" Valanis replied. "Very few. Everybody has a skeleton in the closet."

Valanis admitted he visited his friend Brown in Stateville in 1940 by posing as the convict's cousin. He said Brown had written him to say that to get in. He said he took Brown cigarets and sweets.

"Why would Brown say he gave that gun to you?" the reporter asked. "He holds no ill will toward you."

"I can't fathom that out, except he's getting a holiday. He's getting out of the penitentiary, isn't he, and getting a trip to Bloomington?"

HERRIOT, FORMER FRENCH LEADER, REPORTED ALIVE

LISBON, Portugal, Aug. 25 (AP).—Jules Sauerwein, French newspaperman who fled Paris just before patriot attacks started against the German occupying forces, said today Edouard Herriot, 72, former president of the chamber of deputies, was alive. There had been repeated reports that the famous pre-war statesman had died or been assassinated.

Sauerwein said in an interview he had seen most of the pre-war leaders of France in the last few weeks.

"When I last saw Herriot he was living in a cottage between Nancy and Chalons-sur-marne under the care of a German doctor," Sauerwein said.

RUBBER CHIEF BLASTS NELSON; CHARGES SNIPING

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25 (AP).—Another angry storm broke about the head of WPB Chairman Nelson tonight soon after he left for China with his agency still seething from the row which led to the resignation yesterday of Charles E. Wilson as vice chairman.

Rubber Director Dewey issued a statement accusing Nelson of "typical Washington sniping" in comment on the rubber program.

Dewey declared it was the same sort of "sniping" that led to Wilson's resignation "and made many good Americans unwilling to give services that otherwise would be of value to the country in the conduct of the war."

Nelson Testimony Cited.

Dewey referred to Nelson's testimony to the senate war investigating committee, given last week and made public yesterday. The senate committee asked Nelson about Dewey's recent announcement that the rubber program was completed and that he [Dewey] would resign Sept. 1.

"It was completed, all but getting the tires," Nelson commented.

"Then you don't agree that the job was completed?" asked Rudolph Halley, committee counsel.

Denies Saying Job Is Done.

In his statement Dewey asserted he never had said the job of providing tires was done, "but simply that the synthetic rubber plants are turning out more rubber than was being consumed currently."

"The problems of providing man power and tire cords no longer require the broad special powers of the rubber director," Dewey said.

"They are of no value to the problem of manning the plants and providing the much needed tires. By Presidential directive these were and are the responsibilities of the WPB and of the war man power commission."

Long, long trail...

MRS. BENNETT'S ANSWERS GIVEN IN DRAKE INQUIRY

Admits Being in Hotel at Time of Slaying.

Patrolman Adolph Valanis, to whom a convict, Walter Brown, says he gave a gun which has been identified as the weapon used in the slaying of Mrs. Adele Born Williams in the Drake hotel, has a sister, Ellen Valanis Bennett Larksworthy Welch, alias Hix, alias Murphy. She was a key clerk in the Drake at the time of slaying. She had previously been convicted of an attempted stickup.

Shortly after the murder Ellen was questioned by First Assistant State's Atty. Wilbert F. Crowley.

Q.—How old are you? A.—41.

Q.—How long? A.—14 months, about.

Didn't Know Victim by Name.

Q.—What are your duties? A.—My duties are to hand the guests their keys, their telegrams, take care of the registered mail, insured packages, and give any information which they want in regard to rooms or entertainment.

Q.—Would you be called an information clerk? A.—Yes.

Q.—What is your salary? A.—$110 a month and a meal a day.

Q.—Did you know a woman named Williams, who was a guest at the hotel? A.—I do not know how to answer that because I did not know her.

Q.—Did you know her to see her? A.—I knew her to see her, but not by the name of Williams.

Q.—What name did you know her by? A.—I just knew her, just as a woman that came to the counter for information. I did not know that her name was Williams until after the shooting.

Q.—You did live at the Drake hotel yourself for a time? A.—Yes.

Admits Living with Murphy.

Q.—Did you live with Mr. Patrick Murphy? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you use the name Murphy? A.—I did. We had planned on being married. As a matter of fact, we were going to get married this month.

Q.—But you were not married to Mr. Murphy? A.—No, sir.

Q.—How long did you live with Mr. Murphy? A.—Since about Oct. 5.

Q.—Of 1943? A.—1943.

Q.—Did you occupy his room constantly as your place of abode? A.—That is right.

Q.—From time to time did you have occasion to go home to your mother's place? A.—Now and then, yes. At least once a week.

Q.—You were known in the hotel as Mrs. Murphy, were you? A.—That is right.

Reviews Afternoon of Slaying.

Q.—What hours did you work on Wednesday, Jan. 19, 1944? That is the day that Mrs. Williams was shot. A.—7 o'clock in the morning until 3 in the afternoon.

Q.—Will you tell us how you spent your time after 3 p. m.? A.—Yes. I went upstairs, cleaned my face, washed my hands, put on my hat and coat and went downtown to Marshall Field. I took the bus down. Just did some mental shopping around in the picture frame department and household department.

Q.—What were you looking for? A.—Mops and pots and pans, different articles.

Q.—For whose home? A.—My mother's home.

Q.—Did you purchase anything? A.—No, I did not.

Q.—Do you remember what time you got home to your hotel? A.—Approximately 6 o'clock—in thru there, between 5:30 and 6—a quarter of 6.

Q.—Where did you go? A.—I went directly to my room.

Awaits "Husband's" Phone Call.

Q.—How long did you remain there? A.—I remained there until my husband telephoned me—until Mr. Murphy telephoned me to meet him at the Ranch [a restaurant].

Q.—Did you expect this call? A.—Yes.

Q.—Had he told you he was going to call? A.—Yes. He always called.

Q.—What time did he call you? A.—He called me around 6, 6:05 or 6:10, in thru there.

Q.—What time did you leave the Ranch? A.—Around 9 o'clock. I remember it was 9 o'clock because I asked. We thought we might see the movie across the street, the Esquire movie, and I happened to inquire what time it was, and I do not remember if it was Mr. Murphy or Mr. Thulis said it was 9 o'clock. I said, "I think that is too late." In the meantime Mr. Thulis was trying to persuade us to go to some night club that just opened up. I said, "If it is too late to go to the movie, it is much too late to go to the night club," and I did not particularly want Mr. Murphy to have anything to drink because he had a very important engagement the next morning. I did not want him to stay out late, too, and I had to get up early, 6 o'clock, to be on the job out there. So we went on home to the Drake hotel.

Finds Excitement on Return.

Q.—What time did you get to the Drake hotel? A.—I imagine around 9:15, 9:20, in thru there. We stood on the sidewalk there in front of the Ranch and talked a while—Mr. Thulis and Mr. Murphy and I.

Q.—Will you tell us what happened after you got to the hotel? A.—After we got to the hotel every one seemed to be talking, seemed to be a lot of commotion in the air, and when we got in the elevator the elevator boy said—if I remember correctly, I said, "Good evening, how is everything?" He said, "All right." He said there was a lot of excitement. I said, "What is the trouble?" He said, "Well, some one was murdered," a woman shot or something to that effect.

Q.—As a clerk in the hotel you have access to the keys to the various rooms, haven't you? A.—Yes.

Never in Room 836.

Q.—Is there more than one key for each room? A.—Yes.

Q.—Do you know where room 836 is located in that hotel? A.—No, I don't.

Q.—Have you ever been in that room? A.—No, I never have.

Q.—Were you in that room on Jan. 19, 1944? A.—No, sir, I have never been in that room.

Q.—Did you go to the room for the purpose of taking anything belonging to Mrs. Williams? A.—No, sir, I have never been in that room.

Q.—You would be in a position to get a key for that room, wouldn't you? A.—Any one would. Even the bellboys would, even the housemen would, even the maids would, the room clerks.

Q.—Now, you do own a Persian lamb coat, don't you. A.—Yes, I do.

Q.—How long have you owned that coat? A.—Two years.

Q.—Do you have any hats with any red decorations? A.—No. I cannot wear decorations because of my coloring. I don't.

Q.—Do you ever wear any wigs? A.—No, sir, I do not.

Q.—Do you now own a wig? A.—No, sir, I do not.

Q.—Did you own a gun? A.—No, sir. I never have owned a gun.

Q.—As I told you last night, we have information from an employe of the hotel that he saw you coming down from the upper floors in a hurry. A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—At the time of the shooting, I told you that last night. A.—That is right, you see, but there is no truth in it. I was not above my floor that night or any other night. I was not. If he says it is me, then he is wrong, either that or he is mistaken. Some one else but me, but it certainly was not me. It was not.

Q.—How tall are you? A.—About five feet two.

Q.—How much do you weigh? A.—132. I was weighed this morning.

Q.—How long have you owned that Persian lamb coat? A.—Two years.

Q.—Did you have it with you on Jan. 19? A.—I don't quite remember whether I wore this coat to the Ranch or not.

Q.—Did you see Mrs. Williams on Jan. 19? A.—I am not sure that that was the date that one of the officers told me. I told him the last time I saw her was when she was crossing the lobby with what looked like an overnight bag in her hand. I said, "Are you leaving us?" She said no. She said: "This is my radio. I am taking it to have repaired."

Denies Owning Red Scarf.

Q.—Do you own any red scarfs? A.—No, sir, I don't.

Q.—Do you have a sister named Anna Valanis? A.—Yes, I have.

Q.—Anna has been in trouble for prowling hotels, hasn't she? You knew that? A.—I knew that.

Q.—Was Anna in the Drake hotel at any time on the 19th? A.—No, sir, she was not. She was at home. She had my sister and my mother to verify that she did not leave the house all day.

Q.—You took a lie detector test last night, didn't you? A.—Yes.

Q.—You took that test voluntarily? A.—Yes.

Q.—They told you in regard to some of the questions that were asked of you that it indicated you were not telling the truth? A.—That is right.

Q.—You have had the unfortunate experience of being charged with offenses before? A.—That is right.

Q.—You have a sister who has engaged in that occupation of prowling rooms? A.—No, sir, she has not engaged in that.

Sister Wouldn't Prowl if Sober.

Q.—I said she has done room prowling, I say? A.—She has and she has been so disgustingly drunk she did not know what she was up to. If she was sober she would not have done it.

Q.—You have a Persian lamb coat? A.—Yes, we both have.

Q.—An employee who knows you says he saw you hurrying down from the upper floors at the time of the shooting. A.—With a wig on?

Q.—No. A.—He could not possibly have seen me, Mr. Crowley. I was not there. He could not have seen me. I just was not there.

Q.—The man saw you on the stairway that is used only by employes of the hotel, the service stairway. A.—That, of course, I cannot help. I do not know anything about that.

Q.—You were in the hotel at or about the hour of the shooting. A.—Unfortunately, yes.

Q.—You said you did shop for mops that day. Did you subsequently buy some mops. A.—No, not downtown. I bought some after that.

"They're candy bars. One is called 'Farewell to Love' and the other 'I Adore You.' They both have chocolate filling and lots of peaputs."

HAIL COOPER'S IDEA FOR DISSEMINATION OF TRUTHFUL NEWS

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 25 (AP).—The newspaper La Nacion today hailed an article in "Free World" by Kent Cooper, executive director and general manager of the Associated Press, which urged measures to assure truthful news to the peoples of all countries.

La Nacion declared in an editorial that the article represents "more than a purely professional necessity," and expressed hope Cooper's suggestions would be adopted.

His suggested guarantees for freedom in all countries to get, send, and publish the news are needed to assure an orderly world and for the good of humanity, La Nacion said, adding that healthy morale requires "a system of liberty of news which is essential to guarantee liberty to think and to judge events."

BUROCRATS GRAB WPB HELM FOR CONVERSION JOB

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25.—President Roosevelt today clearly indicated that the war production board is being taken out of the hands of the business men, who directed the most tremendous war materials program in history, and is being turned over to New Deal burocrats to plot the vital problems of post-war reconversion.

Lt. Comdr. Krug.

As WPB Chairman Nelson left the capital on the first lap of a mission to China, Mr. Roosevelt told a press conference he did not know whether the former executive vice president of Sears, Roebuck & Co. will return to his federal post, explaining it is difficult to say what is going to happen in the future.

Krug Vows a "New Deal."

This hint that Nelson is thru was driven home when the chief executive called Lt. Comdr. Julius Albert Krug, 36 year old New Deal zealot, whom he designated last night as acting WPB chairman, to the White House for a lengthy conference on how the WPB should be run.

It is expected Krug will rally a group of New Deal friends around him when he starts running the WPB, a view which was given force when he conferred later today with vice chairmen of the agency and announced he was "starting a new deal from here on out" and that he intended to "kill any sniping" right away.

He said none of the vice chairmen had asked to resign, but added he would not be "a bit surprised" if they did. Asked whether he had been given authority to clean house if he saw fit, Krug replied: "What is the authority of the chairman?—to run the WPB, and that includes hiring and firing."

Executes Swift About Face.

In stating he did not know whether Nelson will resume his duties on his return, Mr. Roosevelt was seen as executing a swift about face on his White House statement Monday in which he denied that Nelson's assignment meant any change in WPB policies or in Nelson's standing.

In Monday's statement Mr. Roosevelt emphasized the importance of Nelson's mission with Maj. Gen. Patrick J. Hurley, secretary of war in the Hoover administration, and said curtly those who charged Nelson is being "kicked in the teeth" are wrong. Today Mr. Roosevelt reiterated the mission is important, but dismissed questions as to what is going to happen in the future as "iffy." He said again he did not know when Nelson will return to his duties.

Attacks Charged by Wilson.

The casting of doubts on Nelson's future was regarded thruout the capitol as having been provoked by Presidential anger over the disclosure of serious dissension within the WPB high command thru the stormy resignation yesterday of Charles E. Wilson, WPB executive vice president, who had previously been named acting chairman in Nelson's absence.

In a surprise letter of resignation Wilson charged that since his temporary designation Saturday attacks against him for alleged obstruction of reconversion had been renewed by members of Nelson's staff. He said he had complained to Nelson against the attacks and that the WPB chairman had done nothing except to disclaim responsibility for them.

Mr. Roosevelt accepted the resignation with regret, acknowledging he was aware of dissension within the WPB but saying he had hoped it would disappear. As the White House announced the resignation of the man who was called in to break the bottlenecks of plane and ship production, Wilson and Nelson appeared before a WPB staff meeting and exchanged compliments.

A further harmony buildup came from the senate war investigating committee with the issuance of a statement after Wilson appeared before a closed committee session. The statement said the committee was satisfied there were no differences between Wilson and Nelson.

Harmony Picture Shattered.

The harmony picture was shattered when Wilson charged at an hour long press conference that Nelson had failed to keep promises to vindicate Wilson of the charges of obstruction and assailed Nelson for delaying reconversion by pursuing a policy of putting things off until tomorrow.

After the explosion of the harmony atmosphere the White House called on Krug to take over the WPB and run it during Nelson's absence. It was reported the President's anger was divided equally between Wilson and Nelson.

Graduate of Wisconsin U.

Krug was born in Madison, Wis., Nov. 23, 1907, and was graduated from the University of Wisconsin in 1929. He went to work for Lilienthal on the Wisconsin public service commission in 1932. In 1936 he was a public utilities expert for the federal communications commission and in 1937 he became technical director of the Kentucky public service commission.

In 1938 Lilienthal brought him to the TVA as chief power engineer. He was then 31 years old. In 1941 he became chief power consultant for the office of production management. When the latter became the WPB Krug became director of priorities and later program vice chairman.

Last April, when the draft was breathing hard down his neck, Krug requested no draft deferment be sought for him and the WPB announced he had "accepted" a commission in the navy as lieutenant commander. He recently returned to the capital from Normandy.

DORIS DUKE GRANTED POWER TO SUBPENA CROMWELL FOR QUIZ

New York, Aug. 25 [Special].—Supreme Court Justice Thomas A. Aurelio today opened the way for Doris Duke Cromwell to subpena Frank Cadwell and James H. R. Cromwell—her husband in New Jersey and ex-husband in 47 states—to testify in connection with her Nevada suit for divorce.

The tobacco heiress won a divorce in Reno last December but in June the New Jersey Chancery court, on motion of Cromwell, declared the decree void on the ground she was not a bona fide resident of Nevada. She reopened the Reno action to submit additional evidence she was a Nevada resident and had asked the Supreme court here to permit her to take a deposition from Cadwell, a Fifth av. apartment doorman.

Aurelio ruled Mrs. Cromwell could take a deposition from Cadwell, who testified in Cromwell's New Jersey suit he had seen her in New York when she was supposed to be establishing residence in Nevada. The ruling makes it possible for her to call Cromwell, who is a former United States minister to Canada, his socially prominent mother, Mrs. E. T. Stotesbury of Philadelphia, Pa., and more than 100 other witnesses if necessary to make her Reno divorce valid.

F. D. R. Jaunt a 'Morale Builder,' Asserts Chinese

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25 [Special].—Dr. H. H. Kung, Chinese minister of finance, told reporters today, after leaving the White House, that President Roosevelt's recent trip to the Pacific was "a morale builder" for troops stationed there. Dr. Kung delivered another of a series of messages from Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek to the President, but declined to comment on its contents.

7 YANKS REACH NEW CLINIC TO BE FITTED WITH ARTIFICIAL LEGS

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 25 [Special].—Seven Americans who lost legs in the invasion of France have arrived at the Naval hospital—the first invasion casualties to be treated at the new artificial limb clinic—the 4th naval district said today. None of the seven was from the Chicagoland area.

The limb clinic, opened in June to manufacture and fit artificial arms, legs, and hands for wounded service men, cost the navy $45,000 and is one of two such navy clinics in the country. The other is at Mare Island, Cal.

The seven men — one of whom lost both legs—and others to follow will be fitted with plastic limbs made by expert makers of artificial limbs and will be taught by physicians how to operate them before returning to civilian life. The limbs are custom made for each individual and fitted and adjusted over several weeks. While at the clinic the men are quartered in the navy yard hospital.

INTOLERANCE HIT AS NEGRO ELKS END CONVENTION

The Improved Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks of the World, the largest Negro fraternal organization, deplored "multiplying instances of anti-Negro intolerance, official and unofficial," in resolutions adopted yesterday upon adjournment of its 45th annual convention, held in Forum hall, 43d st. and Calumet av.

In what was described as indirect criticism of Democratic leaders, the nonpartisan grand lodge called for repeal of the poll tax as a prerequisite for voting in some southern states.

"If our rights are inalienable they must be recognized now, not in an indefinite, fast approaching post-war future," the resolutions said. "We are unalterably opposed to flagrant jimcrowism and all other discriminations against black defenders of our nation's life and honor, and in defiance of our Supreme court. It tends to weaken our country on the producing line and firing line."

Tavern Owner's Husband Held for Knifing Patron

EVE BITES AN APPLE AND ADAMS FALLS IN DIVORCE COURT

Lipstick on an apple core figured yesterday in the testimony of Mrs. Frances K. Adams, 45, of 1400 Lake Shore dr., when she was granted a divorce by Superior Judge John A. Sbarbara from A. E. Adams on grounds of misconduct.

Mrs. Adams testified that when her husband, a wealthy operator of a live stock feeding yard in Sycamore, De Kalb county, went to Kansas City, Mo., on a "business trip" last May 2, she followed on a later train with a lawyer. She registered in a room of the hotel where her husband stopped and hired an investigator to watch his room.

He advised Mrs. Adams to investigate when a boy removed a dinner tray from the room. On it was an apple core bearing lipstick stains.

She said she entered the room and found her husband unclothed and a woman in the closet. Mrs. Adams won the divorce and Adams divided his $100,000 assets with her.

F. D. R. ADMITS HE ASKED WILLKIE TO POLICY TALK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25.—President Roosevelt today acknowledged he has invited Wendell Willkie, 1940 Republican Presidential candidate, to confer with him on foreign policy.

In the admission at his press conference the chief executive completely reversed himself. Last Friday he told reporters he did not know anything about reports that he had extended an invitation to Willkie. He said it sounded like a silly New York story and that he was not in the White House just to answer silly stories made up by newspapers.

Intended to Soothe Willkie.

Later it leaked out of the White House that the President regretted the denial because it reportedly offended Willkie, who has not yet pledged support to the Republican ticket. Today's acknowledgement of the invitation was calculated to sooth Willkie's wounded feelings.

Today Mr. Roosevelt was asked if he had been in communication with Willkie. He readily acknowledged he had been in touch with Willkie privately.

Asked if he intended to see Willkie soon, Mr. Roosevelt said no date has been set. He added without explanation that he sees a lot of people privately.

Willkie Awaits "Command."

In New York Willkie revealed the President had written him asking for a conference. He intimated that he would accept the invitation only if it were a command.

"I would much prefer that no such conference occur until after the election," he said, "but if the President of the United States wishes to see me sooner, I shall of course comply."

GROUP OUT TO ENLIST MORE BUSINESS MEN TO WORK PRECINCTS

Another attempt to arouse business men to the necessity for getting into the precinct work of politics will be made by leaders of the Business Men's committee at a luncheon in the Hotel Sherman Monday. The B. M. C. is concentrating all of its efforts this year in five Chicago congressional districts where results could produce a Republican house of representatives.

Sewell L. Avery, Douglas Stuart, and A. W. Harris signed the letter urging business men to come to the rally. Talks will be made by Rep. Busbey of the 3d district, No. 1 on the purge list of the CIO political action committee; Henry Pope Jr., founder of the B. M. C. in 1940, and Fred Gillies, steel plant superintendent.

"The B. M. C. offers the biggest bargain in politics—a real chance to help effectively to return our government to the American system," said Frank Durham, B. M. C. vice chairman in charge of man power. "Our greatest need is not money but men willing to share the rich experience of doing the work that counts right in the precincts."

GERMANS GIVE ARMY 2 MONTHS, SWEDES REPORT

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Aug. 25 (AP). — Many Germans now give the German army only two more months in the struggle with allied troops, but believe Nazi last ditch fighters will drag the reich thru chaos for months after that, the Morgontidningen said today.

The newspaper quoted two Swedes newly returned from Berlin.

Another Swede, an engineer who lived in Stettin and Berlin for the last year, said Berliners called the collapse of the Germans around Paris and the capitulation of Romania the "beginning of the end," and openly expressed the hope for peace before winter.

When War Came We Had All of These:

...but the Enemy had the RUBBER

The Japanese conquest of the world's largest natural rubber producing centers produced a grave crisis in America's war effort.

America's rubber chemists knew how to make it. But... the most practical process at the time required huge amounts of alcohol... far beyond the already overtaxed productive capacity of industrial alcohol plants.

Fortunately the beverage distilling industry was in existence in this country with 125 distilleries and a capacity of nearly 250,000,000 gallons annually.

Beverage distillers stopped making whiskey overnight... converted 100% to the manufacture of industrial alcohol. Soon millions of gallons of this vital ingredient were flowing into synthetic rubber plants.

The rest is history.

Synthetic rubber production today is ample to meet our needs for essential civilian and war rubber goods... this emergency no longer exists.

Thank you for your patience!

America's beverage distillers are fully aware of the inconveniences you encountered during the 22 months when not a drop of whiskey was made in this country. For your extreme patience and understanding during this period, they express their sincere thanks and appreciation.

Conference of Alcoholic Beverage Industries, Inc. CAIB

CRISIS IN 1942

"If we fail to secure quickly a large new rubber supply our war effort and our domestic economy both will collapse."
—Baruch Report, Sept. 11, 1942

ACHIEVEMENT IN 1944

"A synthetic rubber industry has been established and is in complete operation. It is providing the nation with an ample supply of rubber."
—Bradley Dewey, Rubber Director, July 25, 1944

TRIBUTE

Commenting on the beverage distilling industry's contribution, a high W.P.B. official said on April 13, 1944...

1. "...it is fair to regard the rubber manufactured to date, as being almost solely the product of the beverage distilling industry."
2. "...synthetic rubber is from 6 to 9 months ahead of where it could have been if alcohol had not been available for butadiene production."
3. "...an almost unparalleled example of the overnight conversion of an entire industry from peace to war."
—Dr. Walter G. Whitman

DULLES REJECTS GLOBAL LEAGUE GAG ON DEWEY

Wants Full Discussion During Campaign.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25.—Secretary of State Hull, in behalf of President Roosevelt, and John Foster Dulles, representing Gov. Dewey, the Republican Presidential nominee, ended their third conference in three days this afternoon with a joint statement; agreeing to collaborate in efforts to establish a world organization like the league of nations but disagreeing on whether the issues involved shall be discussed from political platforms in the fall campaign.

Dulles, a Wall street lawyer with a background of diplomacy and international finance, hailed the agreement as "a great achievement, something perhaps unique in American politics."

Demands Full Discussion.

Dulles insisted that no gag should be placed on Dewey in the Presidential campaign.

Hull and Dulles, in their joint statement, announced they had agreed that the world security organization is a nonpartisan subject, but Dulles stipulated that the arrangement does not preclude full discussion. He said he did so in order to leave no loophole for a charge of bad faith when Dewey talks about the peace organization.

It became apparent the Republican campaign tactics will indorse a world organization of sovereign states but will attack Roosevelt on such matters as conservation of American resources, avoidance of European power politics and the use of American soldiers and sailors to police the world.

Sees Bipartisan Coöperation.

Dulles, who hopes to become secretary of state if Dewey is elected in November, told reporters the unique aspect of his conferences with Hull was that they had "found a practical way to implement bipartisan coöperation" between a President and his opponent for reëlection.

"We have taken one specific area in the field of foreign relations—the establishment of an international peace and security organization," said the lawyer, "and have tried to lift it above partisan politics.

"All other aspects of foreign relations were not dealt with. There can and will be plenty of partisan discussion in the campaign of other aspects of foreign policy, especially the administration's past conduct."

Differences of Emphasis.

Reporters asked Dulles whether he thought his conferences with Hull to date had contributed anything to America's position in its current negotiations with Great Britain, Russia, and China.

"Gov. Dewey's views on the establishment of an international peace and security organization agree with Mr. Hull's," said Dulles. "There were differences of emphasis but not of substance. I hope the governor's view will be given weight in the Dumbarton Oaks conference."

"Will America's proposals at this diplomatic conference be the administration plan or the Hull-Dewey plan?" he was asked.

"It will be the American plan," the lawyer replied. "It is increasingly becoming nonpartisan in complexion. No party can claim it. If it emerges as expected, no party can criticize it."

Dulles left Washington this afternoon for his New York home to study documents provided by the state department relating to the current America-Great Britain-Russia parley at Dumbarton Oaks estate here. He said he will confer late next week with Dewey.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25.—Secretary of State Hull answered criticism of the exclusion of congress from the Dumbarton Oaks post-war security conference today by discussing the conference with the senate foreign relations committee.

Chairman Bloom [D., N. Y.] of the house foreign affairs committee said he expects his group will confer with Hull next week.

Chairman Connally [D., Tex.] of the senate committee reported Hull had informed the committee of the first week's proceedings in the security conference, but the committee gave no details of what it had learned.

Members of both houses expressed resentment at forcing the committees to get their information second hand, and then only after the conference had been proceeding in secrecy for a week.

The quiet of the conference was somewhat disturbed today when Gerald L. K. Smith made an unsuccessful effort to get in to protest against the secrecy. Smith is the Presidential candidate of the America First party, which is not to be confused with the pre-war America First movement.

The conference this afternoon quit work for the week-end.

Birthday

Sheriff Mulcahy cutting his birthday cake yesterday.

Sheriff Michael F. Mulcahy had two cakes yesterday at his 46th birthday party in the County building. One was the gift of employes of the civil branch of his department, and the other was presented by the criminal branch. Both were immense and were sent by Mulcahy to the Chicago service men's center after he had taken a sample from one. Mulcahy lives at 8000 Langley av. with his wife, Alice, and two daughters, Alice Marie, 14, and Eileen, 10. He is the Democratic candidate for election as sheriff. He was appointed in December, 1943, after the death of Peter B. Carey.

SENATE REJECTS ONE MAN RULE OF WAR SURPLUS

Votes to Use Revenue on National Debt.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25 (AP).—After attaching a provision that all receipts be used toward retirement of the national debt, the senate tonight passed a bill for disposal of approximately 100 billion dollars' worth of government surpluses under an eight member board controled by congress instead of a single administrator.

The measure, colliding with a rival bill approved by the house last week vesting supervision over sales of war surplus goods in one administrator, was approved without a record vote at a session attended by 49 members.

That number participated in an earlier roll call vote in which the senate rejected, 31 to 18, an "anti-profiteering" amendment to permit the government to take legal action against buyers of surplus goods where it was found that the purchasers made excessive profits in resales.

Called "Hornswoggling" Curb.

Sponsored by Sen. McKellar [D., Tenn.], Sen. Eastland [D., Miss.], and Sen. McFarland [D., Ariz.] as a means of preventing what McKellar called "hornswoggling," the amendment called for suits or settlements to recover excess profits for the government.

The senate's action left prospects for final settlement of the controversy over disposal of surplus property up to a conference group of senators and representatives who probably will meet next week in an effort to iron out differences.

Brief debate preceded acceptance of an amendment by Sen. Wherry [R., Neb.] providing for revenues from sale of surpluses to go into a special debt retirement fund rather than into general treasury receipts.

"People to Pay," Says Wherry.

"The American people are going to have to pay this huge war debt," Wherry said. "Whatever help we can give them, we should give them."

Sen. Taft [R., O.] and Sen. Stewart [D., Tenn.] found little support for a proposal to compromise senate differences over administration of the surplus property sales, and did not press for a roll call.

Noting that the house had voted for a single administrator while the senate military committee urged an eight member board, they suggested retention of the board to determine policies but Presidential appointment of an administrator to execute them.

Sen. Johnson [D., Colo.] called the proposal a "legislative monstrosity."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25.—Three war bond sale experts have left for the European war theater to teach army officers how to organize effective bond promotion programs among the soldiers, the treasury department announced today. A treasury spokesman said the campaign was requested by a high ranking finance officer.

Those sent to the war zone are Peter H. Odegard, special assistant to the secretary of the treasury in the war finance division; Frank Isbee, chairman of the Michigan state war finance committee, and Harold Thomas, chairman of the War Advertising Council, Inc.

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau denied the mission was a move to head off inflation in France. He said American soldiers are spending little of their pay and conditions there are satisfactory.

NEED ANY LEAKY BUCKETS? U. S. HAS 'EM ON SALE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25.—Approximately one million five gallon steel cans and 34 complete and unused incinerator plants have been designated as "surplus" and are offered for sale, the procurement division of the treasury department announced today. The cans were manufactured for the army and navy, and the incinerator plants were received from the army engineers.

The announcement said the cans, which have not been used, have been stored outside in the weather. Accordingly, it was said, about half of them may have developed rust spots and 5 to 10 per cent have small leaks. Prospective buyers were assured that these defects could be remedied with a little paint and solder. The cans are offered for 75 to 90 cents each, depending upon the type of buyer, in carload lots of 4,000.

The incinerators are offered to small communities, hotels, amusement parks, and lumber, turpentine, and mining camps.

F. D. R. REFUSES TO MAKE GUESS ON WAR'S END

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25.—Declaring no man can tell when the war will end, President Roosevelt today refused to set any prediction along side capital forecasts, which generally agree the war will end in October.

Any guesses when the war against Germany or Japan will end are merely speculation, Mr. Roosevelt said in his press conference. He said he had been extremely careful about making guesses.

He added he is about the only person in the world who hasn't set a time for the end of the war.

REPORTS 'TRICK' BY JAPS CAUSED PEARL HARBOR

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 25 (AP).—Rep. Warren G. Magnuson [D., Wash.] on the telephone from Washington, D. C., tonight, told the Post-Intelligencer he had heard reports, both in Washington and on the west coast, that at the request of the Japanese United States naval and aerial patrols had been curtailed in the central Pacific at the time the Japanese struck Pearl Harbor.

The congressman said he believed the government ought to make immediate comment on the "persistent and widely circulated reports on the west coast, purporting to tell the real story of Pearl Harbor."

In Washington both the navy department and the state department declined immediate comment on Magnuson's statements.

Kurusu Asked Withdrawal.

Magnuson said in a statement to the Post-Intelligencer he had heard the report that the fleet was withdrawn to Pearl Harbor and air patrols curtailed by the navy thru the request of Saburo Kurusu, who during his talks with Secretary Hull declared his [Kurusu's] efforts toward peace were being thwarted by Japanese militarists, who pointed to the fleet and air patrols as indications to the Japanese people that the Americans would attack Japan shortly.

"The story is," he asserted, "that the Japs contrived to have our fleet bottled up in Pearl Harbor where it could easily be dealt a death blow.

"I do not know whether this story is true or false, and I don't venture to speak for or against it. But I do think the charge ought to be answered promptly at Washington.

Transcends Party Consideration.

"The report on the west coast, and I've heard it here in Washington, too, is that Kimmel [Adm. Husband E. Kimmel] was instructed to draw in the fleet, curtail air patrols and do everything else possible to dispel the notion that America was about to attack Japan. The report is that Kimmel was instructed to take all measures necessary to insure that the Japanese consulate at Honolulu would report to the Japanese government that the fleet did not contemplate any immediate action, which is—so the story goes—why some shore leaves were granted.

"Altho I am a Democrat, this report and this situation transcends purely party considerations and if the story is true, some of this heat should certainly be taken off Adm. Kimmel and Gen. Short [Lt. Gen. Walter C. Short, commander of army forces in Hawaii at the time of Pearl Harbor]. On the other hand, if it is not true, then the report should be promptly scotched by an immediate and official denial here in Washington. The circulation of such reports as this is not healthy.

"Not only are these reports not healthy, but they cause a lot of ill-founded rumors concerning the operation of the navy prior to Pearl Harbor."

CHIEF WRECK CAUSED BY EXCESSIVE SPEED, I.C.C. REPORT REVEALS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25—[Special].—Excessive speed on a curve caused derailment of the Sante Fe's westbound Chief at Maine, Ariz., July 3 in which four persons were killed and 126 injured, the interstate commerce commission said today.

Running 37 minutes late, the train went into the curve "in excess of 70 miles an hour," causing the engine and the first 12 cars of the 14 car passenger train to leave the track, the commission said. Company rules call for a speed limit on the curve of 55 miles an hour, the report disclosed.

The Chicago to Los Angeles, Cal., train was all-Pullman and most of the passengers were asleep when the accident came. Rails buckled and looped back over the locomotive, and the first four cars behind the engine telescoped past it.

A Message to America

from

DR. THOMAS PARRAN

CONCERNING THE FUTURE OF AMERICA'S SERVICEMEN

As broadcast over C. B. S., on the Schenley Laboratories' program, "THE DOCTOR FIGHTS"

"AMONG every 100 men who are wounded in battle and reach a hospital, 97 will live, according to Surgeon-General Kirk of the U. S. Army.

This means that most of our heroic servicemen will come back alive—not necessarily whole. Blood plasma, the sulfa drugs and penicillin, in addition to other medical discoveries since the last war, are saving a large proportion of the most seriously injured men.

We have a special responsibility to these men we love who come back with permanent handicaps. Our doctors have preserved their lives. It is for us to see that they live in liberty and the pursuit of happiness. Each of us must receive our returned soldier with pride, neither repelled by, nor over-solicitous as to his injury. Most of his anxiety about it will stem from worry about its effect upon us and upon his chances for livelihood. We must convince him, and prove it by our actions, that he has the capacity to be useful and happy.

From what I have seen in our Army, Navy and Public Health Service Hospitals, very few handicapped men want to become the permanent wards of the Government and spend the rest of their days in idleness. They have worked hard. They have stood on their feet and slugged it out with the enemy. They have endured more than they dreamed it was possible to endure. They will ask of us—and they will have every right to ask—useful work which they are mentally and physically able to do.

Industry, however, needs to retool its thinking before retooling its machinery for postwar production. In the past, men have been ruled by the needs of the machine. After the war, jobs, tools, machines and national planning must be fitted to the men who fought to preserve the nation.

There is another thing to consider: Many of our fighting men have learned new skills. So far as is humanly possible, they should go on from there. Men who have learned the intricacies of radar will not be satisfied peddling magazine subscriptions. Men who have flown bombers will not be happy untangling red tape. Men who have learned to build and use the lightning calculators used in anti-aircraft fire will not accept with grace a job pushing buttons on an electric elevator.

The end of the war may be near or far away. The world that follows the war will be what we choose to make it, beginning now. Certainly it will be different. We must adapt a rich and vigorous part of that changed world for the participation of those men who have returned and will in increasing numbers return from the battlefronts broken, perhaps, of body but high of heart."

Injustice will prevail at the November Presidential election if we do not give our soldier boys time enough to make certain that their ballots will reach us for the final count. If the short time until November is not enough, then give them until Christmas. The war isn't over yet as so many people seem to think. There are many tribulations ahead, many difficulties to overcome, before we reach a lasting peace. DON'T fail our boys. Buy more bonds.

LIQUIDATING WAR SURPLUSES.

In secret testimony before a senate war investigating committee, made public recently, Donald Nelson, chairman of the war production board, raised some interesting points. He testified that the army's general staff made a serious error in judgment on the merits of aerial bombing which caused cut-backs in the production of heavy artillery. The "lessons of war," Nelson said, proved the need for artillery, and plants in this country which had been closed had to be reopened to meet the "tremendously increased requirements." There is now a serious overseas shortage of heavy guns and ammunition, he said.

Nelson also said that the army doesn't keep any records of its reserves of material after the stores have left the main storage and issue points. He said WPB found out that the army had a five years' supply of small arms ammunition only "by constant questioning." WPB has no idea at all of how much material the army has in the hands of battle troops, at ports of debarkation, or in transit overseas.

Meanwhile, the house of representatives has adopted a bill setting up an administrative agency to dispose of war surpluses which the congressmen believe may total tens of billions of dollars in value by the end of the war. A senate committee has reported out a different bill dealing with the same problem. Congress is damming up the wrong end of the river by this kind of legislation. It ought first to deal with the surplus war goods problem at the source, which is in the army and navy supply departments and the war factories.

Nelson's testimony is not the only evidence that the army doesn't know its inventories. A short time ago a couple of his WPB statisticians took an inventory of war goods supplied to the army, but the high command raised such a fuss about its accuracy and its "general implications" that it was suppressed and the statisticians resigned in disgust. This would indicate that the military chiefs do not want to know what supplies they have as long as there is more than enough of everything and nobody dares to reconvert any war industries to civilian production.

More than a month ago, Maj. Gen. Lucius D. Clay, director of material for the army, held a press conference for labor newspaper reporters at which he is reported to have said that the army aims to keep six months ahead of operations in all production and endeavors to foresee all of its needs that far in advance. Congress should interest itself in getting the army to use up that six months' backlog, so that material purchased with tax and war bond dollars will not have to be sold at fire sale prices after the war.

The army has sufficient help to keep an accurate and complete inventory of everything it uses or stores, and the overseas supply bases are far enough from the fighting to permit such records to include their stocks. The waste that results from piling up war goods does not take place on the battlefields. If congress forces the army to do a decent accounting job and snaps a checkrein on the elements which want to keep producing war goods in order to retain Fascist controls over our domestic economy it will save itself the task of disposing of mountains of army surplus and will save the taxpayers billions.

POSTSCRIPT FROM PHILLY.

It will be recalled that when the employes of the Philadelphia traction lines were engaged in their disgraceful strike, based on racial prejudice, the officials of the communistic CIO Transport Workers' union, bargaining agent for the employes, were squealing like a pig under a gate. Successively, they blamed Hitler, a company union, the employer, and any one else they could think of in a hurry, for the strike, in an effort to obscure the fact that a union that has been yammering for years about its liberalism was tying up one of the leading war production centers of the country in an effort to deny eight Negro motormen the chance to earn a decent living.

James J. Fitzsimmons, international vice president of the TWU, has just issued the claim that 92 per cent of the traction employes are loyal to his union. That ought to settle it. We didn't see Mr. Fitzsimmons' 92 per cent, or 9 per cent of them, showing up to run the street cars during the strike.

ENEMIES WHOM WE WELCOME.

We are glad to report that Sidney Hillman cut loose against THE TRIBUNE the other day in Boston. Sidney wasn't in the best vituperative vein, but he can be expected to improve when he and his speech writers get down into their bag of Communist epithets. We have been telling how Hillman and his PAC are trying to put into practice in this country Hitler's methods of regimenting the CIO vote and having it vote "Ja" on orders from the party elite, so Sidney probably will get around in time to the angle of the local house organ for the power trust and holler that we are "playing Hitler's game."

THE TRIBUNE has its share of critics whom we respect and with whom we disagree. It also has a wide circle of vicious enemies whose attacks we welcome because, in addition to its own reputation, this newspaper is vouched for by these attacks made on it by the enemies of America and Americans.

We are libeled and slandered from time to time by cockroach commentators and the vermin press. We enjoy the hatred of Hatchetman Ickes, the gents' room patriot Winchell, Prevaricating Pearson, and little Cecil Brown, who is trying to prove that he can smell as bad as the big boys. Our abusers include the Adler newspaper chain, whose formula for journalistic success is an editor on each side of the street and a business office in the middle; Mr. Field, who has amalgamated expatriate dollars with British snobbery and Communist theology; and others too disreputable to mention.

Since THE TRIBUNE isn't a candidate for anything it should be as obvious to our readers as it is to ourselves why we are subjected to these attacks. The attackers hope to distract our attention from the patriotic task of ridding this nation of the fatal, un-American curse of Roosevelt's New Deal. They realize the futility of defending the defendant and so have adopted the old dodge of prosecuting the prosecutor. We do not intend to be distracted. We will keep driving toward our objective, but will advise our readers from time to time of any additions to the pack that yaps at our carriage wheels.

DON'T THEY KNOW ABOUT THE WAR?

The people of the eastern section of the country are doing a miserable job of supporting the war by buying bonds. The July-August bulletins of the United States treasury, just received in Chicago, shows this in black and white. In the 5th war loan drive the residents of Washington, D. C., and of every state from Maine to the Ohio border, with one exception [little Rhode Island], failed to do their duty in buying bonds to pay for the war.

The treasury department figured out in advance what quantities of bonds the individuals of each state were able to buy. The country as a whole went over the top by a small margin. Thirty-four states beat their quotas. Fourteen didn't. The hotbed of disaffection toward the war loan drive was along the Atlantic seaboard and in the national capital.

Massachusetts had the worst record. Its citizens bought only 68 per cent of the securities the government said they were prepared to purchase. Next worst spot was in Connecticut, 74 per cent of quota. Maine was third with 75 per cent. New York was fourth in apathy to the government's need and the people of that state subscribed 85 per cent of what Washington said was a fair share. Vermont and Nevada each hit 86 per cent and New Hampshire 89 per cent. Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, California, Washington, Wyoming, and Wisconsin also missed their quotas, but by less than 10 per cent. The government employes and the diplomatic set in Washington bought 93 per cent of what the treasury said was a proper amount.

While all the states in the east, except one, and the center of the government itself failed to do its duty in the 5th war loan drive, every state in the middle west except Wisconsin went over the top, and Wisconsin missed par by only 4 per cent. Of the six big industrial states the three in the middle west beat their quotas and the other three elsewhere didn't.

In the life and death struggle in which the country is engaged every man and woman and every section must do a full share. Something must be done evidently to arouse the people of the eastern states to the necessity of meeting their full obligations toward the war. Possibly the middle west might help to arouse the east from its lethargy by sending speakers from here down there. As an alternative Chicago people might make it a point each day when they are finished with THE TRIBUNE to mail the editorial page to friends in New York, Massachusetts, and Washington, D. C.

A GREAT DISCOVERY.

Rear Adm. Hipp, testifying before a senate war investigating committee, disclosed that the navy has found a simple and remarkable method to prevent accumulation of food surpluses. "If we get too many cans of beans on hand," Adm. Hipp said, "we simply serve more beans."

It is too bad this great truth dawned on the navy consciousness so late in the war and that the navy hasn't been willing to pass it on to the New Deal's food bungling bureaus responsible for the continual gluts and surpluses of produce that have robbed the nation of so much valuable food.

"Too many beans . . . serve more beans"—that has a faintly familiar sound. Wasn't it the way we used to run things before the New Dealers came along with their controls, and directives, and administrators, and quotas, and ceilings, and got food production all fouled up?

Editorial of the Day

A BLUENOSE IN THE DESERT.

[New York Herald Tribune.]

We are indebted to the Associated Press for a peculiarly melancholy item from the town of Monahans, Tex. On the insistence of Mr. J. B. Middleton, a member of the city council, an ordinance has been passed making it illegal for a woman to appear on the streets wearing shorts. We know nothing more about Mr. Middleton, but we are distressed at the appearance of such a man in a place like Monahans. And what about Monahans? Well, it is a little town on the Texas and Pacific railroad, in Ward county, about half way between Sweetwater and El Paso. It is also halfway between the Pecos river, that evil graveyard of the cowmen's dreams, and the New Mexico line.

In this country bushes bite people, men climb for water and dig for fuel. By tradition, it is in a land where the rattlesnakes, the centipedes, the prairie dogs and the buzzards seem always to be headed westward—on the theory that nothing in New Mexico or Arizona could be quite so bad. In summer the place is a frying pan under an inhuman sky. Tarantulas chew the legs off little turkeys. Like hell itself, it only needs a little water and a better society to be a pretty nice place. The women of Monahans, oddly enough when all things are considered, are generally good looking. And the spectacle of a woman in shorts on the streets of Monahans offends Mr. Middleton, does it? It is none of our business, but the spectacle of Mr. Middleton offends us, even at this great distance, and if he doesn't like it in Monahans why doesn't he go back where he came from, wherever that was?

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

Reg. U. S. Pat. Office

MR. PEPYS LOOKS FORWARD.

26th Aug.—Am hoping we will have an early fall, and even foretelling same, because this summer began early and has been brutal, and must have worn itself out of heat waves. The recent coolness, too, has told me the turn of the year is close at hand, and if I were a bird I would be thinking about packing up for a long journey toward the south. When the rains come, however, I hope they will omit Saturday afternoons, for I have a large investment in football season tickets.

Now I must start thinking about an important fall product, the Line Book of 1944. More than that, I must begin work on this job immediately, for I have had word the book will come out earlier than usual, somewhere around election day, and, conditions being what they are, I must complete my part of the task by the middle of September. Thus the polls will close, so to speak, or the period covered by the selections will end, on Labor day. In other years this date has been the autumnal equinox, Sept. 23.

In war time the Line Book covers the world, it seems, for I have heard about it from all quarters of the globe where our soldiers and sailors are in service. Hope the time will soon come when our boys are asking for Line Books from Berlin and Tokyo.

Ascended to the top of the Board of Trade tower, where there is an observing platform, the other day; my first time there. Heard a soldier asking questions that were not getting the right answers, so took charge of him and pointed out sights of interest, for he was a stranger and knew nothing about the town. Enjoyed this experience as a guide and when he thanked me I answered, "I've had a high time myself."

DEATH, WHERE IS THY RAZOR?

You start in on shaving about half-past teen;
Tho your face doesn't need it, the pleasure is keen,
And you don't know what Pop hates this scraping his chin for Because you don't know what you've let yourself in for.
First it's once every month, then it's once every week,
And finally it's daily you lather your cheek,
And the thrill of accomplishment leaves you not soaring
(In fact, the procedure becomes rather boring);
But now you're enmeshed and there's no backing out—
The whiskers continue to fiendishly sprout.
Around you go spinning, as earth on its axis,
For shaving's more certain than death is, or taxes.
Around and around, in this ritual weird
You persist, since you think it less work than a beard.
Do you halt for an instant? Or falter? Or waver?
No, sir! You adhere to the Code of the Shaver!
Day in and day out, at it early and often
Till you lay down your razor and creep toward a coffin.
But Fate can't resist giving one final whop—
Tho you may cease perking, your beard doesn't stop!

But need I remind you (I will, if you please)
That the stern pioneers wore their beards to their knees?
For our country was built by the hardy trail blazers,
Who'd never have made it if hampered by razors!

Argument Between Scots.

Regarding "The Breeks of a Highlander" [Aug. 17]: That joke, of course, is self-evident; the Gael does not wear breeks, and he has as much contempt for the wearers of them as the kilted Romans had for the Teutonic "trousered barbarians." . . . I regret that a Sandy of Edinburgh should speak of a captain in the King's Own Scottish Borderers wearing a kilt. Man Sandy, the only kilts you see in the Scottish Borderers are those of the pipers. In the rank and file of the regiment they wear trews, or tartan breeks, Balmoral bonnets, and Highland tunics.

These Scottish Borderers are of Danish descent, chiefly, and never wore kilts. But Sandy corrects himself when he says Donald Lassen was presented with a pair of Leslie tartan trews. The Leslie tartan is a bonny design of dark and light greens, black, blue, red, and white in an intricate pattern.

VACATIONLESS MUSINGS.

(Answer to an idle poet.)

"Where are my duties now?" Who is it asks
Such questions when my desk, six layers deep,
Is groaning sorely with unfinished tasks?
The countless files and records I must keep,
The forms, reports, and registers [ah, me!],
The letters to be answered when avails
The time, and lists of things to do and see—
To mention just a few unloved details.
But I'm not envious of Poet Clark,
Or any one who can escape the grind
Of daily toil and set forth on a lark,
"Obeying sea, tree, bird," and all their kind;
Because I dread, far more, the packing than
The stacked up work when I come home again.

G. O. J. writes: "Before my induction I was an administrative employe, noncivil service, of a federal agency which has since been liquidated. Will I be permitted to return to a federal government position of like pay and responsibility? If so, will I be permitted to be employed in an agency which is under civil service?"

We are unable to give a yes or no answer because you do not give us sufficient information. If you were employed by an independent agency, obviously you do not have a job to come back to, but if the job was in a subsidiary agency, the parent agency has the responsibility of placing you in a status similar to that which you held before entering service. You also may file an application with the civil service commission for placement on the list of eligibles for appointment, either under civil service or noncivil service, in another agency. If you will give us all the facts, we will be glad to get a determination for you.

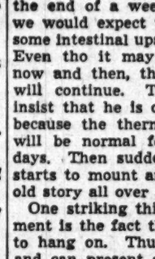
UNDULANT FEVER FROM INFECTED MILK.

TOWARD the end of the summer vacation period physicians will encounter numerous instances of undulant fever. As we know, the organism enters the body thru food. The chief culprits are contaminated, unpasteurized milk and insufficiently cooked meats.



It is a far cry from the Island of Malta, where David Bruce—in the early '80s—described the responsible microbe [Brucella melitensis]. Later, it was isolated from goat's milk. In the meantime, enough infected animals had been imported to this country so that the disease is now widespread.

Just why more cases appear during August and early autumn is not understood. It may be because we consume more raw edibles thruout the warmer season. In addition, we may be careless, particularly when away from home.

Only in recent years have we learned how to spot the malady. All too often, the symptoms will imitate typhoid, malaria, or a severe attack of influenza. Many a victim has been treated for typhoid because the manifestations are so similar. Fortunately, we have a satisfactory method of proof: the agglutination test. When viewed under the microscope, the bacteria will be seen to clump together when a drop of the patient's blood is added.

As a rule, the disorder will present itself approximately two weeks after the infection has been acquired. Sometimes the interval will be shorter. At any rate, the temperature goes up gradually and symptoms include pain in the back and the legs, a boring type of headache, and loss of appetite.

But, instead of convalescence at the end of a week or 10 days, as we would expect with influenza or some intestinal upset, fever persists. Even tho it may drop to normal now and then, the stepladder rise will continue. The sufferer may insist that he is out of the woods, because the thermometer readings will be normal for three or four days. Then suddenly the mercury starts to mount and it is the same old story all over again.

One striking thing about the ailment is the fact that it is so likely to hang on. Thus it saps vitality and can present a real battle, taxing the resources of physicians and nurses alike. Probably in no illness is more skilful care required. The diet should be light, but nourishing. Frequent, small meals will be demanded, otherwise great loss of weight and weakness will ensue.

While some victims will respond to the sulfonamide drugs, others will need large doses of a vaccine made from the causative germs. This plan seems to give the system a boost which apparently is necessary for recovery. Excellent results have been reported thru the use of sulfasuxidine, when the "bugs" have concentrated in the colon.

Undulant fever is highly contagious and may be contracted by those who are attending the patient. This means that all discharges must be handled with care and disinfected thoroly.

CONTINUOUS PAIN.

Mrs. P. writes: My husband is never without a headache. He has been thru all kinds of tests but no cause can be found. Have you ever heard of a case like this?

REPLY.

An intelligent hunt should disclose the cause. I saw a case recently wherein symptoms had been present for several years. Pressure on the spine in the neck region [from arthritis] was responsible. As soon as this was relieved all discomfort disappeared.

DON'T CHANCE IT.

A. G. writes: In the case of pulmonary tuberculosis, would sunbathing be harmful if just the face and arms are bare?

REPLY.

The rule is against it. If the disease is active, many experts believe that not even a finger should be exposed to the direct rays of old Sol.

CONTINUED DISTRESS.

Mrs. J. C. writes: Even after two years since the removal of a toxic goiter, the pulse rate runs about 120 per minute. Is this normal?

REPLY.

No. Further treatment is indicated definitely. This should be based upon a careful estimation of the metabolic rate.

WHEN TO REMOVE WEN.

D. A. writes: What is the reason for removal of a cyst on the head or neck?

REPLY.

Bus Scientist.

A friend of ours was riding on the upper deck of a bus the other day when he noticed with glee that a neighbor was having a trouble with which he was familiar. The neighbor was trying to light a cigaret in the wind. He futilely struck and discarded seven matches. He then gave up. During the whole ordeal our friend followed every movement the man made. Then he pulled a package of matches and a cigaret from his own pocket, took three matches, and struck them in a simultaneous cluster, and it worked. The neighbor across the aisle arose, tipped his hat, and sat down. Then he did it.

Equal Rights.

Even those who have never heard Sinatra now are getting bitter about the whole thing. A corporal in the air corps writes in to say that Sinatra made $1,500,000 last year, or more than $4,000 a day, and a four star general such as Eisenhower, serving overseas, earns a base pay of $8,080 a year.

"In short," concludes the corporal, "Crooner Sinatra sings for a little more than two days and he earns more than Eisenhower earns in a whole year.

The Beaver Falls [Pa.] Review recently reprinted in its long, long ago column a major news item of 1889:

"July 11, 1929. . . . Train from Avignon to Paris. All day ride. Tired but excited. Suddenly I see white lights in the distance and scream, 'It's Paris! We're there!' . . . It is hard to write about Paris. There is too much. . . . The whole city is like a huge Mardi gras. Americans streaming from shop to shop, buying and bargaining with the shopkeepers who have their prices boosted to the skies. Taxis shooting in and out and crowding down the boulevards, honking constantly. . . . At night the lights of the cabarets, men and women stepping out of limousines and disappearing into cafes to come out later, slightly inebriated, carrying large, foolish French dolls and, because it is only 4 a. m., go on to other places not quite so nice to dance some more and then to the Capitol or Michel's for ham and eggs . . . or to the markets and home as the sky is turning bluegray. And you can't say 'And Paris is awakening,' for Paris never sleeps."

A sea going conductor [No. 7687] operates a northwest side bus. When he reaches the northern end of the line in Wildwood he produces a harmonica and pipes the passengers over the side. If this is at night, strains of "Good Night, Ladies" follow the girls down the street. All very gay and unexpected.

SEN. TRUMAN'S CONFESSION.

Chicago, Aug. 23.—Sen. Truman's article in a recent issue of a national magazine will certainly not be reprinted as a Democratic campaign document. A few of the many situations he describes, based on his committee's investigations, illustrate the irreparable damage he does to the "vigorous, competent, and efficient" commander in chief legend.

The Truman comment on Pearl Harbor, which has already produced a strong reply from Adm. Kimmel, claims that the greatest military disaster in our history was preceded by total and long continued lack of coördination between the army and the navy. Surely, if this is true, the commander in chief, well informed as to approaching danger, should have brought about thoro and complete coöperation among those in charge of our most important outpost.

Under the heading "flagrant example of waste," Sen. Truman describes the army's construction of the Canoll project which, after much public discussion, was continued until, as the senator says, 134 million dollars was squandered, and 200,000 tons of scarce material and the time of thousands of soldiers and civilians were diverted from other urgent needs. President Roosevelt, as commander in chief, was the boss on this job.

Sen. Truman cites numerous other instances of protracted and expensive mismanagement which, if they had occurred under a Republican President, he would certainly, and with justice, have used as campaign arguments for a change in leadership. He refers to the "present mob action that puts government agencies in the market as competitive bidders" and has "caused the waste of millions." These conditions, as the senator points out, are not isolated or inconsequential. The Democratic candidate for Vice President proves, with abundant facts and figures, that the procurement of essential supplies was greatly delayed, millions of dollars needlessly wasted, and our victory seriously endangered under the administration in which President Roosevelt, as commander in chief, built up his claim to indispensability.

MILITARY TRAINING.

Camp Claiborne, La., Aug. 19.—J. C. H. is willing to have compulsory military training after the war. No doubt this would use up surplus war supplies and ease the strain on the labor market as he stated, but would he be interested in serving in this compulsory military training?

I am sure that most men will want to return home as soon as possible after this war is over and start over from where they left off. I surely don't want a son of mine to be compelled to take military training just when he reaches the age where he enjoys life the most and is making a start for himself like I did.

WASHED OUT CADETS.

Chicago, Aug. 21.—At Great Lakes Naval Training station there are at present many thousand ex-cadets. These boys, chosen to fly, were given the most rigorous examinations. No one deplores the fact that, casualties being so much less than expected, it is necessary to cut down on the number of flyers in training. The only confusing element is why the navy does not utilize this excellent material, to say nothing of the millions of dollars invested in these cadets, to a better advantage.

Why are they not given ratings, a chance at V-12, or even honorable discharge? The navy says they are psychologically unfit for sea duty, after the many months of officer training. Then why not give them a chance to go on with their college work either in V-12 or as honorably discharged veterans, instead of putting them down to the lowest rank with not even the chance of a rating until they have sea duty for which their training, thus far, has made them unfit?

5 JAIL BREAKERS STAND OFF SIEGE BY LAW 6 HOURS

Rifles and Tear Gas Used in Florida Battle.

Jacksonville, Fla., Aug. 25 [Special].—For nearly six hours today an army of about 200 law enforcing officers laid siege to the Duval county jail with rifle fire and tear gas before forcing the surrender of six heavily armed inmates who had attempted to break jail. A seventh inmate succeeded in getting away.

The six finally laid down their arms and came out after threats had been made thru a loudspeaker system that the besiegers would storm the jail with an army tank. Three inmates, including one of the jail breakers, were shot, apparently by police bullets poured thru the jail windows.

Thousands of onlookers flocked to the scene of the battle, only a few blocks from Jacksonville's downtown district. They risked getting shot to watch the spectacle in which army and navy military policemen and Florida state guardsmen aided city and county authorities.

Two Sailors in Group.

Among the jail breakers were two sailors, Harold Parris and Gerald Howell, both from the near-by Jacksonville naval air station, who were awaiting trial on charges of larceny of an automobile.

The man who escaped is George F. Kelly of Boston, Mass., a federal prisoner charged with motor theft. The remaining three are Jimmy Castendyt, of Memphis, Tenn., a cripple on crutches and said to have been the leader of the break; J. C. Whittle of Aiken, S. C., who was shot in the spine and seriously wounded, and W. A. Clark of Memphis. All were awaiting trial on various charges.

The break was made this morning when several of the men suddenly confronted Jailer B. Sweat with a pistol. Clark is believed to have smuggled into the jail when he was arrested. The prisoners also overpowered Deputy Sheriff Ted Manes, an assistant jailer, and State Highway Patrolman Broward Carlton, who had stopped into the jail to make a report.

Arm Selves in Armory.

After locking their three captives in a cell, the seven inmates broke into the county armory in the jail, armed themselves, and left the building.

Three of them were trying to start an automobile across the street from the jail when Patrolmen H. J. Deche and G. P. Powers seized them. In marching the prisoners toward the rear of the jail, the policemen passed thru an alley where three of the jail breakers were awaiting the theft of the car. In the meantime Kelly had fled.

The tables promptly were turned on the policemen and they became hostages of the jail breakers, who then fled back into the County jail at the approach of other policemen summoned by an alarm sounded in the near-by city jail.

Within a few minutes city police and sheriff's deputies arrived in force and rushed the jail. A sharp exchange of gunfire took place and the police were forced to retreat.

From the burglarized arsenal the jail breakers had armed themselves with tear gas grenades, tear masks, machine guns, and rifles, so were well equipped to withstand the assaults and to keep up the exchange of firing. Thruout the battle they held as their captives the jailer and four policemen.

When the siege had been in progress about three hours, the battling inmates sent the jail's 13 women prisoners out of the building. One of the women had been shot in the hand. There had been 125 prisoners in jail when the trouble started.

Altho the besieging force had been swelled by navy shore patrolmen, army military policemen, and state guardsmen, they hesitated to make a frontal assault because of the prisoners' heavy arms.

JAPS AGREE TO CLEAR $10 A MONTH TO EACH PHILIPPINE PRISONER

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25 (AP).—The Japanese government has agreed to allow about $10 a month relief money to be sent to each American prisoner of war in the Philippines, the state department announced today.

Tokyo's agreement, received thru the Swiss government, which will relay the funds from this country, came after negotiations begun early in 1942.

Since last May, a total of about $25,000 monthly could be sent to prisoners of war in the Philippines thru the neutral delegate in Japan of the war prisoners' aid [WPA] of the Young Men's Christian association. Tokyo now has stopped this "because of the special situation of the Philippines."

CLASH OF UNIONS ENDS MEETING IN WILD DISORDER

New York, Aug. 25 [Special].—A meeting sponsored by district 50, United Mine Workers of America, to gain the support of 2,800 workers of the Third Avenue Railway company in a state labor relations board election Tuesday, ended in wild disorder tonight when members of the CIO Transport Workers of America, the opposing union in the election, packed the hall and shouted down the first of four scheduled UMW speakers.

Leaders of district 50 abandoned the meeting after an hour during which Michael Widman, an organizer, vainly tried to make himself heard above the shouts of the TWU adherents. Each reference to the UMW brought catcalls and then a chant, "We want Quill." [Michael J. Quill is president of the TWU.] Widman never got a chance to finish outlining the UMW platform and finally walked off the stage with other officers of his union.

After the meeting Quill said: "This is the first time that district 50 was unable to ride rough-shod over the rank and file workers."

TWO SLAYERS OF POLICEMEN SEEK PAROLES

Two police slayers from Cook county are among 170 convicts whose parole applications have been set for hearing on the August and September docket, the state division of correction announced yesterday. Public hearing will begin next Tuesday in prisons at Menard, Joliet, Stateville, and Pontiac.

Guy Van Tassel, 71, one of the killers, was sentenced in 1906 for the murder of Policeman Luke J. Fitzpatrick following a robbery in Hammond, Ind. The other is Ray Schilling, sentenced to life in June, 1920, for the killing of Policeman Michael Duffy in a saloon at 6135 S. Halsted st. after Duffy entered there to quell a disturbance which Schilling started.

Anton Papas, 60, fruit stand operator, sentenced a year ago to serve one to three years for manslaughter in the death of Muriel Campbell, 19, with whom he quarreled over a watermelon, also is seeking parole.

4TH TERM LABOR POST HILLMAN'S REWARD: MUNDT

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25.—The house was informed today by Rep. Mundt [R., S. D.], who quoted "well informed insiders in New Deal circles," that Sidney Hillman, head of the CIO political action committee, is scheduled to be the next secretary of labor if President Roosevelt is elected to a fourth term.

Sidney Hillman.

Mundt labeled Hillman "the Rasputin of organized labor," comparing him to the Russian court favorite who wielded great powers in czarist Russia before his assassination in 1916. Hillman was born in Zagare, Lithuania, then a part of Russia, in 1887.

The effort of Hillman's PAC to "take over the reins of government and dominate the national political picture without assuming the responsibilities of management transcends all party lines in its significance," Mundt said in a statement inserted in the Congressional Record.

Named in Dies Report.

"If Hillman is to replace Frances Perkins as secretary of labor, the American public is entitled to know his background," the South Dakotan continued. "The Dies committee on un-American activities, in a devastating report on the subversive background on the CIO-PAC, refers to Hillman on 27 different occasions.

"Every leader of public opinion in America, regardless of party affiliation, should read this report.

"Southerners who vote for the Hillman-Hannegan-Hopkins political axis have no one to blame but themselves if they find themselves caught in the toils of big city political machines, subversive organizations, and selfish CIO labor racketeers seeking personal aggrandizement and political power."

Denounced by AFL.

Mundt noted that the American Federation of Labor on Wednesday denounced Hillman and the PAC.

"Hillman now strides the American scene as the Rasputin of organized labor, who boasts about the political scalps which his tribe has already taken in Alabama, Texas, Missouri, California, and elsewhere," he said. "Making him secretary of labor would be little enough reward to him for the millions of dollars and the myriads of words he is devoting to the support of Mr. Roosevelt's bid for further power.

"The day he wins his campaign for dominance will be a sorry day for this republic and an even sadder occasion for members of the railroad brotherhoods, the American Federation of Labor, and all other workers who do not fawn before him today."

GETS 4 LETTERS FROM HUSBAND HELD BY JAPS

The last two weeks have been memorable ones for Mrs. Thomas A. Lynch, 1751 E. 73d pl. She received four letters from her husband, a colonel in the judge advocate general's department on Corregidor when it fell to the Japanese May 6, 1942. With the exception of a form card, the letters are Mrs. Lynch's only correspondence from her war prisoner husband.

Col. Lynch enlisted in the army in 1904 as a private and rose thru the ranks. He has served in Cuba, the Philippine Islands, and at various posts in the United States.

Two of the five Lynch children are in service. Robert is a private first class in the signal corps on New Guinea. A daughter, Mrs. Helen Longshore, is a Red Cross worker in France. Douglas and James both are civilian engineers. The youngest son, William, 14, is at home with his mother.

CIO WAR RELIEF OFFICIAL QUITS OVER DICTATION

Refuses to Obey Orders of Sidney Hillman.

Des Moines, Ia., Aug. 25 [Special].—Charles Paddock, director of the war relief committee of the Congress of Industrial Organizations for four states, disclosed today he had resigned in protest "against the CIO committee's new policy of dictating the private political beliefs and activities of its field directors."

Paddock, liaison man between national war relief agencies such as the Red Cross and Community Chest and the CIO in Iowa, Nebraska, North Dakota, and South Dakota since 1943, said he had refused to obey orders of Sidney Hillman's CIO political action committee to make his personal political actions conform to the PAC formula "24 hours a day and 365 days a year."

Insists on His Rights.

"I have not failed in my job as war relief director for the area and I insist on the full rights of a private American citizen, regardless of who my employer might be," Paddock said in submitting his resignation Aug. 10 to CIO officials.

Paddock said he had resigned after "some local CIO leaders in Iowa" demanded his removal for supporting "genuine independent political action in the state, a development opposed by PAC leaders."

He asserted demands for his removal came after he had written "on my own time as an individual" to several CIO members in the state, urging them to establish a third party "because labor has no chance with either Roosevelt or Dewey in the White House."

Sees Lack of Enthusiasm.

"The PAC has a powerful organization trying to keep Mr. Roosevelt in power but there is not much enthusiasm for him in the rank and file of the CIO," Paddock declared.

Paddock disclosed CIO officials had "offered me a transfer" to Syracuse, N. Y., as war relief director for a "probationary period" in which he was to make his actions conform to PAC orders. He said he did not intend to "change his mind" on his right to vote as he saw fit.

Ben Henry, CIO director for Iowa and Nebraska, was out of the city today and CIO headquarters in New York City refused to comment on Paddock's resignation.

Paddock has been replaced by E. E. Piper, a former air lines public relations man of Denver, Colo.

OPA Settles Question: What Is an Antique?

The office of price administration yesterday settled, for the duration at least, the question: What is an antique? In an amendment to its price regulations on used objects, it set out that: "An item is an antique if it is more than 75 years old, tends to increase rather than decrease in value because of its age, and is commonly known and dealt in as an antique by the trade."

Missing War Garden Corn Sprouts $10,000 Law Suit

BILL BEFORE HOUSE AIMS TO PUT END TO 'GESTAPO' POWERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25.—A bill to strip federal agencies of what has been termed their "Gestapo-like" powers under which they act as both judge and prosecutor, was proposed today by Rep. Smith [D., Va.].

The measure, drafted by the house committee investigating executive agencies, which Smith heads, would forbid OPA and other executive agencies from appointing their own hearing commissioners to hear cases and impose penalties for alleged violations.

Instead, a board of three commissioners at $10,000 a year would be named by the President with senate concurrence. These three and impartial deputy commissioners to be appointed by them would handle all cases where executive agencies charge violations. Aggrieved parties also could appeal to courts.

BRITAIN STUDIES VOLUNTEER WAR ON JAPS, REPORT

[By telephone to The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Aug. 26 [Saturday].—Britain is considering a suggestion to call for volunteers to fight against Japan after the defeat of Germany, says the political correspondent of the Daily Mirror this morning.

The writer says that the suggestion is that young men now serving, who are eager to make the army their career, be asked to volunteer. He adds that rates of pay may be increased and army conditions generally improved as an incentive. If enough volunteers are not obtained, he says, army authorities would send groups called up in the last two years. He adds that there is reason to believe that men with long service will have preference for demobilization.

It is estimated, he says, that a much larger British army than was anticipated will be required for the war against Japan.

SEEK REMOVAL ON $50 CHARGE OF 15 YEARS AGO

State's Atty. Courtney has applied for extradition from Michigan of Raymond Davis, 42, a war plant employe of Grand Rapids, on the charge that he stole a $50 Ford car in Chicago 15 years ago. The requisition on the governor of Michigan was being processed yesterday in Springfield.

Davis, known as Walters when he lived at 438 N. Trumbull av., declared his involvement was the result of mistaken identity and that he forfeited his bond and left Illinois in 1929 because he lacked funds to defend himself. He now is married and has three children, and is reported to have been living a model life in Grand Rapids.

As an employe in the General Motors diesel engine plant in Grand Rapids, Davis won a $500 war bond prize for his suggestion that slow operation of thread grinding machines would permit one man to care for two machines instead of one.

CIO EDITORS GET INSTRUCTIONS ON PAC PROPAGANDA

Officials of the CIO political action committee in this district met last night with the editors of 25 local union and plant newspapers to plan their campaign against Gov. Dewey, Republican nominee for President.

The attack will be made thru CIO newspapers, a newsreel, and possibly a speakers' bureau, the group was told. The local PAC office will supply mats for reproducing campaign propaganda in local papers, and an 8-page booklet of comic strips will be available to further the CIO's political aims.

McKeough Sends a Letter.

The meeting was called in the Morrison hotel by Raymond S. McKeough, PAC director of region 7, which includes Illinois, Indiana, and Wisconsin. He did not appear but sent a letter in which he stated that one of the issues of the election is "whether labor can exist in an organized way or whether a reactionary president will emasculate gains made under Roosevelt."

The meeting was almost entirely in the hands of David Gordon, who is publicity director for the PAC in this region. He outlined with enthusiasm a news reel which he said he is preparing to seek to link Gov. Dewey to the country's financial difficulties of 1929.

He said it will depict scenes of bank closings, Times square soup kitchens, and war veterans selling apples on street corners. The concluding scene will show former President Hoover and Dewey at a recent meeting in the Waldorf-Astoria hotel in New York. The purpose of this scene, Gordon said, is to show "how much the two are alike."

Need of Money Stressed.

Gordon urged the editors to call him "whenever THE TRIBUNE or other newspaper runs an article adverse to labor" so he can get out a story "with the straight facts."

He also urged the editors to emphasize to their readers that the $1 contributions from CIO members are badly needed. He pointed out that they should stay within the provisions of the Smith-Connally bill by stating that money is a contribution and not for dues. "If it had not been for that bill," Gordon said, "the PAC would have had no trouble raising ample funds."

BOY IN HIS 16TH MONTH OF SLEEP WILL BE 3 TODAY

Jimmy Wood, victim of sleeping sickness who lapsed into unconsciousness May 3, 1943, will be 3 years old today.

Jimmy, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Neil D. Wood, 4207 Vernon av., Brookfield, will have a cake with three candles on it. During the afternoon he also will be taken in his specially built wheel chair to the American Legion carnival in the suburb where his mother says she hopes reaction to the lights and sounds will further stimulate his recovery.

Jimmy's sight and hearing have slowly been improving since he was stricken and his mother reports that in addition to uttering something which sounds very much like "Mamma," Jimmy is expected soon to be crawling.

He is in good physical health and his weight since he fell asleep almost 16 months ago has increased from 28 to 41 pounds.

How to Mow Weeds in Your Backyard

[This is the second of a series of articles on autumn lawn care]

HOW would you like to get paid for mowing the weeds in your own backyard? The answer probably would be that you do it anyway, so why pay you?

That is exactly the position farmers find themselves in with the agricultural adjustment administration under its conservation program offering them tempting checks for doing what they have done for years.

Mowing weeds in the pasture is one of them. It is worth $4 an acre to the farmer if he does it. Each farm is allowed to earn a predetermined amount of money—its conservation allowance—and it generally is easy for the farmer to point out various normal phases of his work as conservatory and thus earn a neat sum for nothing.

Pay for Burning Trash!

The Wheaton farm has a conservation allowance of $183.50. As yet the manager has not signed up to receive it altho the farm already has qualified for a good portion of it. It strikes the men at the farm as a little strange that the farm should be given money because it operates as it should.

Maintaining contour strip crops, $1 an acre; field-strip cropping to control wind erosion, 75 cents an acre; maintaining sod waterways, 25 cents per 1,000 square feet; tile drainage, 40 cents a rod; applying limestone, $1.20 per ton; using chemicals for weed control, 10 cents per pound of chemical; practicing clean tillage and mechanical burning of trash, etc., $10 an acre; turning under 1943 seeded red clover in the fall of 1944, $1.50 an acre; putting mulching material on orchards, vineyards, potato land, etc., $4 per ton.

Valuable in Some Areas.

The complete list is much longer and covers most normal farming practices. A good majority of midwestern farmers know that if these methods are not followed their soil suffers and their income drops.

The conservation program has done a great deal of good in communities where the farmers have been inclined to rob their land, or where the land is submarginal.

That some farmers need this federal prodding was made plain recently when a pompous one was overheard bragging during a discussion on the value of liming the soil.

"I never bother with the stuff," he declared. "I know all there is to know about farming. Why, I wore out two farms in Iowa and my one here in Illinois is about worn out now."

How to Get Rid of Weeds in Your Lawn

AFTER the lawn seedbed has been prepared and leveled by means of a light roller, it should be lightly raked to permit entry of the seeds into the topsoil.

An important part of this autumn job is getting the right amount of seed into the ground. A thin seeding will result in a thin lawn which will be subject to weed infestation. Sowing the seed too thickly may result in overcrowding of the roots and a resultant smothering of the seedlings.

A pound of seed to every 300 square feet is standard for seeding a completely new lawn; a pound to every 400 to 500 square feet is sufficient for reseeding an established lawn, varying according to the thickness of the present turf.

A more even distribution of the seed results from mixing it with a small amount of bone meal, which is white and provides a visual guide to the areas seeded.

After the seed has been broadcast, a light roller should be used again to press soil around the seed. Then the new seed should be thoroly watered with a rotary sprinkler adjusted to throw a fine spray.

SIDMON M'HIE, HAMMOND TIMES PUBLISHER, HURT

Condition Critical After Auto Is Hit by Train.

Sidmon McHie, 82, publisher of the Hammond, Ind., Times, was critically injured yesterday when his automobile was struck by two Pennsylvania railroad locomotives at the diagonal railway crossing on Torrence av. in Hammond.

McHie, who was taken to St. Margaret's hospital in Hammond, suffered a fractured left arm and multiple chest injuries, according to Chief of Police Edward Van Laningham of Lansing. Witnesses said McHie, who lives at 417-19 Fayette st., Hammond, ignored safety signals in driving into the paths of the engines.

Jasper Hawk, 79, of 2325 School st., died in his home of injuries suffered July 18 when he was struck by an automobile at Western av. and School sts. Police said Benjamin Olshanski, 48, of 656 Wrightwood av., was the driver of the car.

Bertrand Thorp, 63, of 6347 Ingleside av., died in American hospital of injuries received Monday when he was struck by an automobile at 949 Irving Park rd. Police said the car was driven by Charles Fleming, of 5956 Lake st., who was not held.

TWO BRIDEWELL TRUSTIES FLEE IN MATRON'S AUTO

Two young inmates serving auto theft terms in the Bridewell stole the car of Rose Svoboda, chief matron, late yesterday, and escaped.

The fugitives are William Lumley, 18, of 1114 Sedgwick st., and Kenneth Wons, 17, of 7126 Talcott av. The former was serving nine months, the latter five. Lumley was due for release Sept. 26, Wons on Sept. 20.

"Matron Svoboda finishes work each day at 4 p. m.," Asst. Supt. Frank Wolf said. "Shortly before that hour some one drives her car to the institution and leaves it outside the gate. The two prisoners were trusties in charge of the gate; they opened and closed it. Each day they would go outside, get Mrs. Svoboda's car, and drive it to the door of the administration building.

"Today at 4:48 they went out as usual to get the car and drive it inside. Instead of driving it in, however, they jumped in and sped away."

$32,200 HOARD OF SUPPOSED PAUPER FOUND

Government bonds worth $26,000 and $6,200 in currency were found yesterday in a safe deposit box belonging to Stephen Morris, 75, who was thought to have been a pauper when he died Aug. 13 at 1507 Warren blvd.

Jack Rubens, investigator for Public Administrator John T. Dempsey, opened a box in the Mid City Safe Deposit company, Madison and Halsted sts., and found one $10,000 bond, two $5,000 bonds, and six $1,000 bonds, along with bills of these denominations: 50 $100s, 13 $50s, 20 $20s, and 15 $10s.

Morris, who was understood to have been a former printer, lived at the rooming house of Mrs. Frances Danaher. After his death only a hoard of cigaret and cigar butts, presumably picked up in the streets, was found in his room. Don Peebles, attorney for the public administrator, said Morris' only relative is a sister, Mrs. Annie Stone of Denver, Colo.

WAR'S TRAFFIC CANCELS ANNUAL SURGEON PARLEY

The American College of Surgeons announced yesterday that because of the war time transportation shortage, it has canceled its 31st annual clinical congress scheduled to have been held in the Stevens hotel Oct. 24 thru 27 with 3,000 surgeons and 2,000 hospital personnel in attendance.

The decision to cancel the gathering, it was stated, was made in response to a letter from Maj. Gen. Norman T. Kirk, surgeon general of the army, pointing out the need for railroad equipment in moving troops and battle casualties.

Dr. Irvin Abell, Louisville, Ky., president, said the board of regents had decided all officers would be continued in office and the next meeting would be held in a city as yet unnamed in the fall of 1945, war conditions permitting.

Sacramento, Cal., Aug. 25 (AP).—Hot weather in the South Pacific has posed a problem for election officials mailing ballots to soldiers. DOUGLAS PLANT IN PLEA FOR 600 NEW EMPLOYES

The Douglas Aircraft company plant of Chicago, located near Park Ridge, needs 600 workers immediately if it is to meet its schedule of production of C-54 Skymaster cargo planes, John C. Buckwalter, plant manager, said yesterday.

The C-54s, largest cargo planes in regular service, are the only four engined transport planes now in quantity production or on order in quantities by the federal government. For the next year, Buckwalter said, there will be no reduction in the production schedule. Statements from Maj. Gen. Oliver P. Echols, assistant chief of air staff for material and services, and Brig. Gen. O. R. Cook, chief of the production section of the AAF material command, were read to the effect that the C-54s will be increasingly important in the war, even if Germany falls, because these planes will be used extensively in the war on Japan.

They are to be used as supply ships for operations of the new B-29 Superforts which have wrought havoc recently on Tokyo and other Japanese cities, Buckwalter said.

Buckwalter spoke to news writers and photographers, who were guests of the plant management on a tour of the plant and on a trial run of a C-54 which was accepted for war service yesterday.

Mrs. Lottie Lake, 57, and her grandson, Donald Lake, 3, were burned to death yesterday when fire gutted the Lake home at 34th st. and Liverpool rd., East Gary. Donald's brother, Dennis, 4, was rescued from the burning home by Robert Pio of Hobart, Ind., a war worker, who stopped when he saw the house on fire.

The children, the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Lake of 2528 Benton av., East Gary, had spent the night in their grandparents' home and were to accompany them yesterday to the Lake county fair at Crown Point, Ind. Their grandfather, Grover Lake, was at work in the American Bridge company plant in Gary when the fire broke out.

Chief Lon Daugherty of the East Chicago fire department said there was no water hydrant handy and firemen had to bring water in a 400 gallon tank on a fire truck to fight the blaze.

INHERITANCE TAX ILLEGAL, INDIAN COURT DECIDES

NEW DELHI, India, Aug. 25 [Reuter].—Inheritance taxes cannot be imposed by the government of India under the existing constitution, a majority decision of the federal court held today. An amending act by parliament would be a necessary condition of such taxes.

The government of India asked the court's opinion following a budget speech by Jeremy Raisman, finance member of the viceroy's council, in which he said the government was considering imposing death duties on nonagricultural property.

"In spite of war time taxation it is indisputable that enormous private fortunes have been made durwar thereby aggravating the great inequality which already existed," he said.

BLAMES POVERTY FOR BIGAMY IN GUILTY PLEAD

Mrs. Elizabeth Ritter, 36, of Hillside pleaded guilty to a charge of bigamy yesterday before Judge Harold G. Ward in Criminal court and her application for probation was continued to Sept. 8. She was married in 1930 to Royal Ritter and on last March 27, it is alleged, she was married to William McLaughlin, 63, of 1501 St. Charles st., Maywood. McLaughlin, a widower, said in a statement read to the court that he was under the impression Mrs. Ritter was single at the time of their wedding. Ritter asked that the charges against his wife be dismissed.

'GAMES OF SKILL' AT LAKE COUNTY FAIR ARE CLOSED

The Lake county fair at Crown Point, Ind., attracted a crowd of 28,000 people in its second day yesterday, but the carnival spirit was dampened materially by Charles W. Gannon, county prosecutor, who ordered the closing of 42 "games of skill" after a tour of the grounds with his two children.

"These so-called 'games of skill' are nothing more than gambling," he said, "and have a harmful influence on our youth."

Owen J. Roper, president of the fair association, said, "Fair officials believe that tossing balls at bottles, cats, or babies, or guessing the age or weight of a person is not gambling, even tho a prize is given each time for the few cents the customer spends."

Nevertheless, the midway remained dark in spots last night and will continue that way thruout the fair, which ends its 82d season Sunday night, the prosecutor said. The Lake county fair is the largest fair in Indiana.

REMOVE TWIN SAFELY FROM FALLOPIAN TUBE

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 25 (AP).—Two Negro babies, a boy and a girl, were thriving at city hospitals today after a twin birth which physicians said may be unique in medical history.

The twins, one of which had never been in the mother's womb, were delivered Monday, the girl normally and the boy nearly five hours later by surgery from the mother's abdominal cavity.

Leading obstetricians said they had never encountered a simjlar case, altho one said there were rumors of such a birth here more than 50 years ago.

The mother is critically ill.

The girl weighed 5 pounds 2 ounces and the boy 5 pounds 11¼ ounces. They were born two weeks prematurely.

Dr. Marius P. Johnson, who assisted Dr. Harry Donahoe in the operation, said it was not uncommon for a pregnancy in the fallopian tube to accompany a normal pregnancy, but that normally a rupture ended the tube pregnancy.

FILE PETITIONS TO HALT WAR HOME BUILDING

Petitions by property owners of the West Chesterfield community on Chicago's south side to restrain government contractors from starting the construction of emergency war homes in the community until United States Judge Elwyn R. Shaw can decide the legality of the project were filed in United States District court yesterday and set for hearing Monday.

Atty. Aaron Payne, representing more than 90 per cent of the property owners of the community, which has been called the finest Negro development in the United States, asked the court to issue a restraining order or to advance the date of hearing on his petition to vacate the court's order of last July 20 condemning lots in the community.

Payne pointed out that construction workers had gone into the community July 19, had destroyed a number of victory gardens and had begun work on construction of basements for the houses. Payne's earlier petition had opposed the construction of the homes on the ground they would endanger property values in the community. After objections to Payne's second petition by Asst. United States District Atty. Clarence W. Beatty Jr., Judge Michael L. Igoe set the matter for hearing before Judge Walter L. La Buy at 10 a. m. Monday.

DENEMARK GIVEN COURT ORDER TO EVICT FATHER

Emil Denemark, 49, president of the Emil Denemark, Inc., automobile sales company, obtained a Municipal court order yesterday to evict his father, Albert, 73, from an apartment above a garage the son owns at 3842 Ogden av.

The son told Judge George B. Weiss that his father had been separated from his mother, Josephine, for 15 years, and moved into the apartment after she died June 25. He said he had supported his mother for 35 years, and allowed her to live in the apartment without paying rent. He said he plans to remodel the property for business.

Albert Denemark said he had moved to the apartment with his wife, and that she told him he was also to be permitted to live there without paying the son. He denied his son's charge that he had means to pay rent elsewhere. He owns some unimproved land in Wisconsin and Michigan, but has nowhere to live, he said.

2D PARALYSIS DEATH OF 1944 OCCURS IN CITY

The second death due to infantile paralysis in Chicago this year occurred in the 24 hour period ended at 9 a. m. yesterday, Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health, said.

Three new cases of the disease also were reported during the period, he said, bringing the total for the year to 62 cases and two deaths, compared with 226 cases and 22 deaths reported last year to Aug. 25. Thirty-six of this year's cases and the two deaths were reported this month.

Dr. Edward A. Piszczek, county health director, said the 25th infantile paralysis case of the year in the county outside of Chicago was reported yesterday. The patient was a 14 year old girl in Wilmette. There were 83 cases in the county last year up to this time.

AUGUST'S HEAT ABOVE NORMAL; RAINFALL DOWN

Regardless of the last few cool days, August remains an excessively hot month and the deficiency in rainfall persists, O. T. Lay, meteorologist in charge of the Chicago bureau, said last night. Normal average temperature for August is 71.6, he said. Thus far, even with the cool days, the readings have ranged four degrees higher. On only four days has there been enough rain to measure. Total precipitation has been .84 inches. Normal for the month is 2.45.

FALLS TOP AUTO DEATHS FOR 1ST TIME IN 20 YEARS

The death toll from falls, the largest single cause of accidental casualties in 1943, totaled 27,400, the National Safety Council reported yesterday. For the first time in 20 years, the report added, traffic took a back seat as the nation's No. 1 cause of deaths.

Total traffic deaths were 23,400, and more than half of the traffic victims were workers, according to the report. Deaths from burns totaled 10,350, and were in third place for the year.

In its 1944 year book entitled "Accident Facts," the council estimated the total cost of accidental deaths in 1943 was $4,900,000,000 and 380,000,000 man days of work. It stated that on the job accidents killed 18,000 workers, 500 less than in 1942; injured 1,850,000, or 100,000 more than in 1942, and caused loss of time sufficient to have built 21,000 heavy bombers or 39 battleships.

BARTENDER SHOT MYSTERIOUSLY ON SHERIDAN RD.

James Joseph, 32, of 4526 Sheridan rd., a bartender, was in a critical condition in Ravenswood hospital last night with a bullet wound in the abdomen from a gun fired by an unknown assailant as he stood in front of the Grasmere hotel, 4621 Sheridan rd.

Town Hall police said he refused to talk, except to say he did not know who shot him. A soldier walking past the hotel said he saw a flash from a gun and heard the shot, which seemed to come from the direction of a tavern in the hotel.

Joseph was taken to the hospital by Arthur Fenton, 32, of 4526 Sheridan rd., also a bartender and employed in the hotel, police said. Police were questioning several patrons who were in the tavern at the time of the shooting.

EXPECT ILLINOIS TO MAIL YANKS' BALLOTS SEPT. 19

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 25 (AP).—State plans to mail unofficial ballots to local election officials will assure Illinois service men and women 58 days instead of the previously expected 45 days in which to obtain and return their Nov. 7 ballots, Secretary of State Richard Yates Rowe said today.

"Unofficial ballots that probably will require little if any changes will go out next week to county clerks and election commissioners," Rowe said, "who then can take preparatory steps for printing."

He asserted election officials should be in a position to mail official ballots by Sept. 19 instead of Sept. 23 as originally contemplated.

Rowe said army and navy officials had estimated 45 days were sufficient for distribution and return of overseas ballots.

BALLROOMS GET 30 DAY RESPITE ON CABARET TAX

Twenty-five owners and operators of Chicago ballrooms were notified yesterday by Carter H. Harrison, collector of internal revenue for the Northern district of Illinois that they have been given a 30 day extension until Oct. 1 to put the 20 per cent cabaret tax in effect in their establishments.

On Thursday the operators had been informed by Harrison that the tax would go into effect Sept. 1 upon orders issued by Joseph D. Nunan of Washington, commissioner of internal revenue.

Harrison said the extension was granted to allow owners to make necessary adjustments.

Carla Hawley to Bow Today at Tea Dance

BY JUDITH CASS.

SOMETHING of the gayety of pre-war debuts will be echoed in the tea-dance which the Jess B. Hawleys of Geneva are giving from 4 to 7 p. m. today at the Racquet club to introduce their daughter, Carla, to society. The bud and her parents and grandfather, Charles Clarke of Des Moines, Ia., will receive on the second floor of the club at the head of the stairs, and there will be dancing in the lounge.

Miss Hawley will wear a debut gown of white marquisette beaded in rhinestones and pearls. The gowns of her six assistants—Miss Kay Woodruff, Miss Betty Bennett, Miss Roberta Folonie, Miss Joan Johnson, Miss Noel Cody of Bronxville, N. Y., and Miss Anne Rice of Fort Lauderdale, Fla.—will be exact copies of hers in pale aqua, dusty pink, orchid, and powder blue.

After the party the debutante and her aids will be joined by Miss Ruth McKenna and Miss Mary Lou Robertson, who with her mother, Mrs. Cecil A. Robertson of St. Paul, Minn., is visiting Mrs. John W. Esmond for a week. The young women and their escorts will make up a theater party, for which the Hawleys have reserved two rows of seats for "Ramshackle Inn." Miss Leslie Hansen, the Leslie M. Hansens' debutante aged daughter, is waiting until Christmas time before making any definite plans for a debut party, for she will leave next week to begin her college career at Vassar. Leslie's older sister, Nancy, who is doing provisional work for the Junior league this summer at Northwestern university, will receive her degree from the university in December.

When the youngest of the Hansens' three daughters, Sally, returns tomorrow from a two months' vacation at Minne-Wonka lodge in Three Lakes, Wis., she will be accompanied by two of her young friends, Diana Goessling and Sunie Birdsall, who will have a short visit at the Hansens' Barrington home before returning to their homes in St. Louis.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

Forty-Plus and Eighteen-Minus.

In 1939 there were "Forty-Plus" clubs operating in 29 cities of the United States. Last spring the United States bureau of labor statistics was informed that the majority of the clubs had ceased to function except in "alumni" meetings—gatherings of middle aged men and women capable and active, formerly unable to find jobs, now happily employed.

At the other end of the economic yardstick is the Eighteen-Minus group, which the government is urging to move back to the classroom and away from factories this fall.

A recent University of Chicago follow-up study of a list of students who had dropped out of 43 Chicago high schools [about two years ago] shows restlessness, unsteadiness, frequent changes of employment, shows the high school workers "ill prepared educationally to meet future responsibilities on the job or in the home"—the other end of the economic yardstick.

War Time Observation.

A great big city
With all its din and noise
Is stirred up by the gals
Because it lacks the boys!

MARK SHERMAN.

Why Didn't I?

Just what is there about the prospect of being away from the office a few days which prompts feverish desk-cleaning? All it produces is one worn-out rubber band, some unanswered mail, numerous contributions—and regret.

There is the "Girls Will Be Girls Note" sent by G. B. about a former WAC who had been a parachute rigger, now discharged from service because of an injury. She strayed in from an army camp [where she drives a truck] to a fashionable department store, clad in dungarees, and was spotted by our correspondent blissfully buying a lace brassiere. Why didn't I print it?

There is Sir Bunny's free, very free, verse about "Brown legs, white shoes, tripping along Michigan av., etc., etc."—and why didn't I use that?

There is the memorandum on the woman apple crop expert, but what is her first name? Surely not Eve! Anyway, a Miss Montgomery recently was in town, little, attractively dressed, and smart as anything. Why didn't I mention it?

There is the letter from the four "brand-new" white collar girls interested in shorthand, typing, advertising, and dress-designing—but where are the addresses that go with the names? O, dear!

There is that beautiful prayer which I hoped to shorten to allotted space . . . and the letter signed "One of the Beavers" . . . and the song which a contributor composed, words and music, "Ruth MacKay, please let me say, Rhythmic A," and you can't blame a gal for trying it on her piano. . . .

And, O, horrors, there's a whole batch of replies to Presbyter Ignotus II, who worked out a problem of affigurative dates and did I ever print one of them? Did I? Tell me when I'm feeling stronger!

And there's that tired out rubber band. What did I ever do to it?

New Year's resolutions come at the wrong end of the calendar. They ought to come on the day when you clear out your desk and wallow in "Why didn't I?"

Miss Longworth Becomes Bride in East Today

When Miss Paulina Longworth, daughter of Mrs. Nicholas Longworth of Cincinnati, O., and Washington, D. C., is married to Alexander McCormick Sturm, son of the Justin C. Sturms of Westport, Conn., this afternoon in Emmanuel Episcopal church, Manchester, Mass., Mrs. Edison Dick and Mrs. George F. McLaughlin of Lake Forest will be among the guests. Mrs. Dick is a cousin of the bridegroom's mother. Another cousin, Mrs. Thomas C. Dennehy Jr., who was a bridesmaid at the marriage of Mr. Sturm and the former Katherine McCormick of Chicago, was unable to go east as she had promised to take her children on a little holiday at this time.

The wedding will be small and informal, due to the recent death of the bride's uncle, Brig. Gen. Theodore Roosevelt Jr. The Rt. Rev. Oliver J. Hart, Episcopal Bishop of Pennsylvania, will officiate, assisted by the Rev. Philip Osgood, rector of the church, and a small reception will follow in the Magnolia, Mass., home of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Edward L. Bigelow. Col. Bigelow is a cousin of the bride's mother, who is the former Alice Roosevelt, daughter of the late President Theodore Roosevelt.

Miss Longworth, who was born in Chicago, will wear a lace veil that was a gift from the last of the Russian czarinas to Mrs. Longworth, and the necklace of pearls she will wear was given to Mrs. Longworth by the people of Cuba.

Both the bride and her maid of honor will wear heirlooms at the wedding at 5 p. m. today in Christ church, Winnetka, of Miss Lindley Parker, daughter of the Leslie Monroe Parkers of Evanston, and Ensign Horace Davis Whitehouse, son of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Whitehouse, also of Evanston. The tiara of rosepoint lace and a handkerchief to match which are included in the bride's ensemble belonged to her great-great-grandmother, Mrs. Philo Lindley, of Ottawa, Ill. Miss Lois Leslie Parker, who will be her sister's maid of honor, will wear some antique jewels that belonged to their grandmother, the late Mrs. Orlo Wright Richardson of Chicago.

The Rev. E. Ashley Gerhard will read the service, and the bridegroom's father will be at the organ. A reception will follow at the Michigan Shores club. Arrangements for the wedding were made hastily when Ensign Whitehouse returned from the Pacific area, where he has participated in a number of campaigns. He and his bride will spend some time in Evanston following a wedding trip and before he reports for duty in New London, Conn.

The Paul M. Corbetts' home in Barrington will be the scene of the marriage at 4:30 p. m. today of Miss Ann Smith and Mr. Corbett's brother, Sgt. Henry M. Corbett. The bride's mother, Mrs. George S. Harlan, is here from Baltimore, Md., for the ceremony. Mr. Corbett will be his brother's best man. Sgt. Corbett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry R. Corbett of Fullerton pkwy., and his bride have taken an apartment near his post at Camp McCoy, Wis.

Mrs. Jacob Fox of New York, formerly of Chicago, announces the marriage yesterday in New York of her daughter, Janet, to Lt. Henry Goldschmidt of the army, son of Mr. and Mrs. Karl Goldschmidt of New York. The bride, a niece of Novelist Edna Ferber, attended the American Academy of Dramatic Arts. Lt. Goldschmidt and his bride will live in Baltimore, Md., while he is stationed there.

Miss Lorraine Joan Riordan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas L. Riordan of Greenwood av., will become the bride of Warrant Officer Thomas McCahill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Edward McCahill of Washington blvd., this morning in St. Ambrose church. The bride's brother, Lt. Thomas W. Riordan, a navy chaplain, will officiate at the ceremony, and another brother, Lt. Lawrence Riordan of the army air forces, will serve as best man. Warrant Officer McCahill and his bride will live in Memphis, Tenn., where he is stationed with the army air forces.

Thru the Looking Glass

In many years of column conducting we've seldom had more interesting mail than followed a couple of pieces we had a short time back on the kind of fat woman everybody loves. We broke all the laws in the beauty editors' books by saying we thought some frankly fat women, IF they were meticulous in their grooming, were so attractive as to make their more meagerly padded, if more fashionable, sisters seem dim and average.

The fat ladies loved it, and wrote us nice jolly letters to say they did. Some men loved it, too. And quite a few of the women told us that they were going to stop being grief stricken about their stoutness and start immediately on a campaign of grooming.

Our theory is that once the woman who's fat and can't help it gets her grooming and dress problems licked she can let her personality—and usually it's a wonderful one—shine undeterred.

She starts with a fanatic program of cleanliness, and the one thing she must watch above everything is avoidance of perspiration, and its odor. She perspires more than her leaner sisters and she needs to adopt extra-careful measures.

We can recommend, especially for her, a recently rediscovered antiperspirant that absolutely works wonders. It's a liquid, and it must be used carefully according to directions; it's more expensive than most on the market, too, but we honestly believe it's worth it to the woman for whom perspiration is a special problem, as it usually is for the woman who's stout.

It's a product we'd place at the top of our list for the woman determined to make her comfortable fatness an asset instead of a liability!

Throng Cheers Miss Antoine and Orchestra

BY EDWARD BARRY.

Josephine Antoine is not only expert with such lovable operatic absurdities as the crescendo and diminuendo on the single long held note but she has also come to understand more and more the communicative function of music.

When the comely young American soprano appeared at Grant park last night with the Chicago Symphony orchestra under Désiré Defauw's direction she trotted out every technical trick in her bag but laudably gave the bulk of her energies to the task of making the music mean something to her audience.

Her first offering, Micaela's air from Bizet's "Carmen," was sung with an honest fervor. Miss Antoine successfully identified herself with the innocent peasant maid of the story. Her phrasings and voice colorings, except in those few places where nerves or the lack of a previous warm-up hardened her tone or interrupted the flow of her legato, matched the character she was portraying.

Miss Antoine's technical adroitness was displayed to its best advantage in Constanza's air from Mozart's "The Elopement from the Seraglio," for here her feathery coloratura and her ability to vary her colorings subtly from phrase to phrase were determining factors in the success of her projection of the piece's musical content.

So insistent was the applause of the huge audience after the Mozart that the singer added a deeply felt "The Last Rose of Summer" to her scheduled program. She sang with a sweetness and sincerity that did justice to the dewy little melody. Joseph Vito, the orchestra's harpist, gave her a fittingly delicate accompaniment.

After presenting a sufficiently brilliant "Benvenuto Cellini" overture and providing Miss Antoine with expert accompaniments in the Bizet and the Mozart, Mr. Defauw and the orchestra reclaimed the spotlight with Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Scheherazade" suite.

Any one in the audience who slumped in his seat and prepared to get thru this often dismal piece as painlessly as he could must have been jerked upright before many measures had been played. The music's languorous melodies were presented persuasively and its barbaric colors laid on with a generous brush. Something of the old wonder of Rimsky-Korsakoff's way with an orchestra dispelled the cloud of boredom.

The second half of the program began with supple performances of two Dvorak Slavonic dances. The mixed air of gravity and of sunburnt mirth which pervades these pieces was well realized. Miss Antoine returned to the stage for a group of slight songs which in some cases were hardly worthy of her talents. The scheduled program closed with Dukas' "The Apprentice Sorcerer."

New Blouses Make Simplest Suit Distinctive

BY REA SEEGER.

Exquisitely made and very distinctively designed blouses, the kind that recall the handwork and romance of Paris originals, can be found here in Chicago. There's a jewel of a collection of such beauties that will take your breath away and, incidentally, some of your money. Each is a definite creation, a blouse to make your simplest suit a costume of superlative chic. Each appears to be made to individual order, and details are especially beautiful.

While the filmy white blouses are sensationally tempting, with clever little details and handwork, there are two colors that are delightful surprises, a blush pink and a dove gray. The sheers and less sheer materials, like satin or crepe, are particularly effective with simple dressmaker suits. One model has an entire front panel of soft, wide tucks, another of crepe has a deep, oval yoke of lattice work in wide diamond shape design and the sleeves have deep cuffs to match. A third has the bosom tucks outlined with either silver or gold thread, and there's also a thin, pink lace blouse to charm the most demanding shopper.

Dove gray, as soft and subtle as the name, is a new color for blouse contrast, for it will blend with navy, with brown, with green, and with black dress parade suits, besides being stunning with gray suits of all street shades. Tops in blouse excitement are those of white satin with hand painted designs, particularly one with apple blossoms and a vagrant bluebeard. These unusual blouses are cut with long sleeves, so that dress costumes of skirt and blouse are possible.

Critic Tells All About Bud and Lou in Rhyme

"IN SOCIETY."

A Universal picture, directed by Jean Yarbrough, starring Bud Abbott and Lou Costello, and presented at the Palace.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!
Ab-BOTT and Costello are at it again
They ain't made a fillum since I don't know when
On account, as you know, of Lou Costello's illness
Which compelled him to lie a-bed in complete stillness.
[This is going all right!]
Greetings, Lou, glad you're back—and I'll try to be civil;
Scant welcome 'twould be for to give you the divil . . .
It's comical and is quite a la the style
That's made Buddy and Lou such a popular pair—
Lou's naivete foil for Ab-BOTT'S savoir faire.
[Nice that "Abbott" has two syllables.]
They're plumbers this trip who, due to a mistake,
The like of which most of us are prone to make,
With the creme de la creme of society mix,
A fawcet which leaked, drippy drop, drippy drop,
Was the primary cause of adventures de trop.
[Pronounce "trop" like it looks.]
Most all of the action is slapstick and crazy,
Miss Marion Hutton, a blonde, is a daisy!
Especially when singing—Ha—th' title will rhyme!
"My Dreams Are Get-TING Better A-a-ll the Time."
[Had to kind of stretch that out to make it fit.]
Little Lou is lambasted by Bud's oral bludgeons,
He's mauled and mistreated when Bud's in high dudgeons,
But he bounces and smiles and his fans know the fac'
That, tho bounced, like a ball [rubber] little Lou will come back
And he'll get his innings [they're always quite certain]
By the time it is time for the film's final curtain.
Just for that, Lambykins, I WON'T—
See you tomorrow.
[Only in the "Voice of the Movie Fan" column.]

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Aug. 25. — No vacation in sight for Hume Cronyn, young actor who made his screen bow in "Shadow of a Doubt" and is now making a career of second leads. He's just finished "The Seventh Cross," and is in "Telltale Hands," the five reel "Crime Doesn't Pay" subject being made at the request of the war department. Next he goes into "The Clock" with Judy Garland and Bob Walker, then to "Yolanda and the Thief" with Lucille Ball, Fred Astaire, and Lucile Bremer. Hume's wife, Jessica Tandy, is doing all right, too. She appeared as his wife in "Seventh Cross," and in "Valley of Decision" will be his sister-in-law, Hume being one of the sons in the family for which Greer Garson is a servant.

It's an Ill Wind—But Not for Twentieth.

48 Amazons—So Tarzan Becomes Wolf.

That famous Tarzan call will turn into a wolf call when Johnny [Tarzan] Weissmuller gets a load of the 48 gals Sol Lesser's signing up for "Tarzan and the Amazons." There will be quite a few changes in this picture — Tarzan has a new mate for one thing. Brenda Joyce takes the place of Maureen O'Sullivan, who's expecting. And Chita, the chimpanzee, will be played by a new chimp, the regular one having got too old and crotchety to work with. Incidentally, Shirley O'Hara, who plays Athenia, leader of the Amazons, has been signed to a contract as the first of a new stock company Lesser's building. . . . When Lou Harris' next short, "Isle of Tabu" is released, Nancy Porter, who plays the lead, may be wearing a very abbreviated sarong designed by the marines—they hope. When some of the boys in the South Pacific got the word she was to do this, they worked out what they thought she should wear, and Tech Sgt. R. M. Bixler [a former Hollywood photographer] wrote to Nancy to hold everything — that the sarong was on its way.

Why Not? The Juniors Have the Talent.

Freddie March has written Walter Wanger, president of the Motion Picture academy, suggesting that a special Oscar be awarded to our junior actors each year. It was the work of the two 12 year olds, Skippy Homeier and Joan Carroll, who worked with him in "The Intruder," that gave Freddie the idea, and this is what he writes: "Today's screen youngsters are no one picture discoveries or bit players. They're talented, capable performers. Margaret O'Brien, Jackie Jenkins, Roddy McDowall, and others, as well as Skipp and Joan, are completely capable of carrying a picture by themselves, and frequently do. There is no reason why these highly talented young actors and actresses shouldn't be rewarded, just as every other craft and technical department is, thru an outstanding representative."

Small Fry—or Out of Mouths of Babies.

When Ingrid Bergman's 5 year old daughter Pia visited her mother on the set of "House of Dr. Edwardes," Director Alfred Hitchcock asked her if she was going to be an actress. "No," said the little girl, "I want to be a nurse. Daddy's work is much more interesting." Her daddy's a doctor. . . . Abbott and Costello got to town just in time to help Mrs. Bud Abbott with her birthday party for Bud Jr. It was his fifth birthday, and his first party since his adoption by the Abbotts. Among movie kids attending was Martha Raye Condos' baby daughter, Melody, making her first public appearance. . . . Angna Enters, who's a house guest of the Francis Taylors, is teaching young Elizabeth dancing and rhythmic exercises. Elizabeth leaves soon for location in Washington state for "Hold High the Torch" in which she and Lassie are reunited.

What's Cookin' Up at Arrowhead?

Doris Nolan and Alexander [Woodrow Wilson] Knox, who almost got to the altar five years ago, are both at Arrowhead Springs this weekend, talking over old times, or planning new ones. . . . Ella Raines' husband, Maj. Ken. Trout, has been transferred from Florida to Muroc Lake, Cal. . . . Harry Sherman expects to lay about $1,200 on the line for 10 gallon hats alone when he films the life of Tom Mix. Tom used to pay as high as $200 apiece for those famous lids. . . . When Kay Francis started as co-producer at Monogram, the studio offered to set her up right, with secretary, plush office, and several phones. Said Kay, "No, thanks, I can worry better without the accessories!"

'Miss Lieutenant' . . . . . By Nina Wilcox Putnam

MAPS SAFE.

The other elderly clown, a thin, ascetic looking creature whose fine face was lined with the marks of melancholy far in excess of tradition, stood quietly aside.

"Shouldn't I know him?" Carol asked.

"It's Prof. Rosenblum," Lita whispered, "the famous scientist. He was in a concentration camp not so long ago. Now he's with—us, waiting to get across into Spain."

"And the rest of them?"

"All exactly what they seem to be. Old time performers. They don't take any active part in the underground beyond allowing one or two of us to travel with them when necessary."

"How can you be sure they're on the level—that they're not collaborating with the so-and-so's?" It was Bright asking this. Lita smiled.

"By a feeling in my bones," she said. "The bones in my head."

Lita led the way back to her wagon. Darkness had fallen now and the woods and fields had lost their warm beauty and seemed menacing.

"Better let the camp settle down now," Lita said. "This road—any road is liable to be patroled and always when one least expects it. We'll go inside and talk while our friends get over their excitement."

"But you girls will want to talk," he protested. "I could make out over by the fire."

"And stick out like a sore thumb if anybody passes by!" Carol protested. "Lita may as well let you into the family council now as later."

"I love him, Lita," she said simply, "and altho he hasn't been very formal I gather his intentions are honorable, and I'm saying yes."

"Family or no family, this may be our only chance to talk. Papagol really runs this outfit and he won't let me pad the pay roll if he thinks it's too dangerous," her sister responded.

They were inside the wagon now and Lita shut the door. A small lantern hung from the ceiling. There were two bunks, both of them wide and comfortable in the French manner which considers the bed above any other furnishing. On a peg hung the white wig for which Carol had searched in the old costume chest back at Le Bastion, and the missing gold slippers stood on the dresser shelf. So Lita had known exactly whom to join when she left the castle and taken along these useful accessories.

As soon as the door was closed, Lita's manner became tense.

"Before you tell me anything else," she said, "I must know one thing. I take for granted you went to Le Bastion. You must have, because only Mme. Victorine could have steered you here. Tell me—what has happened to my husband?" It was Bright who answered.

"You'll be glad to know his German pals turned on him!" he said. "He's been taken into protective custody and whisked off by the Gestapo!"

But there was no answering satisfaction in Lita's face. Instead her eyes closed and her face turned deathly pale. Carol had barely time to catch her sister as Lita fell forward in a dead faint.

"Holy snakes! I never thought she'd take it like that! I shouldn't have broken the news like a block buster!" Bright said.

"How could you guess? I know she still loves him terribly."

"Sorry," she said. "This is no time for pulling dramatics but it was a shock. You see, I expected Jacques to join me. We were hoping to get to England."

"Join you? Then it's not true what they said about Jacques being a collaborationist?"

"No, of course not!" Lita was indignant. "It was an act. Jacques had excellent reasons for it. It was a question of counter-spying for one thing. The longer we stuck with the Germans, the longer he could keep on shooting out information to the Fighting French."

"So they caught up with him," she added. "My Jacques! Somehow we never quite believed that this dreadful sort of thing could happen to us. I'll be okay while you tell me everything you know—where you've been and what you saw and why you are here."

Carol told the whole story. When Carol had done, Lita sat quietly looking at her hands for a moment. When she spoke, her voice was completely controled and calm.

"Of course I have those maps," she said. "Jacques himself gave them to me. The minute we heard the Americans were in North Africa he realized how terribly valuable they would be. Jacques and I were going away together—that was our original idea."

"What stopped you?"

"Somehow Janner learned about the preparatory work for the book on the secret Riviera, and Jacques was afraid to wait. There was nothing for him to do but pretend to bargain with Janner for the maps while I escaped with them."

"The funny part of it is, I did go to Castellaine. I joined the circus there and have been traveling with it ever since, waiting to hear from my husband or to have him join me. And now you say: O, I'll have to find him somehow, Carol, and help him!"

But Carol could not give her sister this obvious sort of lip service. There had never been any sense in trying to fool Lita about what she, Carol, thought, for Lita and she read each other's minds too easily. Carol had seen Jacques carried off. She had also seen enough of the sort of thing that had gone on at Le Bastion to have a very clear picture of the life to which Lita and her husband had been forced to submit. There was only one thing to do: Help her face the facts. They had always taken that attitude with each other even when as children one or the other had been in difficulties.

"The best thing we can do for Jacques right now," she said aloud, "is to carry out the job he started."

"Right!" said Lita, rising to the challenge. "I guess you'd both like to have a look at what you came for. I have it all right here."

Give Children Some Margin for Mistakes

[Copyright: 1944: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Having rescued the baby from falling down the back steps, picked up after Jackie when he came in from the fields across the street, and called up the grocer to correct the mistake Carol made in the order, their mother sighed and said, "Wouldn't it be marvelous to have perfect children?"

I expect all mothers think they would like such a state of affairs when they have too much to do or are tired, but they really wouldn't.

Suppose, if you can, that your son never left the bathroom looking as if a hurricane had struck it; suppose he always hung his sweater or coat in the closet without a reminder from you; suppose he always washed his hands before each meal without even a hint from a grownup. Suppose your daughter was always polite and demure; suppose she always helped with the dishes and about the house, and never teased for pretty clothes or extra pocket money. In short, suppose you did have perfect children! Wouldn't it be horrible? You would know there was something the matter and you wouldn't like it a bit.

You may think you would when you are weary and the children are heedless and trying. You may think it isn't asking much of them to expect this and this and this. But it wouldn't be natural for them to be faultless. Nature has standards of her own for the youngsters, and they are not at all like ours. They are the standards for half primitive, growing creatures who cannot conform in every direction without denying their origin.

To be sure, we want our children to be reasonably coöperative. We don't want them to be utterly out of adjustment with their environment, to be wild and uncontroled. But occasional lapses from conformity are perfectly natural for every lively, normal child. Goodness knows, grown people have enough of them. Then, why should we expect so much more from the children? We must allow them what is called in statistics a margin of error.

We would be appalled if we wished for or expected perfection, and then actually got it!

North	East	South	West
1 diamond	Pass	1 no trump	Pass
3 no trump	Pass	Pass	Pass

The bidding:

South should have responded with one spade, not one no trump, but it must be admitted that his choice turned out well, because West opened the spade deuce. East put up the king, and promptly returned the same suit, hoping his partner could win several tricks in that quarter. Actually, of course, West could win only the ace, and after he had played that card, the shift to hearts did not seem as attractive as a lead thru the blank ace-queen of clubs. Declarer put up the club ace and quickly knocked out the diamond king. East could have laid down the heart ace then, but this would have been a give-up play, so he led another spade. The heart ace "went to sleep."

East could have planned a two way defense. Upon winning with the spade king, he should have shifted to a low heart. If West had the heart queen, this would force the king, and later, when East got in with the diamond king and returned a spade, West could cash the spades he had to cash, and then lead thru the heart jack to East's established ten-ace. If West didn't have the heart queen, East's heart return would scarcely do any harm, since the subsequent spade return would exploit that suit.

Milwaukee Players Win Pair Games in Bridge Tournament

Mrs. W. J. Myers and Mrs. L. J. Greenebaum won the women's pair game and H. F. Herberlein and G. J. Nauert were victors in the men's pair game in the opening events yesterday of the annual Chicago summer championship of the Chicago Contract Bridge association in the Edgewater Beach hotel. All the winners of the first two events live in Milwaukee, Wis.

The women winners scored 259½ points. The next two pairs, Mrs. D. J. Sheehan and Mrs. H. H. Acton, both of Danville, Ill., and Mrs. Arthur Pratt and Mrs. C. C. Mathews, both of Indianapolis, Ind., were tied with scores of 235½. Second place in the men's contest went to M. C. Franklin and C. G. Craig, both of Chicago, who scored 128½ points, four points below the winners' score of 132¼. With 127 points, George Mullen of Perry, Ia., and H. F. Rohner of Chicago, won third place.

Women in War Work

By Dorothy Johnson

Edythe M. Carlton, 401 N. Fourth av., Maywood, is one of four WASPs [women air force service pilots] assigned this week to Blackland army air field, Waco, Tex., to fill ferrying and test piloting duties with the army air forces' training command installation, commanded by Lt. Col. Fred H. Bounds.

Miss Carlton, who did personnel work and modeling in Chicago before reporting to the WASPs for training last December, recently completed instruction at Avenger field, Sweetwater, Tex.

The women interested in and studying aviation who are members of the Women Flyers of America, 116 S. Michigan av., are hoping for visibility unlimited and good tailwinds for tomorrow, when they will hold a "flying picnic" at the Lewis School of Aeronautics in Lockport, Ill.

The high point of the day, which will begin with an assembly of members at the bus depot at Randolph and State sts. at 10 a. m., will be free 15 minute flying lessons for every active and prospective member. Mrs. Marie Bartsch is Chicago chairman of the organization, many of whose members are taking war training or are engaged in volunteer work in addition to holding down jobs and studying aviation.

Tomorrow afternoon five members of the American Camp and Hospital Service, 540 Briar pl., will accompany the organization's hospital chairman, Miss Dora Lou Litwin, to the marine hospital, 4141 Clarendon av., for a party for patients who celebrate August birthdays.

Miss Litwin and her committee will take birthday cakes, gifts, magazines, song sheets, phonograph records, cigarets, and candy to the three ward floors. The party is one in a monthly series given by the American Camp and Hospital Service in Chicago area military and naval hospitals.

Mrs. Louis Green, president, has announced that the next regular meeting of the club will take place at 3 p. m. Sept. 10 at headquarters. The organization recently exceeded its war bond quota by $15,000.

Several events in behalf of service men are on this week-end's calendar of the Women's Defense Corps of America. Among them is the MacArthur chapter's party at 8 o'clock tonight at 1634 E. 53d st. for men in uniform. Mrs. Gussie Hecht is captain of the unit. The Gen. Doolittle chapter, with its new chairman, Mrs. Alice Solon, heading the committee, will have its bi-weekly dance for service men at the Lake Shore park fieldhouse in E. Chicago av., also at 8 o'clock.

The W. D. C. A.'s national commander, Mrs. Nelle H. Bosworth of Chicago, has announced that the organization has begun a recruitment campaign for 2,000 new members to assist in the corps' projected rehabilitation program in military hospitals. Mrs. Bosworth also said the chapters are preparing 15,000 Christmas gifts to be sent thru the Red Cross to men overseas.

Mrs. Bosworth has a personal as well as a patriotic interest in war projects of the W. D. C. A. Her son, Lt. Wallace C. Bosworth, reconnaissance pilot in the army air forces, has performed 20 missions and has received the air medal with three oak leaf clusters.

Need of Increased Aid to Libraries by States Is Explained

Libraries educate citizens; therefore the state should aid libraries. This was the assertion yesterday of Julia Merrill of the American Library association before the Library Extension institute at the University of Chicago.

Speaking on "State Aid to Public Libraries," Miss Merrill argued that such aid stimulates the spread of state library units, raises personnel standards, and extends service to areas lacking libraries. While state aid is still in its early stages, she said, appropriations ranging from $5,300 in Delaware to $300,000 in Michigan were made in 1944.

"Many other states have made efforts to secure state aid," she said, "and among them North Carolina, Arkansas, Virginia, Ohio, and Massachusetts have succeeded; but Illinois, Washington, and Louisiana whose legislatures approved bills for library state aid failed thru governors' vetoes."

Kitchen Pointers

By Mary Meade

"What is the difference between white and cider vinegar? Can these two kinds be used interchangeably in pickle making?"

Cider vinegar, the kind most commonly used for cooking purposes, is made by the fermentation of apple juice. White vinegar is fermented, distilled alcohol which has been diluted. White vinegar is a "must" in making pickled onions because a dark vinegar would discolor the white onions. In making most other pickles, the cider vinegar is preferable because of its finer flavor. Be sure to use a good grade of vinegar when making pickles.

"I have some half gallon maple sirup jugs. Can I put up tomato juice in these by corking them and sealing with wax?"

Neither tomato juice nor any other kind of juice should be canned in containers of this kind. The seal would not be airtight and the product surely would ferment. These jugs would be excellent, however, for homemade wine.

"About how much sugar would I need to can a bushel of peaches?"

Approximately five to six pounds of sugar would be sufficient for canning this amount of fruit if a medium sirup is used [2 cups water to 1 cup of sugar]. If fruit is canned by the hot pack method, only ¾ to 1 cup sirup is needed for each quart.

"What is the difference between hot and cold pack canning of fruit, and which method do you recommend?"

In hot pack canning, the fruit is precooked in boiling sirup, then packed into hot jars and processed in the boiling water bath. Cold pack canning consists of packing the raw fruit into jars, covering with boiling sirup, and processing. While the hot pack requires slightly more food preparation time, it is time well spent. The hot pack allows more fruit to be packed in each jar and consequently requires less sugar sirup to fill up the jar; it prevents floating fruit because fruit can be packed more solidly. The method also is safer from the standpoint of adequate food sterilization.

Can we help you with a canning problem? Call or write Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune, Superior 0200. Inclose stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply to a mail request.

DOG CURB PERILS WOUNDED YANKS, DR. SOSKIN SAYS

Tells of Vital Research Under Way Here.

Passage of a proposed amendment to a city ordinance which would bar medical schools and hospitals from having free access for humane experimentation to abandoned dogs in the municipal pound would have a serious effect on further reduction of death from battle injuries suffered by America's fighting men, Dr. Samuel Soskin, medical director of Michael Reese hospital, asserted yesterday.

The amendment, sponsored as a resolution by Ald. O'Hallaren [18th], will come up for public hearing before the city council's committee on health at 10:30 a. m. Monday. It would repeal that section of a law which now permits "any reputable institution of learning, hospital, or allied institute" to use unclaimed and unlicensed dogs confiscated by the city "for the good of mankind." Dogs not so utilized are destroyed by pound officials and turned into soap or fertilizer, it has been pointed out.

Vital Problems Involved.

Dr. Soskin said that passage of the proposed amendment would hamper the solution of vital medical war problems now being investigated here under auspices of the United States office of scientific research and development.

"Animal experimentation has been directly responsible for a large part of medical progress which, during the last few decades, has added some 20 years to the normal life span," Dr. Soskin said.

"To mention only a few specific items, it has been the means by which the control of diabetes, successful treatment of pernicious anemia, the development of modern surgical technique, and the testing of drugs [such as the miraculous sulfonamides and penicillin] have been accomplished. It is often forgotten that the animals themselves have benefited greatly by animal experimentation. An example is the control of distemper in dogs."

Need for Progress Told.

But most important of all, Dr. Soskin asserted, is the necessity for continued and unhampered progress of research in war time medical problems largely dependent for their solution on increased instead of lessened animal experimentation in the Chicago area.

"At this time the supply of dogs is particularly important to enable the medical schools of our city to offer the best type of instruction to their students," he asserted.

"Most of these students will shortly become officers in the medical corps of our armed forces and upon the adequacy of their training will depend the lives of our soldiers, sailors, and marines.

Research Cuts War Toll.

"It is common knowledge that the mortality rate on the battlefield in this war has been decreased spectacularly as compared to the last war. Animal experimentation played a major role in making this possible.

"This research in the Chicago area on shock, hemorrhage, blast injuries, war games, head and chest wounds, malaria, and the hazards of combat aviation, will effect a further reduction in the mortality of our fighting men if it is allowed to proceed unhampered."

The fact that impounded and abandoned dogs have been available in Chicago for humane and painless research has helped make this city the great medical center it has become, Dr. Soskin said.

Pressure Groups Attacked.

He characterized as "small pressure groups" the opponents to humane animal experimentation who carry on their work with money "usually left to them by old maids and eccentrics who are fonder of cats and dogs than they are of human beings."

The paid executive secretaries of such anti-vivisection organizations, he charged, are compelled to "create a stir at frequent intervals" in order "to justify their salaries." Other opponents to animal experimentation, whom he classified as "sentimentalists," do not hesitate, he said, "to slaughter animals for food, to trap them for their furs, and hunt them with guns, and yet object to their use for the most valuable purpose of all in relieving human suffering."

DECLARES WORK ON DOGS HELPS SAVE WOUNDED

Countless wounded men who would have died in World War I. are being saved in this war because doctors have learned an effective treatment for shock thru surgical experiments which were conducted on animals, Dr. Lester R. Dragstedt, professor of surgery at the University of Chicago medical school, said yesterday in a statement approved by other members of the faculty.

"This important work represents one of Chicago's great contributions to humanity," he said. The experiments established that the loss of blood plasma is a chief cause of shock. Injection of plasma has saved the lives of many severely wounded men.

Every effort is made in the animal experiments to prevent suffering, and animals used always were completely anesthetized, Dr. Dragstedt said. He said reports to the contrary are "false and malicious."

Charles Vojtech declared in a newspaper article yesterday that he was horrified by the treatment of a dog he called Tricks while he worked in the experimental laboratory. The university stated Vojtech worked there from June 21 to Aug. 8, half the time in training, and that Tricks is non-existent. The laboratory has a dog named Goopy as a pet, and Goopy can do tricks.

THE QUESTION.

What has been your most amusing or embarrassing experience while waiting on a customer?

WHERE ASKED.

Ricketts restaurant, 2727 N. Clark st. [Asked of waitresses.]

THE ANSWERS.

Lola Ray, 925 Montrose av.—A customer who was particular about service brought in three pheasants for us to prepare. That night in front of his three guests he asked me to carve. I did my best, slicing the pheasant to ribbons. That was my first experience at carving. It was a difficult piece of work.

Joyce Waller, 2522 Burling st.—When I first started working as a waitress I was really quite green. Three gentlemen came in. One said, "I'll have a Manhattan." The other ordered a Martini. The third said, "I'll just take a rain check." I went to the bar and solemnly ordered a rain check.

Diane MacDonald, 1649 Dayton st.—Something that amused me was an experience that I had with an apparently modern woman. She had just finished a preparation of sweetbreads [which come from the neck of a calf] and called me to the table to say: "That's the most delicious fish I've eaten in a long time."

Jennie Crawford, 2547 N. Clark st.—I was serving a party of five at one of my tables. One dignified woman said, "I'd like to have this chicken saute, but I've never eaten saute, so would you mind just putting it on the side." Of course, saute means fried, and tho I was amused, I just said, "Yes."

Anne Anderson, 5301 N. Ashland av.—After giving her order a sweet old lady smiled and asked if I would do her a special favor. The menu specified "creamed whipped potatoes." She said she would rather have hers mashed, because she didn't like them creamed whipped. They're the same thing.

Teddy Dillard, 4707 Malden st.—One well dressed, sophisticated woman came in with a friend of hers. She ordered roast duck, and when she finished ordering she said, "Please, I'd like all white meat." I snickered to myself and thought, "Are you dumb! There isn't any white meat on a duck." But I just smiled.

DAD WHO LEFT BABY IN PARK TO BE QUIZZED

A psychiatric examination was ordered yesterday by Judge Irwin B. Clorfene in Women's court for Ellsworth Grimm, 31, of Detroit, Mich., who is accused by his wife, Audrey, 19, of abandoning their 9 month old son. A similar examination was ordered for Mrs. Grimm when she was arraigned before Judge Clorfene last Monday on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor. The couple left their son in the care of a stranger in Lincoln Park after they had spent two nights sleeping in the park following eviction from their home for nonpayment of rent.

STATE TO FIGHT PROBATION PLEA IN $51,560 THEFT

Asst. State's Atty. Wilbert F. Crowley said yesterday that his office would oppose probation for Knud Nielsen, 45, of 339 N. Radcliffe way, Hinsdale. Nielsen pleaded guilty Tuesday to a reduced charge of larceny after admitting he took $51,560 from his employer, the Belden Manufacturing company.

Crowley, who added that present information does not justify consideration of the probation plea by Nielsen's attorney, explained that the charge was changed from embezzlement to larceny because prosecution was simplified.

Nielsen still faces an indictment charging conspiracy with W. A. Woods, 62, of 1010 Springfield av., Deerfield, who allegedly cashed checks made out by Nielsen for large sums against the company. Nielsen, an employe of the company for more than 20 years, was manager of its foreign sales division. His attorney, Charles A. Bellows, said restitution had been made by Nielsen to the company.

RULING DELAYED IN JACKSON HOLE PRESERVE FIGHT

Sheridan, Wyo., Aug. 25 (AP).—The state of Wyoming's suit to invalidate a Presidential proclamation creating the Jackson Hole National monument cannot be settled for several months, probably until early next year. Testimony heard by United States District Judge T. Blake Kennedy, ended yesterday and December was set as the deadline for filing briefs.

State witnesses testified the 221,610 acre western Wyoming tract, in a region famed for hunting, fishing, and scenery, had no historical or geological significance that would justify making a preserve.

COP SUSPENDED 1 DAY AFTER HIS REINSTATEMENT

Patrolman Wilbur Hardy of the Shakespeare av. station, who was reinstated Thursday after being fined 30 days' pay by the police trial board, was suspended again yesterday by Commissioner Allman. Hardy reported intoxicated at the W. North av. station Thursday night to recover his star, which was taken from William F. Shephard, 32, of 1407 Diversey pkwy., when Shephard was arrested Thursday on a charge of indecent exposure, it was reported to Allman. Shephard was with Hardy when he recovered his police equipment from the custodian's office. Hardy's fine was for failing to report to his superior officer.

SIX RUN IN $80,950 AMERICAN DERBY TODAY

NELSON LEADS OPEN WITH 138 ON 2D ROUND 70

McSpaden, Ghezzi 2 Strokes Behind.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

While pretty Louise Nelson was knitting another pair of those fancy sox for her husband, Byron, yesterday, that busy gentleman was doing a spot of knitting for himself. Using golf clubs instead of needles, he wove a bright 70 to take the halfway lead in the All-American Open tournament at Tam o' Shanter with a 138, six under par and two strokes in front of the field. If you are interested in watching a golfer's golfer play his third round today you'd better be up betimes, for Nelson will tee off on his third round of the 72 hole battle for $13,400 in war bonds at 10 a. m.

'Twas no surprise to find Nelson's name up front again in the lively production which George S. May has been putting on these four years. Byron won the 1941 title off by himself. The following year, in which he set a course record that included an ace, he was forced into a playoff with Sgt. Clayton Heafner and ran away with that. Last summer he finished in a tie for third, a shot away from the leaders.

McSpaden, Ghezzi Tied.

He still has somewhat of a problem on his hands in the remaining 36 holes, however, for, at 140, he finds his good friend Jug McSpaden, the defending champion, and Sgt. Vic Ghezzi of Camp Grant, Ill., pressing him. Yesterday McSpaden and Ghezzi, who had 71s in Thursday's opener, fired 69s, with Vic, 1941 National P. G. A. champion, holing a 10 footer for a birdie at No. 18.

One stroke back of McSpaden and Ghezzi are tall Henry Picard of Harrisburg, Pa., and chunky Felix Serafin of Pittston, Pa. Felix added a 70 to his initial 71, while Picard, Nelson's conqueror in the 1939 P. G. A. final, turned in the round of the day, a 66 that left him only a shot over the course record.

Bulla Soars to 79.

Johnny Bulla, whose 65 tied the course record for the first round lead Thursday, came in yesterday with a 79 for a 144 total. He had six one putt greens on the opening round, but yesterday Johnny's putter came down with a slight chill, resulting in six three putt greens.

Cards for Nelson, McSpaden, and Ghezzi:

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD.

ONE of the secrets of the Chicago Bears' consistent success is the rules of conduct which call for punishment to transgressors without fear or favor. . . . It costs a Bear player $200, not including the costs of the drinks, for intoxication, if the club finds out about it. . . . Missing practice without permission costs $100. . . . Tardy arrival at squad meetings is in the $25 bracket, along with being late for practice, and sitting on the ground during drills. . . . The assessment for playing poker or dice is $100. . . . Hearts, at a cent a point, and bridge, at one-tenth of a cent a point, are permitted. . . . George Wilson, veteran end who will lead the Bears against the All-Stars in Dyche stadium Wednesday night, thinks trainers are unimportant. . . . He hasn't visited the team's muscle mauler for two seasons. . . . It is said that a delegation of Milwaukee fans called on Casey Stengel shortly after he became manager of the Brewers and asked him how and when he got the name Casey. . . . He hastily produced proof his real name is Charley, same as his predecessor, and that his grandma and grandpa were neighbors of Grimm's folks in Germany. . . . Ensign Bill Daley, who with Ensign Bill Godwin, is spending a two weeks' leave from an amphibious base in Florida in the Chicago area, rates Lt. Col. Bernie Bierman of Minnesota, his old coach, the greatest gridiron instructor of his time. . . . Incidentally, Daley's present boss, Capt. Clarence Gulbranson, and his former boss, Col. Bierman, both will attend the All-Star game. . . . .

Bing Miller, White Sox coach, rarely plays cards himself, but is an expert kibitzer of all games from cribbage to nine handed poker. . . . The widows of two of America's most widely known sports figures, both of whom died at the height of their fame, will be in the same box at the All-Star game Wednesday night. . . . They are Mrs. Noble Kizer of Lafayette, Ind., and Mrs. Lou Gehrig of New York. . . . President Charles T. Herndon Jr. of the Appalachian league has warned club officials about widespread gambling on league games. . . . Ty Cobb's daughter works in a Red Cross canteen in Rome. . . . Stan Cofall, back field ace at Notre Dame before World War I., is president of the Cleveland Touchdown club and chairman of the boxing commission. . . . Lt. Col. Dick Hanley, formerly of Northwestern, who has spent part of his time during the war belittling the value of competitive athletics, is coach a football team on the west coast. . . . Bill Dietrich is the acknowledged crossword champ of the White Sox. . . . He sometimes gets knocked out in baseball, but never walks off a crossword court until the last square has been filled. . . . The contest for supremacy among the 3 year olds has a way of falling into midsummer doldrums, but now By Jimminy has come along to freshen things up with today's American Derby offering an occasion for the freshening. . . . Last year, as a juvenile, he was a late summer and fall performer, and he seems to be developing his best 1944 form right now when so many others are getting a bit jaded. . . . If he wins today's race at Washington Park, he'll be in an excellent position to go on and establish a strong claim on the championship of his division, for he already has the Shevlin, Dwyer, and Traverse to his credit.

When oceans were just puddles where
A thirsty dream could drink,
When skies were low enough to touch
And lightning just a spark,
When twilight hadn't strength enough
To change the day to dark,
When rainbows hung so very low
Gay laughter skipped the rope,
And mountains now lost in the sky
Were but a hill and slope,

COLLEGE STARS LOSE SERVICES OF VAN BUREN

Has Operation for Appendicitis.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

[Additional All-Star news on next page.]

Steve Van Buren, Louisiana State half back for the last three years, was lost to the All-Stars for the game with the Chicago Bears Wednesday night as a result of an emergency appendicitis operation early yesterday morning. Van Buren had been ordered to the hospital for observation just before the All-Star intrasquad games in Dyche stadium Thursday night.

Loss of Van Buren further cripples the All-Star back field strength already depleted by injury to Gene Fekete and Paul Sarringhaus of Ohio State, Tony Storti of Illinois, Ralph Park of Texas, and William Reinhard of California. Fekete definitely will not be able to play against the Bears.

One of Top Scorers.

All-Star over-all strength, particularly at full back, guard, and quarter back, also had been affected by ineligibility as a result of local interpretation of a navy directive.

Van Buren had been expected to play considerable time at right half back against the Bears, where his speed would have been important on running plays and in getting down field under passes by Glenn Dobbs and Bill Hillenbrand. Van Buren weighs 200 pounds, and five Louisiana State victories last fall were the result of his running. Steve scored 98 of the Bengals' 143 points to finish second in the national individual standings.

Coaches Seek Replacement.

Van Buren, of course, did not participate in the round robin games Thursday night in the first All-Star drill under the stadium lights. In two of these games, blue shirted teams won, 7 to 0 and 14 to 0, from the Whites.

Hillenbrand, who did not play football last fall while finishing his army training at Indiana university, has gradually regained his effectiveness as a forward passer. His open field running, from the day he reported, has been near to the form he displayed in 1942 as a Hoosier. Thursday night Hillenbrand made a 65 yard punt return to score which, however, was nullified by a penalty. Later he pitched a pass to Lou Saban, his Indiana university teammate, for a touchdown.

Miller Due for Action.

Altho he has practiced only four days, Creighton Miller, who led Notre Dame to a national collegiate championship last fall, has proved a valuable addition to the All-Star coterie of backs. Miller unquestionably will see considerable service and if his mates can escort him past the Bears' primary defenses, the capacity crowd of 50,000 Wednesday night may see him duplicate his famous run of last year against Michigan.

The All-Star players last night attended the Selwyn theater where they saw "Kiss and Tell." They returned to their Evanston camp immediately after the performance.

BEARS RELY ON ROOKIES

BY EDWARD PRELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Collegeville, Ind., Aug. 25.—Three big men walked into the dining room at St. Joseph's college at noon today and the Chicago Bears' coaches sighed. The three were, left to right: Lee Artoe, Joe Stydahar, and Ed [Muscles] Bray, participants in the Bears' last appearance in a College All-Star game. That was two years ago when the professionals won, 21 to 0, for their third straight. "How we could use those three fellows next week," mourned Paddy Driscoll, referring to No. 11 in the All-Star series, which will be played Wednesday night in Northwestern's Dyche stadium. All three are navy lieutenants, junior grade.

Their presence as visitors at the training camp only emphasized the pressure which will be on the freshman Bears. In other All-Star games, the Bears were at least two deep with veterans at each position. This time 20 of their 36 squad members are recruits. Many of the 16 veterans have had only one season in the pro whirl.

Today the professional champions worked from 9 a. m. until almost noon under a hot sun. Time was divided between running and passing plays. The squad welcomed its first afternoon off in 17 days. Continued work on offense is scheduled for tomorrow. On Sunday night the Bears will work out, in new uniforms, under the lights of Rensselaer High's athletic field.

CITY SERIES OFF; CUBS REFUSE TO CHALLENGE SOX

There will be no Chicago City series for the second straight year. Manager Charley Grimm of the Cubs announced yesterday, that, because of injured players and the desire of his men to leave for home as soon as possible after the season closes, he would not challenge the White Sox.

Jimmy Foxx, one time American league home run artist, who, after failing in a comeback attempt this spring was assigned to a coaching job by the Cubs, will manage the Portsmouth [Va.] club for the balance of the season Vice President Jim Gallagher announced yesterday. Foxx will fill in for Bill Steinecke present Portsmouth manager, who is joining te Yankees.

HELPLESS CUBS LOSE TO REDS, 2-0; 6TH IN ROW

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Charley Grimm's receding Cubs continued to baffle themselves instead of the enemy yesterday, so assimilated their sixth straight trimming as well as the 16th in their last 21 games. Their contribution to the amusement of a 14,721 ladies' day crowd was a fair smattering of base hits, but they overlooked the importance of including some runs in their act, whereas the Cincinnati Reds exhibited enough sprinting on the base lines to promote a 2 to 0 decision.

The Cubs' pitching, as conducted by Hank Wyse, was good enough for ordinary purposes but his labors went for naught, principally because his pals refused to give opportunity a tumble when it beckoned to them. Once they had a man on second with none out and Ed Heusser stopped this with the strikeout ball. Once they had the bags loaded with one out. Another time they had two on bases with nobody retired. Double plays killed them off in these two latter instances.

The Reds did their first bit of successful pecking at Wyse's right handing when Frank McCormick opened the second with a two-bagger to left. Ray Mueller slapped a soft tap back at Wyse, but he let it roll off his bare hand for a single, McCormick taking third and going on from there to the plate while Eric Tipton was forcing Mueller. It was in this same inning that the Cubs acted, momentarily, as if planning to tie it up. Bill Nicholson, who came to life with three hits, led off with a double, but Lou Novikoff rolled out and both Don Johnson and Len Merullo fanned.

Paul Derringer was in charge in the ninth when the Reds picked up their second run at bargain rates. With one out, Gerald Walker survived on a fumble by Merullo and McCormick followed with a single. Walker, who believes in running, didn't stop until he had reached the plate.

Indians Beat Sox, 10-2, on 2 Home Runs

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Box score on next page.]

Cleveland, O., Aug. 25.—The Cleveland Indians, who had been unbelievably meek in the presence of the White Sox this summer, got very tough tonight, the brutality reaching its peak when Ken Keltner busted a grand slam homer off Bill Dietrich in the seventh inning for the biggest cluster in a 10 to 2 victory for Mel Harder. Myril Hoag also smacked a homer, good for two runs, off Eddie Carnett in the eighth.

The outcome, fourth victory for Cleveland in 16 meetings with the Sox this season, dropped the Sox out of fifth place and into seventh.

It's Topcoat Weather.

The Sox were first and last to score in the game, witnessed by 12,811 who were out on the lake shore apparently to give their topcoats a test. Dykes' boys scored in the first inning and for a time it looked like that run might mean something. There wasn't much excitement over the run they made in the ninth, except in the mind of Mike Tresh, who doubled for his third straight hit after walking his first trip to the plate.

Tho they made only two runs, the Sox were pretty good at wasting hits. They made 10, including Tresh's double and a triple by Guy Curtright.

Dykes' boys will try to do better tomorrow, in daylight and in a different park. It will be Ed Lopat for Chicago and Al Smith for the Indians.

Score on Double Play.

Wally Moses opened the game with a single to right and went to third on Roy Schalk's single to left. Curtright grounded into a double play, started by Lou Boudreau, Moses scoring.

Boudreau opened the home fourth with a single to left and Roy Cullenbine walked. The runners advanced on Keltner's sacrifice, then Norman Schlueter walked, loading the bases. Dietrich gave his third pass of the inning, forcing Boudreau home with the tying run. Harder filed to Tucker, scoring Cullenbine. Cullenbine opened the sixth with a single, moved to third on Keltner's sacrifice and Schlueter's infield out and scored on Mack's single.

Then Came the Big Blast.

Here's the way Keltner's grand slam homer was set up in the seventh. Mickey Rocco opened with a sacrifice and advanced on Hoag's sacrifice. Pat Seerey singled to left and Boudreau was hit by a pitched ball, loading the bases. Cullenbine singled to left, scoring Rocco. Keltner then knocked the ball into the left field stands, scoring behind Seerey, Boudreau, and Cullenbine.

3 SWIM RECORDS FALL IN OPENING OF A. A. U. MEET

BY FRANK MASTRO.

Three meet records fell and four new champions were crowned as the 1944 National A. A. U. senior men's swimming and diving meet opened at Great Lakes Naval Training center last night.

Keo Nakama, Hawaiian born Ohio State star, succeeded Paul Maloney of Buffalo as 1,500 meter free style title holder; Jerry Kerschner of the Bunker Hill Naval station replaced Alan Ford of Yale as 200 meter free style champion; Norman Sper Jr., from Beverly Hills, Cal., succeeded Floyd Stauffer of Columbus, O., as springboard diving champion, and the Philadelphia Y. M. C. A. replaced Yale as 300 meter medley relay champion.

Nakama Opens Record Assault.

In beating Jimmy McLane, 13 year old member of the Firestone club of Akron, O., for honors in the long distance event, Nakama shattered his own meet record of 19:55.8, which he made while winning the event in 1941. Keo's time last night was 19:42.6.

Kerschner Breaks 200 Meter Mark.

CALUMET PAIR, BY JIMMINY 6-5 IN SMALL FIELD

Woolf Seeks Third Straight Victory.

Small but Select

SIX horses are entered for the mile and one-quarter $50,000 added American Derby, to be contested today at Washington Park. The field, in post position order, follows:

Horse—	Wt.	Jockey.	Prob. odds
*Miss Keeneland	119	No boy	6-5
*Pensive	*126	McCreary	6-5
By Jimminy	122	Woolf	6-5
Challenge Me	115	Sha'ski	30-1
Nelson Dunstan	115	Keiper	12-1
Old Kentuck	115	Bodine	10-1

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN.

The Calumet farm's entry of Pensive and Miss Keeneland and Alfred Parker's By Jimminy have been established overnight favorites at odds of 6 to 5 for the 34th running of the $80,950 American Derby at Washington Park this afternoon.

Four of the contenders were on the track yesterday morning and registered impressive private trials to fit them for their shot at the riches involved—$62,400 to the winner, $10,000 for second, $5,000 for third, and $2,500 for fourth.

McCreary Up On Pensive.

By Jimminy, top ranking colt of the east with victories in the Travers, Dwyer and Shevlin stakes, worked five-eighths of a mile in 1:03, breezing to the half in :50-2-5 under the eyes of Trainer Jimmy Smith. Today George Woolf, who won with the filly Askmenow last year and with Alsab the year before, will be on By Jimminy to try to make it three in a row.

Pensive, Kentucky Derby and Pimlico Preakness winner, followed up two creditable mile workouts earlier in the week by negotiating five-eighths in 1:03 3-5, breezing to the half in :50-2-5. Miss Keeneland went a half in :52. Reliable Conn McCreary will have the leg up on Pensive as he did in the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness.

Challenge Me, the outsider at 30 to 1, went three-eighth in :36 yesterday and today will have Tony Skoronski in the saddle. He's the little Chicago lad who piloted the Brolite colt to victory in the Arkansas Derby last spring.

May Beat Derby Record.

Nelson Dunstan, which gained many supporters by winning the Volante mile here last Monday to add to three victories in four starts at Detroit, will work out this morning and Paul Keiper will be aboard him in the big race.

The best time for the race, 2:04, held jointly by Cavalcade [1934] and Whirlaway [1941], is expected to be lowered if the track is fast.

Ken Heilemann, St. Louis chemist, and Ed Furgol, the Detroiter who has overcome the handicap of a left arm shorter than his right, still were making a two man race out of the All-American Amateur golf tournament at the Tam o' Shanter club, as the field reached the 36 hole turn with yesterday's second round. Heilemann, who paced the first round shooting with a 70, added a par 72 yesterday for a halfway aggregate of 142, two under par for the distance.

Furgol, who led the original qualifiers in the amateur section with a 67 last Monday, added a 72 yesterday to his 71 of Thursday for a 143 total. Earl Christiansen, the policeman from Miami, Fla., shot a second round of 73 for third place at 145. Wilford Wehrle of Racine, Wis., had three sixes on his card and finished with a 75 for 148. One stroke back of him were George Dawson, Glen Oak veteran, and Harold Foreman of Lake Shore, new Illinois state titleholder, each of whom had 74—75—149.

HICKS PACES WOMEN

Betty Hicks of Long Beach, Cal., shot another 78 yesterday for a 36 hole total of 156 and a four stroke lead over the field at the half way point in the Women's All-American tournament at Tam o' Shanter.

Dorothy Germain, women's western amateur champion from Philadelphia, moved into second place by virtue of a 79, which, with her first round score of 81, gave her a total of 160. The Beaver college student pulled within one stroke of Miss Hicks at the 33d hole, but faltered badly by bogeying each of the last three holes.

In third place with 161 was Phyllis Otto of Omaha, who required 82 strokes yesterday, after compiling a 79 on the opening day. Two sevens at the second and sixteenth added to her troubles.

Patty Berg, another former national title holder, could do no better than equal her first round score of 81, which placed her in a fourth place tie with Georgia Tainter of Fargo, N. D., at 162. It remained for Mrs. Mary Mozel Wagner of Portland, Ore., to shoot the best 18 hole round of the tournament when she posted a 38—39—77, one over par.

UNFAIR RIVALRY OF U.S. UTILITY UNITS ASSAILED

Place All on Equal Footing, Is Plea.

Expected large surplus generating capacity of some federal utility projects after the war should not be used "to create further unfair competition" with private utilities, P. L. Smith, president of Middle West corporation, said yesterday. He spoke at the afternoon session of the annual meeting of the National Security Traders' association in the Palmer House.

P. L. Smith.

"With minor exceptions, all utilities should be on a common footing, pay their own way, and share the cost of the war and its liquidation," Smith said. "I believe unfair competition has reached its peak and that most voters and congress do not want to see industry socialized. The business-managed companies do not resent or fear fair competition."

Ample Capacity Available.

He said utility companies are in "an excellent position" to help convert the country's economy to peace time needs with ample capacity for post-war loads.

"Some companies will have surplus capacity which will take care of future growth in their service areas, and later when loads are expected to go beyond those of the last few years, new additions, improvements, and extensions can readily be made," Smith said. "Altho the cost of most commodities has increased in recent years, the average cost to consumers of a kilowatt hour of electricity or unit of gas has declined. It is reasonable to expect conditions will permit a continuation of this downward trend."

Rep. Boren [D., Okla.] warned at last night's dinner meeting of the association that federal burocracy has grown "to such an extent that we will have to destroy burocracy or it will destroy the American system of government."

Termed "New Philosophy."

"Burocracy has come to be a new philosophy of government in this country," he said. "It is a philsophy whereby a burocrat holds that he has the power of government within himself. We have reached the point where anybody who believes in the American way of life must be awake to the fact that he must fight for it."

Joseph A. Matter of the Chicago law firm of Chapman & Cutler, earlier had told the association members that a vital contribution to post-war prosperity could be made by municipal bond dealers by assisting in planning sound, well financed projects.

Municipalities and dealers will be in an improved position to enter peace time financing, if they start to study "much needed" legislation now, he said and added:

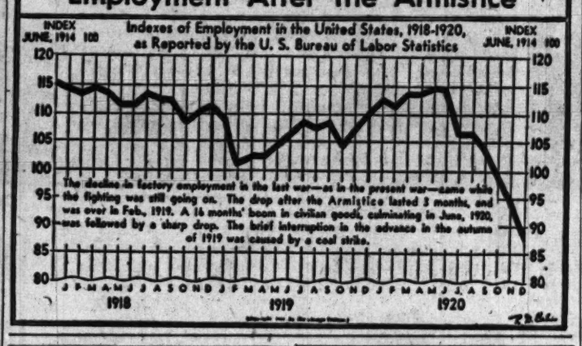
"Most state legislatures meet next spring and extensive new highway legislation is needed. Few states have satisfactory revenue bond laws. Probably no state has laws which will permit all types of revenue financing."

Municipal Financing Drops.

Matter said long term municipal financing in 1943 dropped to a 10 year low of about 500 million dollars, compared with 1 billion 230 millions in 1941 and an average of about 1 billion 200 millions for the eight preceding years. One estimate for the immediate peace time years is for 2½ billions in each of the first five post-war years, nearly twice 1940s record high, he said. Another source expects 5 to 8 billion dollars in the first four years after the war, he added.

"One factor which will increase municipal borrowing is the substantial amount of debt reduction in the last several years," Matter said. "The total municipal debt was about 20 billion dollars in 1940 and this was decreased an average of 15 per cent by the end of 1943."

Employment After the Armistice



Transfer Five Buildings for 1½ Millions

BY AL CHASE.

Five real estate sales aggregating more than 1½ million dollars and the lease of ground floor space at 333 N. Michigan av., were completed yesterday.

The 16 story building at 6700 Crandon av., containing 42 apartments, was sold by Chicago Title and Trust company, trustee, to Reba Building corporation for $375,000 of which $95,000 was cash and the balance, $280,000, purchase money mortgage negotiated thru Royal Neighbors of America.

Sheridan-Brompton Sold.

The 12 story Sheridan-Brompton, at the northwest corner of Sheridan rd. and Brompton av., reported last month to be under contract, was sold for $875,000 by the Chicago Title and Trust to Emma Fritz. Glatt & Price and Hooker & Randell were brokers. Built in 1927 at a cost of 3 million dollars, it has 160 suites.

The 28 flat building at the southeast corner of Merrill av. and 68th st. was sold by Leona M. Segool to Joseph F. Dixon & Co. for $110,000 thru Baird & Warner.

The two story business building at 6409-15 S. Halsted st. was sold by David Sosson and Arthur M. Samuels of the law firm of Levett, Sosson & Samuels, trustees, to Louis Goldberg for $100,400, county records showed. The property is 75 by 110 feet.

Remodeled Homes Purchased.

St. Clair and Ontario Building corporation bought for $82,000 from New England Life Insurance company the southwest corner of St. Clair and Ontario, 100 by 90, improved with old residences remodeled into small flats. Cook & Jackson and Hall & Ellis were brokers.

Federal Telephone and Radio corporation, subsidiary of International Telephone and Telegraph corporation of Newark, N. J., has leased the ground floor space at the north end of 333 building, 333 N. Michigan av., for five years and will install an elaborate exhibition of electronics. R. A. Vogeler is manager. Herman W. Carlson, manager of 333, and Les Lindgren of Winston & Co. negotiated the lease.

TAFT OPPOSES INDISCRIMINATE LOAN GUARANTEE

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25 (AP).—Federal reserve banks should not be in the business of guaranteeing loans for every retailer or wholesaler who needs money for a stock of goods, Sen. Taft [R., O.] contended today.

Taft expressed this opinion as the senate banking committee questioned Chairman Eccles of the federal reserve board on Eccles' proposal that the reserve banks guarantee private loans to help stimulate business after the war. Taft said the only lack of loan capital would be for individual enterprise, and that a federal guarantee "ought to be confined to manufacturing—to productive enterprises."

Eccles explained his proposal merely was intended to aid business in "an orderly transition" to full employment, and that the banks would check closely the qualifications of every applicant for a loan.

"DEATH SENTENCE."

When will the so-called death sentence for public utilities become effective, and what effect will it have on public utility investments?—C. P.

Answer: The death sentence, or integration provision, is part of the public utility holding company act passed in 1935. It directs the securities and exchange commission to limit electric and gas holding companies to a single integrated system and, under restrictions, to one or more systems in one state or adjoining states.

The time of its application to any particular system depends upon orders of the SEC or its approval of voluntary compliance plans. A dissolution order must be carried out within one year, with the SEC permitted to extend the time for an additional year.

Intrinsic effects on investments held by the public are confined largely to junior securities of the holding companies concerned. An opinion commonly held in the industry is that subsidiary properties divested at forced sales under the commission's orders have brought lower prices than could have been realized otherwise, or if such transfers could have awaited more favorable market conditions.

In numerous instances these utility operating plants have been bought by municipalities or other agencies representing a form of public ownership. A substantial portion, however, has been sold to other privately owned companies. Some compliance plans have provided for sale or distribution of assets to owners of the holding company's securities.

RETAIL SALES UP ON LARGE BUYING IN SCHOOL NEEDS

New York, Aug. 25 (AP).—Retail sales gained seasonally this week over last and fall buying volume thruout the country is estimated at 3 to 7 per cent above 1943, Dun & Bradstreet reported today. "Back to school purchases in ready to wear accounted for a large part of the increase," the research company said.

Coat sales were heavier in higher priced brackets and millinery sold in better volume, but men's clothing sales were about equal to 1943.

Sturgeon Bay Yard Gets Contract for Army Tugs

Sturgeon Bay, Wis., Aug. 25—[Special].—A contract for the construction of 10 harbor tugs 85 feet long has been awarded by the army transportation corps to the Sturgeon Bay Shipbuilding and Dry Dock company, William J. Wolter, vice president, announced today.

Kentucky Whisky Output Nears 12 Million Gallons

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 25 (AP).—Tax reports indicated today that 11,680,000 gallons of whisky and beverage alcohol had been produced in Kentucky during the August holiday from industrial alcohol production for war purposes.

CREDITS FOR NEEDY NATIONS AFTER WAR HINTED BY PRESIDENT

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25 (AP).—Prospects that the United States might use its favorable international trade position to extend post-war credits to needy nations wanting American goods were discussed by President Roosevelt today at his news conference.

He said the question of credits would depend on the economic status of individual countries and that such credits could be authorized by amending rather than repealing the Johnson act forbidding government loans to defaulters on first World war debts to the United States.

Noting that cash exports in the last four years far exceeded the annual average in the four pre-war years, 1935-'38, a reporter asked if this meant the United States again would become an international creditor nation after the war as it did after 1918.

Mr. Roosevelt said a country with much money which wanted to buy probably could get reasonable rates from private capital, but another country that did not have so much would be a different case and have to be handled differently.

The President said he knew of no plans to extend lend-lease aid to Italy.

TALKS ON BUYING OF CUBAN SUGAR BY WFA TO BEGIN

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25 (AP).—The war food administration announced today that it will start negotiations Monday with a Cuban sugar commission for purchase of the 1945 and 1946 Cuban sugar crops. The United States has bought Cuban crops of the last two years to help meet domestic and lend lease requirements.

Because next year's world supplies are expected to be smaller while Cuba's production costs are regarded as higher, the Cubans are expected to insist upon a higher price than the 2.65 cents a pound, f. o. b. Cuba, being paid for the 1944 crop.

The WFA also announced that processors representing 86 per cent of 1944 sugar production in Puerto Rico signed contracts for the sale of 1944 crop sugar before the Aug. 20 deadline which had been set for the termination of a WFA purchase offer.

ROCK ISLAND'S NET OPERATING INCOME FALLS

Rock Island railroad's July gross revenues of $17,176,436 rose to an all-time peak from $15,930,871 a year ago, but a reduced net operating income reflected higher wages and federal taxes, J. D. Farrington, chief executive officer, reported yesterday. Net operating income was $3,020,182, against $3,878,251.

F. G. Gurley, president of Santa Fe railway, reported July net operating income of $4,796,876, compared with $4,984,246. Altho gross income rose $8,254,394 to $49,838,297, operating expenses increased $1,890,383 as did railway tax accruals, up $6,096,923.

Sperry Profit Increases Tho Shipments Dip

Sperry corporation, gyroscope manufacturer, had higher profits in the first half of 1944 altho shipments were about 8 per cent less than a year earlier, T. A. Morgan, president, reported yesterday. The profit increase stemmed from inclusion of certain nonrecurring tax credits.

Several large contract cancellations late in 1943 and early in 1944 reduced shipments, Morgan said, and a further drop in shipments in the second half of 1944 is probable.

No Provision for Renegotiation.

Net income after a 2½ million dollar provision for post-war contingencies was $4,413,287, equal to $2.19 per share, compared with $4,242,813, or $2.11 a share, a year earlier. No provision for a price renegotiation refund was made, and no excess profits were realized, he said.

Sperry is engaged almost entirely on war work, Morgan said, and produces some 160 different products for the military. As soon as war considerations permit, however, attention will be directed to peace time products.

Hearst Consolidated Publications reported net income in the six months ended June 30 was $3,903,900, equal to $1.59 per class A share, against $2,918,200, or $1.51 a share.

Truax-Traer Profits Rise.

Trauax-Traer Coal company, Chicago, had profit of $303,874, equal to 62 cents per share, in the three months ended July 31, first quarter of the company's fiscal year, compared with $195,000, or 39 cents a share, a year earlier.

Ingersoll-Rand company reported net income in the half year was $2,995,108, equal to $2.93 per share, against $3,118,964, or $3.09 a share.

American Chain and Cable company reported half year profit of $1,601,314, equal to $1.48 per share, compared with $2,233,493, or $2.12 a share.

BRITAIN INSISTS ON PRIMARY AIR ROLE: SINCLAIR

LONDON, Aug. 25 (AP).—Britain intends to play a primary role in post-war international air transport, Air Secretary Archibald Sinclair, said today. Addressing a gathering commemorating the 25th anniversary of the first British commercial air service, Sinclair said Britain wanted to see air transportation developed "in an orderly fashion without waste or international friction" and that it was not attempting "to impose any particular framework to obtain that end."

"We seek no domination," he said. "We want all united nations whose squadrons have fought so gallantly alongside our own in the war to share with us in the future of international air transport in peace. But we will not accept a secondary role in international aviation."

Former Minister of Aircraft Production Brabazon said "petty jealousies" already have developed between Britain and the United States and called for a common resolution "to see to it that as we turn from war to peace there should not be in the very air power that has given us victory the seeds of future world estrangement."

ANTI-BUSINESS ATTITUDE LAID TO JUSTICE DEPT.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25 (AP).—The justice department today was criticized by Rep. Bender [R., O.] on the ground it was charting a course that would cause ill feeling between government and business after the war.

Reminding that the department had threatened anti-trust action in connection with reconversion plans that failed to meet its approval, Bender asserted "the inevitable result of this attitude must be to restimulate the same kind of antagonism between government and business which characterized the pre-war period."

"The attorney general and the WPB are raising once more the same old issues which we found in the era of the Blue Eagle and the NRA," he said. "Nothing in the closely knit fabric of our present coöperative methods is to be permitted to remain. Important gains achieved thru pooling resources under government auspices are to disappear in the interest of maintaining the competitive spirit of a generation back."

EXCHANGES TO RECESS.

The New York Stock and Curb exchanges and the Chicago Stock exchange will be closed today and next Saturday. Exchange officials voted the closings last week because of help shortages. The Chicago Board of Trade and other markets will be open.

New York, Aug. 25 (AP).—Short covering and light investment purchasing helped scattered stocks advance toward the close of today's market, but many leaders finished lower and the market ended irregular.

The session was one of the slowest of the last three months as most customers prepared for the extended week-end by standing aside, trimming accounts or purchasing lightly.

Some bidding was credited to the belief recent small volumes may indicate prices are at or near lows.

Favorable Factors Offset.

Offsetting such favorable factors was the persistent apprehension conversion difficulties will confront industry if the Nazis collapse suddenly. The war production board row, with its threat to reconversion planning, also was a handicap.

The Associated Press 60 stock average was unchanged, at 54.9. Of 816 issues appearing, 306 were up, 285 down, and 225 unchanged. Transfers totaled 599,240 shares compared with 773,810 yesterday.

At peaks for 1944 were Engineers Public Service and Braniff Airways. Improved were United States Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, United States Rubber, Santa Fe, Great Northern, Philip Morris, 20th Century-Fox and Johns-Manville.

Some Leaders Decline.

Losers included General Motors, New York Central, Southern Pacific, Standard Oil [N. J.], Consolidated Edison, Sears Roebuck, Douglas Aircraft, General Electric, Kennecott and American Smelting.

On the Curb Creole Petroleum advanced on a favorable earnings report. Minor gains were made by St. Regis Paper, Niagara Hudson Power and Puget Sound Power. Turnover was 253,480 shares against 311,510 yesterday.

BOND PRICES IRREGULAR.

Rails accounted for most of the corporate transactions. Fractionally improved were Cleveland Union Terminal 4½s, Central Pacific 5s, Burlington 4½s, Milwaukee adjustment 5s and Rock Island refunding 4s.

Heaviness marked such carrier issues as Erie 4½s, down 1; Milwaukee E 4½s of 1989, down 2¾, and C 4½s of 1989, down ¾, and Frisco 5s of 1950, down 1⅝. Other losers included Hudson Coal 5s and M-K-T adjustment 5s.

Gains of fractions to about a point were well distributed among South American bonds. United States government securities were steady.

CHICAGO SHARES LOWER.

Prices were lower in reduced volume of 20,000 shares yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange. Among active issues were North American Car, up ⅞, Chicago corporation, unchanged; and Hupp Motor Car, down ¼.

Holds WFA Needs Added Powers for Food Disposal

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25 (AP).—War Food Administrator Marvin Jones told a congressional committee today that additional authority for disposing of extra food supplies will be needed at the end of the war because a surplus will exist. Additional funds will be needed to help carry out price support commitments made under congressional direction and under the necessity of encouraging maximum production for war, he added.

Some of Chicago Industries Make Declines During July

Electric power output, fares collected by the three mass transportation systems, and other business indices in Chicago in July fell below June levels, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S business survey department reported yesterday. Industry as a whole showed a substantial gain over a year ago, however.

Power production in July totaled 796,544,000 kilowatt hours compared with 812,097,000 in June. Comparative figures for the transportation facilities show: Chicago Surface Lines, June 70,281,799, July 68,982,755; elevated lines, June 15,833,810, July 15,651,449; Chicago Motor Coach lines, June 6,174,915, July 6,087,711.

Develop Concrete Building Column Stronger than Steel

An extremely strong substitute for structural steel columns, made chiefly of concrete and as light as aluminum, has been developed and tested successfully at the Northwestern Technological institute at Northwestern university, the institute announced yesterday.

The substitute, which was developed by Prof. George A. Maney, chairman of the department of civil engineering, can be produced at about one third the cost of steel, it was estimated. The development of the material was part of the war production board's research program to discover new materials and designs to reduce the use of scarce materials. Maurice Legaard, assistant professor, conducted the tests and designed a proposed plant for mass production.

Valued for Reconstruction.

The column, by reducing the need for steel in building construction, can conserve the country's natural resources of iron ore, and may be valuable as a building material in the reconstruction of war torn areas where steel is scarce, Maney said.

The unit, designed for buildings, bridges, and special foundations, is composed of highly compressed concrete encased in a spiral of steel wiring. A small model, 80 per cent concrete and 20 per cent steel, has supported loads larger than those of a solid steel column of the same size.

Compression Gives It Strength.

The exceptional strength was obtained by compressing the concrete and reducing the amount of water used in mixing. Only one gallon of water per sack of cement was used, compared with five to eight gallons in ordinary concrete. This reduction was made possible by a special method of compaction, which includes vibrating the concrete while it is damp.

The initial compression of 10,000 to 20,000 pounds per square inch is a main source of the unit's strength, because it contributes to the strength of the concrete and at the same time puts the steel spiral under tension which is maintained by the concrete when it hardens.

The Wilsons Have a Bit of Name Trouble

C. E. Wilson, president of the General Motors corporation, recently has had some difficulty explaining to friends and others that he is not resigning from the war production board and that he is not feuding with WPB Chairman Donald Nelson. The C. E. Wilson who clashed with Nelson and resigned as vice chairman of the WPB

Despite attempts by the two C. E.s to keep reports on their individual activities confined to their proper spheres, many persons continued to confuse their personalities.

It's the Wrong C. E.

The General Motors executive was in Danville, Ill., Thursday, to inspect a new GM plant when the General Electric Wilson resigned from WPB. One newspaper writer reporting the General Motors inspection trip was directed by his home office to get a statement "on C. E. Wilson's resignation. It's a swell chance to get the low down."

"But it's the GM C. E., not the GE C. E.," the reporter protested wearily to a rewrite man in Chicago who refused at first to be convinced.

Tells One On Himself.

Then the GM C. E. told one on himself:

"I attended a meeting of Detroit area doctors recently and three of them, each of whom I knew well, one at a time took me aside and urged me not to quit the WPB. Such is fame."

Both Wilsons have the first name Charles. The GM Wilson's E stands for Erwin and the GE Wilson's stands for Edward.

AUTOCAR VOTES STOCK DIVIDEND INSTEAD OF CASH

Autocar company yesterday declared a dividend in stock of one share of $20 par preferred for each 10 common shares. The company announced that for 1944 this stock disbursement will replace the cash dividends totaling $2 voted during 1943.

Directors of United Wall Paper Factories, Inc. voted a dividend of 15 cents a share compared with the 10 cents paid during the last three years.

GRAIN PRICES LOWER DESPITE HOUSE DRIVE TO HIKE CROP LOANS

Grain markets turned lower on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday despite Washington reports of efforts in the house to increase the government loan on the 1944 wheat and corn crops to 95 per cent of parity, in line with the Bankhead cotton amendment to the surplus property bill.

July wheat broke 1⅛ cents a bushel early to a new seasonal low and July oats also went into new low ground. September wheat held firm and ended ⅛ cent higher. Other options ranged to ⅝ cent lower. Rye lost ½ to 1 cent, oats ⅜ to 1¼ cents, and barley ¼ to ¾ cent.

Heavy spreading operations in wheat and rye marked trading in the two grains. Shorts bought September wheat and sold December, widening the spread to 1¾ cents at the close compared with 1⅛ Thursday. The upturn in September wheat was helped by strength in cash grain in Minneapolis.

Liquidation thru commission houses developed in rye and at times the market showed a lack of support. Brokers were active in closing spreads between December and May.

FORD WALKOUT HALTS OUTPUT OF PLANE GEARS

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 25 (AP).—A strike which made more than 6,000 war workers idle halted production in the Ford Motor company's Highland Park plant today. Approximately 2,800 machine operators making gears for aircraft engines left their jobs and later a picket line turned back 3,450 afternoon shift workers.

A Ford company statement said, "Nobody has been able to tell the company why the men are striking." The walkout was said by a spokesman for Local 400, United Automobile Workers [CIO], to have resulted from a strike yesterday by maintenance tool grinders combined with the company's refusal to recommend merit increases of 5 cents an hour for workers on the engine jobs. He said union officials were endeavoring to persuade employes to return to work, but a strikers' meeting tonight turned down the proposal.

Tomatoes Flood St. Louis Market; Price 5% of June

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 25 (AP).—Hundreds of bushels of tomatoes remained unsold on St. Louis' produce market today altho prices averaged only 5 per cent of those paid for early homegrown varieties in June. Declining prices were attributed to "an enormous crop" resulting from ideal growing weather, lack of demand from other parts of the country, and a shortage of trucking facilities.

Crude Oil Stocks Decline Altho Production Climbs

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25 (AP).—The bureau of mines reported today that stocks of crude petroleum totaled 223,040,000 barrels on Aug. 19, a decrease of 557,000 barrels during the week. Daily average production was 4,675,000 barrels, an increase of 8,000.

PORK SHORTAGE TERMED MOST SEVERE OF WAR

Chicago Hogs 'Too Few for Dinner.'

Not enough hogs arrived at the stock yards yesterday to provide Chicago civilians with pork for a Sunday dinner, after holding out about 30 per cent for the army, navy, and lend-lease, trade experts estimated.

Farmers shipped in only 8,500 head, including directs to packers, which was 32 per cent less than the average Friday volume in the last six weeks. About 11 per cent of the supply was taken for eastern slaughter.

Demand Up, Output Down.

The nation-wide pork and hog shortage is the most severe this country has experienced since the war started in Europe in 1939, in the opinion of well informed men in the trade. Demand from all sources has increased rapidly while production has shrunk for several weeks, they said.

The pork from most of the hogs being butchered will not reach trade channels until next week when the new set-aside order will be in effect. Estimates were that less than 850 million pounds of the pork obtained from yesterday's hog receipts could be sold lawfully into Chicago civilian channels.

Federally inspected packers were directed to save about one-third of their output for the government, but noninspected plants said they had not received any such instructions and would continue to sell their entire output to civilians.

Big Markets Get Only 46,000.

Twenty of the biggest markets received only 46,000 hogs, far less than on any corresponding Friday in August since 1939. Almost all classes of hogs sold at ceiling prices —$14.75 per 100 pounds for stock of 240 pounds or less and $14 for heavier stock—as all packers fought to maintain volume. The $14.35 average equalled the peak since last October.

Lambs were strong to 25 cents higher. The $15.40 top, paid for Washington range stock, was the highest price since June 26.

DALLAS ABSORBS LABOR RELEASED AT PLANE PLANT

Dallas, Tex., Aug. 25 [Special].—The impact of layoffs at the Dallas plant of North American Aviation, Inc., which started last week with the release of 3,687 employes because of cutbacks in the production of B-24 Liberator bombers, has not been as severe as was first expected, business men said today.

The slash in production schedules will result in the gradual release of 17,000 workers by
